INTELLIGENCE OF ELEPHANTS

An Incorrect Impression Has Been Formed as to This.

English writers who have dwelt in India assert that the many curious tales with reference to the superior intelligence of the elephant are apt to produce a distinctly incorrect impression. Like that of the horse, the intelligence of the elephant is said to have strange limitations.

There is an instance of authentic record in which the populace of a small town near Madras were frightened out of their wits by a runaway elephant which broke from its mahout's control and ran through the town, smashing everything that lay in its path—all because it had been frightened by the pattering of rain drops on its rider's umbrella.

An English official in Burma, on a tour of inspection, became tired of riding his elephant and procured a pony in one of the villages. He was careful to make sure that the pony was not afraid of elephants, but it never occured to him to ascertain whether or not the elephant might be afraid of ponies. Early the next morning he sent his baggage and servants off on the elephant with orders to halt for lunch at a village ten miles away, and when he had finished some work he followed on the pony. When a mile or so from the halting place, he saw the elephant hunching along in advance. The Englishman trotted up to hasten the mahout's pace. As he approached, the mahout began to gesticulate. The Englishman and his servants, who were Bengali, knew no Burmese, and the Burman knew no tongue but his own. The British officer guessed, of course, that something was the matter, and breaking into a gallop to see what it might be, he was astonished to see the elephant start off at a run. Three times the excited and angry mahout succeeded in stopping the beast after a run of a mile or so, and three times did the Englishman ride up to see what was the matter, only to observe with astonishment that the elephant rushed off each time.

Finally, the unhappy mahout steered the animal off the road into swampy ground, and thus shaking off the pursuit, plowed his way back on foot to the halting place, where he found an interpreter to explain that the elephant had been terrified by the pony's approach.

DREADED TO EAT.

A Quaker Couple's Experience.

How many persons dread to eat their meals, although actually hungry nearly all the time!

Nature never intended this should be so, for we are given a thing called appetite that should guide us as to what the system needs at any time and can digest.

But we get in a hurry, swallow our food very much as we shovel coal into the furnace, and our senses of appetite becomes unnatural and perverted. Then we eat the wrong kind of food or eat too much, and there you are—indigestion and its accompanying miseries.

An Eastern lady said:

"My husband and I have been sick and nervous for 15 or 20 years from drinking coffee—feverish, indigestion, totally unfit, a good part of the time, for work or pleasure. We actually dreaded to eat our meals. (Tea is just as injurious, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"We tried doctors and patent medicines that counted up into hundreds of dollars, with little if any benefit.

"Accidentally, a small package of Postum came into my hands. I made some according to directions, with surprising results. We both liked it and have not used any coffee since.

"The dull feeling after meals has left us and we feel better every way. We are so well satisfied with Postum that we recommend it to our friends who have been made sick and nervous and miserable by coffee." Name given upon request. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient, there's no waste, and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers—50-cup tin 30 cts., 100-cup tin 50 cts.

A 5-cup trial tin mailed for grocer's name and 2-cent stamp for postage. Canadian Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Windsor, Ont.

Precocious But Pertinent.

Anecdotes of the early manifestations of a distinguished mind are always interesting. This one shows the intellectual power, even in infancy, of William Robertson Smith, who later became one of the most learned Biblical scholars of Europe.

Talk was a passion with him, declare his biographers in the recently published "Life," but even in his very early years he insisted that it must be good talk. Nothing wearied him more than to listen to the conversation of the company that came to his father's manse when it was not of the improving sort, especially since he had to sit silent himself, according to the rule then strictly enforced of children.

It was on one of these occasions, when a reverend colleague had stayed long, and after having proved mercilessly, had at length departed, that Willy is said to have drawn his stool up to his father's knee.

"And now, papa," he said, looking up with the air of one whose endurance is at an end, "let us have some rational conversation."

It takes a sharp man to make a tool of a dull one.

PRIME MINISTER'S ANCESTRY.

Kentishmen Seem to Have It Over the Scots.

Premier R. L. Borden is, of course, the man of the moment in England. Apart from the innumerable letters which have appeared in the press from a regiment of supporters and dissentients, and the daily editorial battle of Tory and Liberal newspapers, there has been an animated discussion concerning his ancestry.

Perhaps it was the generally accepted idea that Scotsmen made Canada which encouraged one writer to claim Scotland as the native country of the Canadian Premier's ancestors; perhaps the writer only desired to exercise the faculty commonly credited to Scotsmen of claiming everything good when he described him as a "plain, strong man of Scottish descent." Anyway, the men of Kent were roused.

