A rural telephone wire came in contact with one of the high tension hydro wires running to Arthur during a heavy wind storm and Richard Winters got the scare of his life. A large ball of blue fire spurted out of his telephone, completely wrecking the instrument and started a fire that took a good deal of work to control.

Just after the Wilson's oatmeal mills, which have been closed for a week to take stock, commenced operations again on Monday, Wilfred Stewart, one of the employees, attempted to fix a belt which had come off the pulleys, when his hand got caught in the belt, with the result that his arm was twisted off at the elbow and he had some ribs broken. He was taken to the Alexandra Hospital, where he lies in a critical condition.—Grand Valley Star.
