More Glenelg Barns Fall to Incendiary

Two more barns have been burned in Glenelg. On Sunday merning about 2 o'clock, Jerry McKay's barn, one of the largest in Glenelg, on ot 13, con 8, was set on fire and burned to the ground. Constable Cook was immediately notified by telephone and went at once to the scene. He formed a party on different lots and proceeded to look for tracks, which they found near the barn. The track was of one man who came and went in the same direction. Cook, J. MacKasey, G. Campbell and others followed the tracks through field and bush for two and a half miles, which was no joy trip through the long grass and bushes wet with dew. Three of the men dropped out after following 1½ miles. Cook and McKay followed to the end. There will be something doing in the near future. The loss is a big one, the season's hay crop being destroyed.

On Monday morning another barn was set on fire belonging to Mrs. Connelly, 6th con. Glenelg, and burned to the ground. This makes six incendiary fires since the end of April as follows :

Hugh Firth's barn burnt April 22.
John O'Neil's barn burnt May 24.
John Beaton's barn burnt June 7.
Patrick Haley's barn burnt June 28
Jerry MacKasey's barn burnt July 13
Mrs. Connelly's barn burnt July 14.

DUNDALK

There's lots of rags in this district. S, Goldman, the junk dealer, shipped away on Monday twelve tons of this commodity. This is probably an evidence of prosperity rather than poverty.

Captain Douglas McAlister, V. S., who returned from overseas, is opening up a veterinary office in Dundalk. Capt. McAlister is a graduate of the Toronto Veterinary College and was in the Veterinary Corps in France.

Roy Rowe, the implement agent, met with a bad misfortune on Thursday of last week when he fell from the peak of the barn at Thos. Ludlow's, 14th con., Proton. He was pulled up by rope and pulley to fix the hay fork and track which needed repairs. By some means the rope became detached letting him fall to the barn floor a distance of about thirty feet. His leg was broken at the ankle and he will be laid up for some weeks in what is usually the agent's busiest season of the year.

The Herald's attention has been called to recent thieving from autos in Dundalk. One man had a jack and a pair of pliers taken Saturday. Another had a fairly good tire taken by a boy from his garage and sold to a junk dealer for 35 cents. The boy will probably be taught a lesson at the hands of the law.—Herald

Mr. D. J. Biemann is going about with his left arm in a sling as a result of a little scrap he had with a two year old heifer last Thursday evening. On going into the stall of the stable adjoining the slaughter house, the heifer, which was tied with a chain, made a lunge at Mr. Biemann and caught him in the stomach, bowling him over. The heifer tramped on him, and when he was getting away, bunted him into the wall, breaking his left forearm.—Post.

Narrow Escape From Death

(From The Meaford Mirror)

A serious automobile accident occurred at the Boucher street railway crossing about five o'clock Tuesday evening by which Miss Elsie Bennett, only daughter of Dr. Bennett, sustained serious and painful injuries which will confine her to the house for some time.

Miss Bennett in company with Miss Elsie Brown was driving her father's car along Boucher street in an easterly direction just as a G. T. R locomotive was backing down to the station after taking a "haul" of cars up the hill. The young ladies apparently failed to see the engine approaching until they were within a few feet of the track, when Miss Brown jumped out of the auto on the right side and fortunately escaped without injury. Miss Bennett in the excitement of the moment apparently touched the wrong lever, which caused the auto to stall on the track. She jumped to the left side, but in doing so her dress caught in the hind wheel of the auto, and as the engine struck the car square in the centre, her right leg became pinned between the auto and the rail, and she and the auto were shoved along the track for several rods. Miss Bennett, however, had the presence of mind to hold fast to the fender and by so doing she saved herself from being crushed to death by the wheels of the locomotive.

The engineer, on noticing the auto approaching, applied the brakes, but too late to avert the accident. Mr. George Cook, who happened to be working near by, ran to Miss Bennett's assistance, and with the aid of one of the railway men pulled her out from under the car. She was bleeding from an ugly wound on her right leg above the knee, another on her right arm, while her left shoulder was torn and bruised, but no bones were broken. It required thirty stitches to close the wound in the leg. Strange to relate, Miss Bennett did not lose consciousness and was able to walk to the street without assistance. Miss Bennet's condition is such as to warrant hopes for a speedy recovery, provided no unfavorable symptoms develop.

The automobile was badly wrecked. One side was smashed beyond repair, the front and hind wheels being wrenched off at the axles and ground almost into splinters, while the seats were torn off and thrown to one side. The engine alone remained intact.