"No one," writes one man of Kent, "grudges Scotland any honor which she may legitimately claim, but men of Kent and Kentish men would be proud if it were proved that Canada's Premier was sprung from the loyal country which also produced Wolfe, the founder of British Canada."

Evidently the men of Kent will not relinquish their ground without effort to Scotland. They have compiled an irresistible genealogical tree, and "Osbertus de Borden" may easily rank for first place with "Henry of the White Plume," the designation so affectionately used by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's supporters in the Province of Quebec during the last election. No usual work of reference gives the detail with which an ardent Kentish man communicates the family history of the Bordens. He traces his lineage in the direct male line from one "Henry Borden of Borden," who lived and flourished in the fair County of Kent when Richard II. was King in A.D. 1380. "Osbertus de Borden," presumably of the same family, was a benefactor of Shoppey Monastery previous to 1234, when his name occurs in a charter of Henry III. William Borden, great-grandson of the above Henry, held lands in Borden and Headcorn. Fifth in descent from this William was Richard Borden, son of Matthew of Headcorn, who was born there in 1595, emigrated to New England in 1638, and died at Portsmouth, Rhode Island, in 1671. Richard's great-grandson, Samuel Borden, was the surveyor employed by the British Government to value the Acadian lands in Nova Scotia, where he acquired an extensive estate and died in 1778. His great-grandson, Robert Laird Borden, born at Grand Pre, Nova Scotia, is the present Prime Minister of Canada.

JAPANESE HEALTH RULES.

Printed and Widely Distributed by the Government.

The following rules for the general guidance of the people in health matters have been printed and widely distributed by the Japanese Government:

First—Spend as much time out of doors as possible. Bask much in the sun and take plenty of exercise. Take care that your respiration is always deep and regular.

Second—As regards meals, eat meat only once a day and let the diet be eggs, cereals and vegetables, fruits and fresh cows milk. Take the last named as much as possible. Masticate your food carefully.

Third—Take a hot bath every day and a steam bath once or twice a week if the heart is strong enough to bear it.

Fourth—Early to bed and early to rise.

Fifth—Sleep in a very dark and very quiet room, with windows open. Let the minimum of sleeping hours be six or six and one-half hours. In case of woman eight and one-half hours is advisable.

Sixth—Take one day of absolute rest each week in which you must refrain from even reading or writing.

Seventh—Try to avoid any outbursts of passion and strong mental stimulations. Do not tax your brain at the occurrence of inevitable incidents or of coming events. Do not say unpleasant things nor listen, if possible to avoid it, to disagreeable things.

Eighth—Be married! Widows and widowers should be married with the least possible delay.

Ninth—Be moderate in the consumption of even tea and coffee, not to say tobacco and alcoholic beverages.

Tenth—Avoid places that are too warm, especially steam heated and badly ventilated rooms.

HE COULD NOT SLEEP AT NIGHTS

TILL HE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Fred. Swanson, of Saskatchewan, sends a message of cheer to those who feel the weariness and discouragement that comes from broken rest.

Macklin, Sask., Jan. 13 (Special).—Those who suffer from sleepless nights and get up in the morning feeling tired and discouraged will find renewed hope in the statement made by Fred Swanson of this place. He could not sleep at nights. He discovered the cause. It was Kidney trouble. He discovered the cure. It is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes," Mr. Swanson says in an interview regarding his case, "I was troubled with my Kidneys for over a year, so bad that I could not sleep at nights. After using one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I found great relief. Four boxes removed all my pain and now I sleep well and I am as strong in my Kidneys as any man."

If the Kidneys are wrong the blood becomes clogged with impurities and natural rest is an impossibility. Strong, healthy Kidneys mean pure blood, new life all over the body and that delightful rest that is the sweetest thing in life. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make strong, healthy Kidneys.

WEDDING STOPPED.

Crowd Mistakes Reason and Attacks Relative of Bride.

The wedding of a soldier of the Northumberland Fusiliers in St. Andrew's Church, Newcastle, England, was suddenly stopped after the bride and bridegroom and the wedding party had assembled in the church.

The reason for this step was that the officiating clergyman suddenly discovered that the banns had been published on only two Sundays instead of three. Both the bride and the bridegroom were much upset.

An even more unpleasant incident followed. A crowd of women who were waiting outside the church imagined that the postponement had been caused by a woman relative of the bride, and they violently attacked this woman as she left the church.

The wedding guests, knowing the true state of affairs, went to the assistance of the victim, and a free fight took place on the church steps.

Had Pains in Back, Side, and Chest

Suffered for Weeks, But Finally Found a Quick, Sure Relief.

