A glut of strawberries and other small fruit is predicted for Ontario. The canners seem so confident of it that they have declined to make any contracts this year with growers, believing that they can get all they want on the open market at low prices. The shortage of sugar is another reason given by the canners for deciding against making contracts.

The County Council did one grand piece of work last week when they took over the Valley Rood from Kimberley to the Collingwood gravel as a county highway, and from Hoy's corner to Eugenia. This will make a comparatively level highway from Flesherton to Kimberley and eventually join up with the road from Kimberley to Thornbury. It will make it possible for the valley to produce its best in fruits and give an outlet for truck traffic to catch all trains at Flesherton or Thornbury. It will place the Kimberley valley on the same plane as the St. Catharines district, so far as market facilities for fruit is concerned. Watch Kimberlsy valley real estate jump in price for the next few years.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Charles H. Smith, who was drowned June 23rd, 1916.

THERE ARE NO DEAD

He is not dead, he has but passed
Beyond the mists that blind us here,
Into the new and larger life
Of that serener sphere.
And ever near us, though unseen,
His dear, immortal spirit treads,
For all the boundless universe
Is life—there are no dead!

Charged With Neglect Of County Machinery

Advertiser Report

Speaking on the report of the County Roads Committee as presented to the County Council, Mr. Boyd objected to what had been done with the second outfit. At a previous session it had been decided to move the machinery to Flesherton and not leave it at Dundalk, where, he charged, "it was fooling away the county's money." He further stated that Mr. Hockridge got permission to use the county machinery and when he was through left it by the roadside all winter. Mr. Boyd charged, "to my knowledge even the magneto was left out all winter. The charge is denied through the press, but no one denies that the machinery was left after it was taken from the storage built by Mr. Purvis. In April Mr. Purvis went out and found the magneto on the traetor and the radiator burst with the frost. That is no way to treat the county after being given a privilege."

Mr. Hockridge said that he had received permission to use the machinery on the road that needed repair badly, and the machinery was in use until on in January, when the deep snow made it impossible to return the machinery. He himself had covered the county's property with a special tent and had seen that everything was in good shape. Regarding the magneto, he said it had been kept in a housd and put back just before Mr. Purvis came. Anyway, the magneto or the radiator had never worked right.

Mr. Boyd objected to the statement that the machinery had been in bad shape when it left the county's hands. The foreman, Mr. McKenzie, who was helping Mr. Hockridge to deny any culpability, had toid the Warden and himself that the tractor was working beautifully the last day it was used.

Mr. McTavish stated that he saw the tractor and the radiator with seven pipes burst where the water must have been left in. The magneto too must have been left out where it would get wet, for no harm would come to it from cold alone. "I think the man who told Mr. Hockridge that he took the magneto off didn't know what he was doing—he must have taken a wheel off If Mr. Hockridge got the machinery to do a certain piece of work, he should have been man enough to return the machinery at the stipulated time of June 10th while it was not returned yet. Robert Purvis was waiting for the machinery to do work for the county, and has to lay men off because of the delay."

Mr. Calder in referring to the "tempest in the teapot," said that things had got now to such a state that the servants and officials were taking sides and he recommended a wholesale discharge. He went over the whole affair and ended by saying that it was very deplorable that the matter had been aired in the Press.

The Warden understood that originally the machinery at Dundalk was to be moved to Flesherton as soon as the roads were ready in the spring. Later from Toronto he and Mr. Boyd had given orders that the machinery was to go to Rock Mills but the Proton people refused to let it go. The committee then agreed that it would be left until June 10th. Then further road had been graded and he thought there was still two weeks' work to be done. The Warden agreed that the machinery hed been all right in the fall and concluded by saying, "I think undue advantage has been taken of holding the machinery in Proton."
