BOILED DOWN

"I thought your wife's name was Elizabeth?"

"So it is."

"Then why do you call her Peggy?"

"Short for Pegasa."

"What has that to do with it?"

"Why, Pegasa is feminine for Pegasus."

"Well?"

"Well, Pegasus is an immortal steed."

"What of that?"

"Not so loud! She's in the next room. You see, an immortal steed is an everlasting nag—so there you are."

Partner: "I'm not. I'm her mother."

A GREAT PUZZLE TO CAREFUL PARENTS

One of the greatest puzzles to the careful parent is to know just what medicine to give the little ones. When the child falls ill with gripping pains; is seized with cold or fever, refuses food or vomits what he has taken, when he cries a great deal and cannot get the sleep so necessary to the growing child, the parent is in a quandry. What is to be done on such occasions. As often as not there is not a suitable medicine in the house. The puzzle is what to give him to set him right quickly.

It is to meet such emergencies that Baby's Own Tablets were designed. These pleasant little Tablets quickly reduce fever, break up colds, relieve constipation and indigestion and allay teething pains. They quiet the nerves and promote restful health-restoring sleep. They are guaranteed absolutely harmless and safe for even the youngest and most delicate baby.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Annoying Bugs

River Jungles of Bolivia Hold Plague of Malignant Insects

In the jungle along the River Beni, in Bolivia, are found some of the most malignant blood-sucking insects in the world.

Here lives the apasana, a bird-eating spider, attaining a length of from eight to ten inches, whose poisonous bite is sometimes fatal. It has a body resembling a ball of wool, with black hairs on its body and red ones on its legs. Its eyes are black and quick moving, with a most malevolent expression. It is very active and jumps about two feet at a single bound.

The palo santo ant, a fire ant, which lives in hollow-stemmed trees, is common here. A touch on this tree brings down a shower of the ants, whose bites feel like red-hot coals, the sting lasting for hours.

Other plagues are the zaputama, an almost invisible insect which lies in the grass, bites the legs of men and causes an almost intolerable itching; the guanaco, a bug which lives in the sand and whose bite is usually fatal; the baregui, a sand fly with a painful sting; sweat bees, which suck the perspiration from the hair; the anopheles or malaria-carrying mosquito, and wasps, ticks and jiggers.

TO THE MOTHERS OF ALL PALE GIRLS

If Your Daughter Shows Signs of Anaemia a Tonic is Needed.

Anaemia is simply a lack of blood. It is one of the most common and at the same time most dangerous troubles from which growing girls suffer. It is common because the blood so often becomes impoverished during development, when girls often overwork and overstudy. It is dangerous because of the stealthiness of its approach and because of its tendency to grow steadily worse. Every growing girl should occasionally take a tonic to ward off this insidious trouble. It is because of their powerful action in rebuilding the blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made a world-wide reputation. The case of Miss Claire Sullivan, Pincher Creek, Alta., amply proves the value of this medicine. Miss Sullivan says: "During my school days I suffered a great deal from thin and watery blood. I was continually weak and tired; my appetite was poor, my sleep unrefreshing and I was troubled with backaches. To make matters worse I was attacked with acute appendicitis and the operation left me in a very weakened state. My mother, learning of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, had me take them and after using them for some time I can say the result was simply wonderful, as they completely restored my health, and now when opportunity occurs I always recommend these pills to weak, pale girls suffering as I did."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To Raze St. Lazare Prison

In the three-cornered struggle between French antiquarians, the Ministry of Justice, and humanitarians and hygienists the last have won, and the Ministry having failed to suggest improvements to their satisfaction it has reluctantly consented to the demolition of the notorious women's prison of St. Lazare at the junction of the Rue de Faubourg and the Boulevard de Magenta, Paris.

The old prison, some buildings of which date back to the twelfth century, was first used as a leper hospital, then as an abbey, and then as a seminary—all before the French Revolution. During the Revolution it was used to house debtors and political prisoners—some quite famous. It became a woman's prison in 1868, and at one time no fewer than 7,822 women crowded in its tiny cells and stuffy dormitories. Within recent years it guarded, while awaiting trial, the beautiful Mme. Steinheil alleged to have been perpetrator of the "studio crime"; Mme. Caillaux, wife of the former Premier, who slew Gaston Calmette in the office of Le Figaro, and the Anarchist girl, Germaine Berton, who shot down Marius Plateau in the office of Leon Daudet.

The principal defenders of the old prison have been the antiquarians; its principal enemies, the hygienists. Some months ago the latter succeeded in having the Ministry remove all the prisoners to other places of detention. Now M. Paul Fleurot, President of the Consell General of the Seine Department, has submitted a proposal that the site of St. Lazare should be used for a new boys' school. This the Government has accepted, transferring the historic edifice to the Ministry of Education, which will immediately begin its demolition.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Barefoot Tropics

Earliest Footgear, However, Is Traced in Warm Lands, Such as Egypt and Irak

Washington.—Failing to wear shoes has been against the law in Portugal since October 1. Because of the many adults who have been in the habit of going barefoot, in the cities as well as in the country districts, the authorities, according to dispatches, see difficulties in enforcing the new statute.

"This unusual law draws attention to the great number of people in the world who still go unshod," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic Society, "and to the varied kinds of footwear in use from the polar regions to the tropics. The tropical countries are the strongholds of the great unshod. In Africa, parts of Central America, the northern portion of South America and in southern Asia, the majority of the human feet are devoid of covering through the seasons and from the cradle to the grave. In the cooler parts of the earth, both rigorous weather and the greater activity of the people have made foot-coverings necessary during the winter months at least.

"It is in the warm regions just outside the tropics, such as Egypt and Mesopotamia, that we can trace civilization farthest into the past. There the slaves and lower classes could go comfortably throughout the year without protecting their feet, but the use of shoes for the upper classes developed at an early date. The primary consideration was to protect the bottoms of the feet. Therefore, the sandal was the first type of shoe to be invented. It was merely a flat piece of some protective material bound loosely to the foot. Since wood was difficult to obtain both in the Nile and in the Tigris-Euphrates Valleys, sandals of crudely plaited straw and reeds were first used. Later the Egyptians made sandals and light shoes of beautiful workmanship from leather and kid.

"In Palestine the ancient Hebrews wore sandals made of a heavy piece of leather, of cloth, or, less frequently, of wood. A few of the latter, for rough use, were shod with iron. The Greeks and Romans, starting with a simple sandal, improved on it in time by adding edges which turned up along the thongs passed over the top of the foot and around the ankle, foreshadowing the closed shoe. The thongs became sheets of leather and shoes and boots were born in Europe.

"In central and northern Europe the cold winters made it necessary, of course, to cover the feet and legs when out-of-doors. In early times, crude sacks of skins were made. Grass was stuffed in under the soles of the feet and around them to add warmth. Later, well-made boots of leather replaced this crude footwear.

"The greatest single factor in the development of modern shoes was the invention of shoe-making machinery. American inventors were first in this field and, as a result, the United States leads the world in shoe production. In 1926 more than 323,000,000 pairs of boots and shoes were turned out by the factories of the United States. This one year's production was worth nearly $1,000,000,000."
