The Chatsworth village council uses what is known as a split-log drag on their streets, and the News thinks it is worth while. We have no doubt of it and we believe every town with unpaved streets would benefit by the use of this cheaply made instrument. What about trying it out in Flesherton?

The Indians in Canada are claiming the franchise on account of what they did in the great war. In this country 5000 redmen enlisted with a very good showing. On the Cape Croker reserve in Bruce of 67 men of military age 63 offered their services, 57 were accepted and 58 went overseas. This is a record that is hard to beat. Of those who went to France six made the supreme sacrifice and 22 were wounded, while one lost his right arm, 27 came back and 20 are still overseas. Such a record shows that the Indians are worthy sons of Tecumseh of Moraviantown fame in the war of 1812 to 1815. The Indians at the Chippewa Reserve at Southampton have an equally good record with their Cape Croker bretheren.

Can Dogs Reason?

Scientists tell us that man is the only animal endowed with the power of reason and that it is merely instinct which controls the lower orders of the animal world. Some have held otherwise and have seemed to prove conclusively that at least some individuals of the brute creation are endowed with reasoning powers as well as man. Still, it is an accepted theory that the brute creation is not endowed with reasoning powers but is moved entirely by instinct.

A case recently came under our notice which surely cannot be called instinctive action, and if it is not good sound reasoning power we are at a loss to place the acts in any category of living consciousness.

Our fellow citizen, Mr. John Wright, owns a dog, a cross between the blood hound and English fox hound. One day a kettle of food was placed before him on muddy ground. He evidently did not care for the location, so he picked up the kettle in his teeth and placed it on a platform, where he finished his meal in comfort.

On another occasion this winter when his master had the animal out in the woods, the former was surprised to see the canine nipping off low branches from a spruce tree and making a bed with them on which to lie at its roots.

If the above two instances are not conclusive evidence of a hige order of reasoning powers we would like to know on what basis they would be explained(

The Orangeville Sun vouches for this: "On Monday evening about a dozen young girls from this townwent down to Caledon to meet the returning soldiers and one girl will remember it for some moons. After boarding the train she spied what she thought was her objective and immediately advanced. She bombarded him with kisses, and he, being used to gas and powder, made a counter attack. When she realized her mistake she retreated and nearly fainted. The soldier laughingly remarked: "Orangeville must be some grand town."
