Last week The Advance inadvertently made an error in announcing the returns for the vote in Artemesia. The word Wet was used instead of Dry, making the result totally wrong. The Dry majority in Artemesia was 644. This error was caused by setting the type without having written out the copy and it was slipped into the "form" without noticing the error. A printer has his troubles, and they are manifold.

It seems to us that the coming census could well have been dispensed with. The cost of this census will mount up to more than one and a half million dollars. With our enormous taxation and more required, it appears to us that the expenditure of this money in a mere effort to find out how many people live in the country is a foolish squandering of much needed money. Our governments do not yet appear to have arrived at a proper conception of the necessity for entrenchment in public expenditures. At least they show no evidence of having discerned anything of the kind.

A case tried at Division Court here last week was of interest to threshers and farmers. S. Batcheler threshed for A. Neilson last fall. In taking his machine on to Neilson's premises it was found necessary for the latter to assist with his team in getting the machine on the premises and out again. In attempting settlement Neilson deducted nine dollars for this service. Batcheler then sued for $24, the full amount of his claim, and this was allowed together with costs against Neilson. The counter claim of nine dollars was not allowed, the judge holding that it was Neilson's duty to assist in getting the machine into his own premises and out again without remuneration.

A gentleman named Albert Woodruff, 735 Nicla St., Kamloops, B. C., writes The Advance asking for information about the members of his own family, or the Sproules, Lennoxes or Kerrs who lived at Maxwell about 50 years ago. The box social in the town hall on Monday night, given by the baseball boys, was not well patronized by the male population, but the sum of $77 was realized. Miner's Sanctuary

It is well worth one's time to visit "Jack" Miner's this spring. At the present there are thousands of wild geese at his park at Kingsville, Ont. He has several acres devoted to a baseball park or diamond with a row of beautiful evergreens and wonderful bird houses, and at the back of his beautiful new home are hundreds of rose arbors and two ponds. The front pond, the public are allowed to visit, but the back pond no one is allowed to visit, for the geese there are wild. On Sunday there were several hundreds of people there, and some one or something frightened the geese on the back pond and several thousand geese flew in the air. Mr. Miner came running to the back pond, and what he did no one knows, but in a few moments the geese were settled again. It takes twenty five bushels of corn each day to feed these geese.

Better Keep Silent

There isn't much use in talking to unreasonable persons. You can't argue with them, reasoning is useless, and to convince them is wholly out of the question. It's foolish to get into discussion with a person who knows too much. It will never bring you anywhere unless to the conclusion that two fools engaged in a wasteful, wordy warfare. It's hard, we'll admit, but it would be a saving of half the energy to keep silent and let the other fellow wear himself out in talking, and often in talking but saying nothing. It happens frequently that great talkers say but little.—Durham Chronicle.
