Terribly Burned By Falling Wire

A young man named Walter George, 21 years of age, was electrocuted at Hanover on Saturday in a purely accidental manner, when an insulator on the high tension wire broke, allowing the wire to come in contact with an iron pipe which young George was working beside. The whole current of 22,000 volts went through his body. Two men working beside him were also knocked down but not seriously injured. Mr. T. Berry, manager at the Power House, immediately supplied artifical respiration and in ten minutes had the injured man breathing again. The young man was taken to his home and doctors summoned when it was found that his right shoulder was burned, also there was a terrible burn on one leg and his feet were charred. The victim had only returned from overseas about two months ago and was temporarily employed on hydro construction work. His parents live in Hanover. At last accounts George was still living but the outcome was very doubtful.
