CEYLON

The regular meeting of Ceylon W. A. was held at the home of Mrs. Mel Hogarth on Feb. 22nd, with 13 present, and the president, Mrs. David Craig, presiding. Considerable business was dealt with. The program was in charge of Mrs. John McWilliam who gave two very interesting readings and sang "Alone." Mrs. David Adams conducted a Valentine contest, with Mrs. Geo. Jaynes the winner. The hostess and her assistants served lunch.

Ceylon and community euchre on Thursday night had nine tables in play. High scores went to Mrs. L. Whitehead and Harry Solomon. Consolation prizes went to Mrs. Alex. McLean and June Adams, while other prizes were taken by Mrs. A. Avis and Gordon McMullen. It was decided to donate $25.00 to the Ceylon W. A. The euchres are to be held every two weeks and the next will be on March 9th. Keep this date in mind.

Rev. Mould preached a wonderful sermon on Sunday night on sickness of the body. We are not sick in body, but spiritually sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gibson are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tracey in London.

Arthur Whittaker, Toronto, spent the week end in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams of London spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. David Adams.

Miss Shirley Rutledge of Owen Sound spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Rutledge.

Douglas Cairns has received the contract as mail carrier on R. R. No. 1, Ceylon.

Stanley Livermore of Toronto spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McDermid.

THE MIXING BOWL

by Anne Allan, Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers. To iron or not to iron? The answer to this question is determined by either personal taste for neatness or the amount of time and strength the homemaker has to devote to ironing. Starched clothing and wearing apparel are usually finished carefully while everyday things, such as towels, are done more casually. Table linens and other fine household linens are almost universally ironed, but bed linens may be ironed or the folded sheet pressed on top. Turkish towels, diapers and flannelette sheets are generally believed to be more absorbent or warm if not ironed.

We believe certain articles are damaged by regular ironing — elasticized portions of garments, fabrics waterproofed with waxes, rubber or other coatings which melt easily. Some of the synthetics are ruined by high temperatures. Then, too, pile-fabrics, such as corduroys and chenilles mat under pressure. Be careful how you iron delicate fabrics such as veilings, laces and loosely woven materials decorated with beads or accessories — a firm pressing cloth is advised on these fabrics. All bias-cut garments should be ironed on the grain of the fabric rather than from neck to hem, or sagging may result. Never pull sheer organdies or the more fragile rayons against the weight of the iron because the result will be fraying at the seams.

Read the labels to be sure that specially treated fabrics should be ironed. Mercerized, Sanforized and Permanently stiffened garments can be ironed. However, glazed chintz and moisture-proof garments are not always recommended for ironing.

The finish depends upon both taste and fabric requirements. A dull finish is obtained by ironing on its wrong side; dark colored cottons and linens, rayons, satins, crepes and embroidered pieses. A glossy finish is achieved by ironing on the right side: white and light colored linens, cottons and washable glazed chintz. Damask cloths may be ironed on both sides for a professional look.

The best results of ironing are guaranteed by even dampness, the safe temperature, the motion without drag, and the light pressure of the iron. Points to remember are:

1. Use warm water to sprinkle clothes as it saturates fibres more evenly. Fold garments carefully, with hems and other double thickness parts turned inside and roll up slightly, using kneading pressure as you roll. Cover rolled items with heavy towels and let stand at least an hour, if you can, but keep them in a cool place to prevent mildew.

2. The temperature of the iron is most important. Is should be controlled, as too little slows up the process and, of course, too much damages the fabric and produces shine or scorch.

3. Lost motion causes fatigue, especially in hand ironing. Homemakers should not tolerate a wobbly board, a wobbly iron handle or a surface that is not padded well. Iron with the grain of the fabric, since ironing in opposition to that natural direction produces the same effect as rubbing fur the wrong way, even though it may not be noticed for the first 2 or 3 ironings.

4. Through force of habit many women "bear down" on the handle of lightweight irons, exerting needless pressure and consequently expending needless energy. The even handling of the iron as it is placed on and lifted off the fabric is most important.

Other points should be considered important: a clean, well-fitted ironing board cover, a chlorine bleach in case of scorch, a bowl of water and a sponge for redamping dried spots, clean wrapping paper on the floor, a drying rack and a few clothes hangers.

Husband: "Who was that you were talking with outside for a whole hour,"

Wife: "Oh, that was Mrs. Jones. She didn't have time to come in."
