The married and single men had another hockey spasm on the rink here Thursday night of last week. This game was a hummer and resulted in a tie, although ten minutes' overtime was played. One man had his scalp laid open for a couple of inches and all the players came out of the fray with bruises more or less severe. The score stood 3 to 3, when everybody decided to have the game "concluded in our next."

One of the Owen Sound papers announces that a second agricultural representative is likely to be appointed for Grey county, owing to the long distances it is necessary for the one representative to travel. Just so. But why not appoint a representative in every town and village in the county? This would give each representative still less ground to cover and practically no time would be lost in travel. The only preventative would be the additional cost, of course, and as the county pays half the salary somebody might object to the additional outlay. Still, what with taxation of various kinds and the good road problem on hand, people have no doubt been educated up to a point of submissive hands up and deliver, when a little more might not raise their ire very much more than it is raised now.

A Close Call

The following item from the Bruce Herald and Times of Walkerton refers to a Flesherton boy, son of Mrs Andrew McAulay of this place :

On returning home from Cargill on Wednesday afternoon of last week Mr. John McAuley of the Bell Telephone staff, found his wife lying unconscious on the floor. A doctor, who was hurriedly summoned, succeeded with much difficulty in reliving the lady. It seems that Mrs McAuley had partaken of some canned salmon the previous night, and although she wasn't feeling the best when Mr MMcAuley left Wednesday morning, nothing of a serious nature was feared Shortly after his departure, however, she became delirious, and before help could be summoned she collapsed to the floor. As only two very young children are in the home, the unfortunate woman laid for several hours in a prostrate condition and it was only after the arrival of her husband that aid was secured. The physician in attendance has diagnosed her trouble as ptomaine poisoning, brought about by the eating of the salmon. Although in a serious condition after the mishap, she is now on the mend but, considering the nature of the malady would seem to have had a close call.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Susan R. Pedlar, who passed away three years ago today, Feb. 19, 1918.

The God who gave has taken ;
To heaven our treasure has gone ;
Although our hearts be broken,
Thy will, oh God, is done.
