DURHAM

Mr. Joseph Atkinson of the second concession of Glenelg stands a good chance of being at the head of the list as a prolific sheep breeder, if we may judge by his increase during the present lambing season. Of his flock, five ewes gave birth to triplets, and of the fifteen, thirteen are still alive. Triplets are not uncommon, but we have no knowledge of ever before hearing of five sets from any one flock. This is certainly a big record, and we await with interest to hear of a better one.

A barn belonging to Mr. W. Styles and another to Mr. Hugh McLean, were burned this morning about half past eleven and it was with difficulty that the latter's house was saved. The fire started in the Styles barn and spread to the other structure. Mr. McLean, besides the building, loses a couple of tons of coal, some wood, and the furniture of his son, Hugh, now at Galt, which was stored in the building. The fire brigade made a good run, and had everything in readiness for action in less than fifteen minutes, but were handicapped by not having a supply of water close enough to be of any use.

While working in one of the cement bins loading cement on Monday morning about 8.30, Mr. James Donnelly had about as narrow an escape from death as he will ever again undergo and come through safely. He had about half the cement out of the bin when a "slide" occurred that buried him, and for nearly an hour he put up a fight for his life that many times seemed a losing contest. The cement at times was over his head and for a long time up to his ears and mouth, but by constantly scraping it away with his hands, he succeeded in preventing himself from being smothered. He was alone in the bin at the time and though men were working at the conveyors below him it was impossible to make them hear. He finally managed to get out, and while suffering no bodily injury, was badly burned about the face by the cement, so badly that for a day or so both eyes were closed and he was unable to see out of either eye. He is at present doing well and is able to be up and around, though it will be a few days before he is able to go to work again. Mr. Donnelly says the accident was through no carelessness on his part, as he knew all about the dangers of these "slides" but that he was caught so quickly as to not have a chance to escape. —Chronicle.

Visitors over the holiday season are: Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McNicol and Miss Gertrude Lyons, the Misses Binnie, Miss Lilian Wyville and her friend, Mr. Delabore, Mr. John Hanley and little Freddy Hodgen, from Toronto; Mr. Tom Hazen from Owen Sound; Miss Emily Acheson, North Bay; Miss Marjorie Acheson from Brewster's Lake, and the regular students from the different high schools.

The ladies of Proton met at the hospitable home of Mrs. Hugh Copeland and presented the Easter brides to be, Misses Ethel Ludlow and Edna Acheson, with a miscellaneous shower. The happy girs were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. A splendid luncheon was served and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The young ladies expressed their thanks in neat little speeches and desire through this column to still further express their approciation of the many kindnesses they have received.

Chard---Lawler

On March 24, the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lawler was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding, when their third eldest daughter, Mabel Estelle, was united in marriage to Mr. Leslie Chard of Flesherton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Forth, Methodist Minister, of Maxwell. To the strains of the wedding march, which was played by the bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Poole, and accompanied on the violin by her husband, the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, and took her place under an arch of evergreen and white bells. The bride's dress was of French blue duchess satin, and she wore a veil of silk chambray net made in cap effect. After congratulations and signing of the register all sat down to a well prepared dinner. The groom's gift to the bride was a cut glass fruit set and to the pianist a gold brooch. Among the other numerous gifts was a Queen Anne silver tea service, the gift of the groom's mother. The happy couple left on the morning train to visit friends in Toronto. The bride's travelling suit was of mannish blue serge with hat to match. After their return they will reside on their farm on the 4th line.
