She had complained the night before of not feeling well, so was told not to rise early in the morning. Monday morning Mrs Kelly went to her door and knocked. Getting no response she walked in and spoke but received no reply and on investigation was found to be dead. She had dressed ready to come down stairs and apparently had felt weak so sat down on the side of the bed, in which position she was found with her head resting on her hand. She was born 52 years ago on the old homestead on Stone's Line and was the second eldest of the family. Besides her aged father and stepmother she leaves two brothers and three sisters living. She was laid to rest in the Flesherton cemetery on Tuesday afternoon. Rev Mr Belfry conducted the services at the house and grave.

PRICEVILLE

The Referendum vote on Monday, April 18 was fairly successful at this poll, No. 5 Artemesia, 154 "dry" and 23 "wet" Quite a number interested in prohibition worked hard all day. Some kept the street in vicinity of the hall and kindly gave voters any information they required and the resident clergyman kept their cars at the service of the voters, some of whom were aged and infirm but wished to cast a temperance vote. Many ladies and others out a distance in the country who would find it very difficult to come out were conveyed to the poll and back home in a comfortable car. The temperance people are now very thankful for the result at the polls, which, we presume will smash the big idol in the Ontario temple of the "wets" and possibly cause their high priest Haverson to mourn in sack cloth and ashes!

The Priceville U.F.O. club shipped a car of live stock on Thursday last.
