About the Dance

To The Advance :

I was interested in your Kimberley correspondent's reference to dancing in last week's Advance. There is surely something to be said on the other side of the question. While I do not dance, and never could get my Methodist foot to properly follow the strains of music—even in skating--still it seems to me that one who criticises the spread of the dancing habit should at least be ready with an acceptable substitute.

As I recall it, there is particularly little social life in the Valley, with dances extracted. If there was a skating rink (where would one get ice these days ?) it might take its place. If there were some sort of a literary or social club, the young people could foregather for profitable amusement. If there was a properly conducted social room (even with a pool table) where the young people could satisfy the undeniable craving for society and the society of different sexes, one would not have to worry about the dance evil.

I would suggest that your correspondent, who is one of the active young people of the Kimberley valley, and who has a fund of ready wit and ingenuity, should set a sort of social "deadfall," and start a club for young men, and women too, if feasible. It might be conducted along semi-parliamentary lines, with a formal constitution. Business could be put through and a proportion of the time devoted to debates and discussions, speeches, and music. Then the evening could wind up with light refreshments. Membership fees might be $1 or $2 a year.

My reason for suggesting that is that in Toronto there are hundreds of such Clubs—men's clubs, for the part—where young men are developing themselves in debate and thinking upon their feet. After a few years of serious work along this pleasant and profitable line, the nominations in "Newphrasy" would bring out surprising amount of good timber and the public life of the township would have the benefit.

Kimberley is proud in the possession of a water system. Why should someone not turn the "faucet" and pour out some such form of mental refreshment ?

Letter From Glenside

Glenside, Sask., Jan. 22.

Mr. Thurston :

Dear Sir,—I see by the label on my paper that I should renew. We sometimes get the paper Saturday night, but sometimes it does not arrive until Monday ; but we must have it, no matter when it comes, so I am sending you five dollars so that I will not have to renew so often.

We are having a beautiful winter. I have been hauling hay sixteen miles—32 miles the round trip. Hay is the worst setback we have. Crops were real good in this district but other adjoining districts were not so fortunate, some having a total failure. West of us, on the west side of ths Saskatchewan river, seemed to get hit worst. Although it looked very gloomy in the early part of the summer, and everything was burning up but rain came at last and changed the situation. Land companies have made great improvements in this locality, breaking and cultivating hundreds of acres of prairie land and erecting good buildings thereon, digging and boring wells, etc.

We are fortunate in having Mr. Ben Madill and family adjoining our farm. Ben is a hustler and prospering well. Land is very high in price in this locality, selling from $50 to $70 an acre, according to the improvements. Land sells readily. Wages are very high, some offering $75 per month for single men. Married couples are greatly in demand A consolidated school is being considered at Glenside, a meeting of ratepayers being called for Feb. 5. We have rural telephone all through this district, good roads and live towns. Five elevators here, 2 blacksmiths, bank, 2 general stores, 2 implement sheds, 2 lumber yards, garage, harness shop, barber shop, laundry, restaurant, hotel, butcher shop, 2 livery barns, auto livery, and several new houses went up last summer. A person would hardly believe such a change could take place in twelve years.

I see by your paper a proposal for a hospital in Flesherton. If any person has been fortunate enough to have the service of a trained nurse in their illness, as we were this winter, they will rejoice at the name of a hospital and a trained nurse. I should think May Dinnick's suggestion should meet strongly with your approval instead of a monument. We do not need a monument to remind us of this horrible war or of our heroes who will be uppermost in our minds forever. It would be nice for us to have a monument set up for those who did so much for us, but it would do no good—it would not bring our dear boys back.

Well, I have started to write and I guess I do not know when to stop. Best wishes to Ye Editor and long life.

—E. D. LeGARD.

[It will not be necessary for Mr. LeGard to remit us any more money for a few years, but we hope he will not deprive us of his cheery, chatty annual letters, to which we and our readers look forward with very much pleasure.—Ed.]

Around Grey County

An Acton drover was driving a cow and her calf in a sleigh when a little chap jumped onto the sleigh. This scared the cow and she jumped clean over the drover and out the front of the sleigh The horses ran away and getting detached from the sleigh headed for home. The damage done was very slight, but the mix up looked serious for a while.

A large number of Grey County soldiers have returned home in the last week or so.

Mrs. Horne, of the Durham high school staff, slipped on some ice and sustained a fracture of the arm. She will be off duty for two or three weeks.

Pte. Fred McKechnie, of Markdale, arrived home last week after being released from a German prison camp. He was met at the station by his townspeople, who gave him a hearty welcome.

A young boy and girl, 16 and 14 respectively, of Owen Sound, were recently returning home from service at the Salvation Army and when on their way up the 10th Street hill a man came quickly up behind them and struck the boy a terrible blow on the head that knocked him unconscious. He then attacked the girl, who screamed and put up a desperate fight, and succeeded in carrying her across the road. The boy's father, attracted by the screams, came up and the man dropped the girl. He took to the nearby woods, and although followed, succeeded in getting away.

The Findlay store at Dromore has been sold to Mr. Enim, of Stratford. He took possession on January 28.

Division street Presbyterian church at Owen Sound is considering a set of chimes as a memorial to the soldiers from that congregation who have fallen in the Great War. It would be a beautiful and fitting reminder of their sacrifices.

Meaford is considering putting in a claim for one of the technical schools which are to be built in different parts of Ontario this year.

Two children fell into the sydenham river at Owen Sound and were rescued with difficulty by a passerby.