Cured Quickly by "Nerviline."

No stronger proof of the wonderful merit of Nerviline could be produced than the letter of Miss Lucy Mosher, who for years has been a well-known resident of Windsor, N. S.

"I want to add my unsolicited testimony to the efficacy of your wonderful liniment, 'Nerviline.' I consider it the best remedy for a cold, sore throat, wheezing tightness in the chest, etc., and can state that for years our home has never been without Nerviline. I had a dreadful attack of cold, that settled on my chest, that fourteen different remedies couldn't break up. I rubbed on Nerviline three times a day, used Nerviline as a gargle, and was completely restored. I have induced dozens of my friends to use Nerviline, and they are all delighted with its wonderful power over pain and sickness.

"You are at liberty to publish this signed letter, which I hope will show the way to health to many that need to use Nerviline."

(Signed) "LUCY MOSHER."

All sorts of aches, pains, and sufferings—internal and external—yield to Nerviline. Accept no substitute. Large family size bottles, 50c.; trial size, 25c., at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

CITY OF SURPRISING GROWTH.

São Paulo Has Some Ambitious Schemes.

How much do you know about the South American city of São Paulo? This Brazilian town, the capital of the great coffee growing state of the same name, now has an estimated population of 380,000; and it is anticipated that within fifteen years it will reach the million mark. Although 4,000 new houses were erected in the city during the last year, the demand for houses greatly exceeds the supply, owing to the rapid increase of population, and rents are exorbitant. A magnificent opera-house, constructed by the municipality, was opened last year with a brilliant season of Italian opera. The old cathedral is to be torn down to give place to a new one, which will cost $2,000,000, and will be one of the notable churches of the world. Finally a vast scheme of city improvements has been instituted, under the advice of M. Bonvard, architect for the city of Paris. It will include splendid boulevards and viaducts, asphalted streets, and a public garden at an estimated total cost of $20,000,000, toward which the state government has already appropriated $3,500,000.

It Is.

SHAM JEWELLERY IN BRITAIN

Everybody's Wearing It From the Queen Down.

All London, from Buckingham Palace to Whitechapel, has gone crazy over sham jewellery and everybody wears it from Queen Mary downwards. Some of it is, of course, exceedingly pretty, both designs and settings being dainty. Her Majesty purchased many effective trifles, especially earrings, of this kind for Christmas and New Year presents. Some have enamel inset, but several have stones and are such palpable imitations that they would not deceive the most innocent in jewel lore. The truth is, this jewellery is merely pretty and often artistic rubbish. All the grande dames of the moment, who go to fancy balls are laden with spurious precious stones. Cultured connoisseurs in everything beautiful wear the most unmistakable bead necklaces, which they order by the dozen to "go" with each different colored gown in their wardrobes. This passion for sham jewels is due to the anxiety so many women have experienced for the safety of priceless heirlooms, lest they fall into the hands of the clever jewel thieves who of late has been particularly busy.

One well-known countess boasts that she went to Court last year wearing sham stones, and says that her "gems" caused far more sensation among her friends and in the press than the real ones ever occasioned. She adds that she intends to go again to the Court of St. James' decorated with the same "treasures." "Life," she adds, "is far too short to be made ill with anxiety over the heirlooms of any house on the face of the earth."

Man's Value Dependent on Certain Mental Qualities.

It is sometimes said that in the modern factory men have been turned into mere machines, and labor dehumanized. But the assertion is the exact antithesis of the truth. In the modern factory, says Engineering, it is the mental qualities of the employees on which a demand is made, and it is for this reason that the reduction, which has been effected in the working hours usual a century ago, has been reasonable and justifiable. A miner, sawyer will spend twelve men hours a day in splitting up a sheet, muscle a balk of timber as much as 42 inches square. Practically no mental effort is demanded, from him during 99 per cent. of his working hours. So far as this portion of his work is concerned, he is a mere machine, and an ineffective one at that. His mind may therefore wander to other themes than the matter in hand, whilst his puny strength often fails to move his saw through a stroke of more than 6 or 7 inches. Labor of this kind may well be considered dehumanized, since it makes little demand on qualities other than those possessed by the brute creation. On the other hand, the sawyer in a modern sawmill must keep all his attention riveted to his occupation, since a moment's lapse may lead to irreparable injury to either himself or the work in hand. The whole of his value as a workman is thus dependent upon the possession of certain mental qualities, the exercise of which involves a definite nervous strain. Every year, in fact, sees the introduction of machinery, which more and more relieves the workman of duties which can be equally well effected automatically, and increases, on the other hand, the demand on his care and attention.
