The great crow conventions are now being held in the forests, and a visitor to these localities would think bedlam was let loose. The immediate caws of these noisy gatherings is to decide routes of travel for the fall migration, locations which the different families will preempt in the south (and this latter is a bone of fierce contention without meat, causing much disputation and many black looks), also how large a colony can proceed to certain particularly favored localities. We understand that the bills introduced into the crow parliament have been unusually numerous this fall. The migration question has been practically settled for this district, although a few minor details may occupy another two weeks of crowking. Some of the favored ones have been allocated to the Niagara river district for winter, others to New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, while a few penalized thieves and rascals of various degrees of heinousness have been sentenced to stay at home, exist in the swamps and await the dead horses of February. These are consoling themselves with the thought that after Oct. 20 there will be a lot of political carcases to pick. Few of the crows go further south than Ohio, because there they come in contact with their big cousin, the turkey buzzard—and the two houses do not dwell in amity. The musical scale used at these conventions is known as the crowmatic scale.

Address and Presentation

On Monday evening, Sept. 14, the many friends of Pte. Chas. Wilkinson were glad to welcome him home from overseas, and met at his home and presented him with a well filled purse and the following address :

To Private Charles Wilkinson :

We, your friends and neighbors, have assembled here tonight to bid you welcome home from the arena of the great world's war. Never before in the history of the world have so many nations and such extensive armies been engaged in such a deadly struggle, and never before have the engines and weapons of war been so extensive and so extremely repulsive as they have been in this war, and we feel we must thank God for the boys who are returning. When the great crisis for men arose you were one of the brave and noble young men who freely offered yourself, sacrificing your own interests to save the country and fight for the God of humanity. You did your bit nobly and we thank the God who ruleth the battle and giveth the victory that you have been spared to return to us. We do not feel that you can be repaid in this world for the great work done, but we would like you to know that we do appreciate what you have done, and in token of our gratitude we would like you to accept this purse, and we hope and pray that you may never again be called upon to fight in war, but that your civil and spiritual warfare may alike be blessed by victory. Signed on behalf of all your friends—Thomas Phillips, Ray Pedlar.

Pte. Wilkinson, in a few well chosen words, made a suitable reply.

Heavy Gas Flow Struck In Flesherton

In the drilling operations on what is known as the Henderson and Midland well, on the McTavish farm within the village limits, a heavy flow of natural gas was struck the fore part of last week, as well as a small quantity of oil. The flow of gas is quite heavy, but the pressure has not been gauged. A pipe rises some thirty feet from the ground and when The Advance man visited the well the roar of the gas from this pipe reminded one of an aeroplane passing over, and the gas as it left the pipe could be distinctly seen by the eye—or perhaps, to be more accurate, the disturbance of the air at the point of exit could be distinctly seen. The flow of gas was struck at a depth of about 1850 feet.

Drilling operations are being continued this week.

Provincial Election

To the Electors of South Grey :

Ladies and Gentlemen,—A rumor is in circulation that I am not qualified to run as a candidate in the pending election because I am an American citizen. This is petty politics. I was born and raised in Ontario, lived for some time in the United States, but never relinquished my British citizenship and never intend to do so. Any statement to the contrary is utterly false.

—GEO. M. LEESON.

PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of the Township of Artemesia :

Pursuant to a resolution of the Township Council, I hereby proclaim Friday, the 19th inst., as a public holiday for the Township and enjoin the people to observe the same as such.
