The Young Folks.

WHAT IS THE PRICE?

What is the price of the boy who stands
Noble and fair as a god of old,
Reaching to life his innocent hands
Dreaming the dream that lips never told?
What is his price, kind father, say?
What is his price, good mother, I pray?
But the runmseller says: "To make him my prey,
I bid one thousand dollars!"

What is the price of the daughter who leans
On the arm which supports her, noble and fair,
A being of beauty, one of earth's queens,
Pure as a lily, glorious and rare?
What is her price? Oh, ask of thy heart,
Parent who loves her wherever thou art!
But the runmseller says: "For her in my mart,
I bid one thousand dollars!"

Isaac.

DOES THE EYE SEE?

The question asked in the headline may sound odd to you if you have never taken the trouble to give the subject serious thought, but I venture the broad statement that you are not able to answer the question "offhand." It is an admitted fact. I must confess, that the eye is the "organ of vision," yet there is but little doubt, even in the minds of opticians and physiologists, that the phenomena of "seeing" is chiefly mental—in other words, that it is the mind and not the eye that "sees." How often have you seen a friend who seemingly was engaged in looking intently at some object on the table, at the opposite side of the room or at some picture, who on being aroused from his day dream would confess that he was "looking at nothing in particular." The explanation of the fact that he saw "nothing in particular" is plain enough if properly set forth. It is because his mind was busy with other times and scenes.

Faces, bits of wayside scenery, etc., were being presented to view in the panorama of the mind and the "mind's eye"—or mental vision—was engaged in eagerly scanning pictures of impressions made thereon months, years or scores of years before. Another test of this mind vision theory is to shut your eyes tightly and then ply the brain to the task of recalling faces and forms that have not been seen by the eye for years. And, again, if you want to know whether your companion looked at his watch with his brain or his eyes, ask him the time of day after he puts the timepiece in his pocket.—St. Louis Republic

DEBT.

A Japanese proverb says that a friend at hand is better than all your relations at a distance; so a little money in your pocket is better than all the credit in the world. It is astonishing sometimes how much a little money will buy, and equally surprising how a bill reaches a hundred dollars and yet we may have little to show for it. One purchasing on credit buys rashly and generously; he does not think of pay day, which seems far off; certain, like death, but as remote and intangible. It is so easy to buy things in this way, one hardly stops to count the cost; by this method it almost seems as if all of the things we covet grew on trees, and all we had to do was to put out our hands; we seem to be fed and clothed as if by miracle, and it is surely a miracle if we pay the bills in due season. To contract a bill is to contract an obligation, to give another the advantage. We believe that half the forgeries and embezzlements in the country are the direct result of debt. Half the paralysis and heart disease which end men's lives in their holiday may be traced to the worry consequent upon debt; worry kills more people than work, or love, or any disease. It writes wrinkles in the face, it discolors the skin makes the hair fallout, and encourages dyspepsia.

SNAILS AS A LUXURY

We are at this season reminded of the fact that snails were formerly an article of considerable consumption in Great Britain. It is not generally known that a considerable trade is still carried on between the Lincolnshire fens and Covent Garden market in this commodity. They are sold at 12 cents a quart. It is said "that in the manufacture of cream they are much employed, bruised in milk and boiled." A retired milkman pronounced this plan the most successful imitation possible. "One man's meat is another man's poison," and while the poorest Briton of the present day would generally regard the snail with disgust as an article of food, a poor Frenchman or Spaniard looks forward to the special holidays when snails are eaten. When snails are first gathered from hedges, it is a necessary precaution to starve them at once, as they often feed on poisonous plants and this is reproduced to the detriment of the consumer.

MEDITERRANEAN TIME

Noticing that my watch did not agree with the clocks in the court house tower and the church steeple, I asked the colored man who was driving us around what kind of time they had in Savannah.

"We has two kin a o' time hyah, sah, de railway time an' de Mediterranean time."

"The what?"

"De time dat de kyars comes in an' goes out by, sah, an' de Mediterranean time, sah, which am de city time, de same as de sun."

"We call it meridian time up North," I suggested.

"I reckon dat may be so, sah, de Northern folks am a trifle quare in what dey calls things, dey have quare ways, sah, dey shorely do." Chicago Record

ORIGIN OF ENVELOPES

The institution of payment for the carriage of letters and envelope dates, as far as can be ascertained, from the reign of Louis XIV., at which time Steur de Valfyer organized a service of private post and placed his letter boxes at the street corners. The envelopes for these letters were bought at special offices. In the Egerton collection of manuscripts at the British Museum there is an envelope resembling our present ones, which holds a letter from Mme. De Pompadour to the Duchesse d'Arquillon, dated 1760. There is also exhibited an envelope of coarse paper, opening at both ends, addressed by Frederick the Great to an English general in his service. It is dated Potsdam, July 28, 1776.

ONE USEFUL POODLE.

A lady who kept one of those curly poodle dogs lost her pet, and called upon a detective to find it. The next day the officer came with the dog, which was very wet and dirty. The lady was overjoyed, and asked forty silly questions, among others:

"Where did you find the dear darling?"

"Why, marm," said the officer, "a fellow had tied him to a pole and was washing windows with him."

Why Not You?

When thousands of people are taking Hood's Sarsaparilla to overcome the weakness and languor which are so common at this season, why are you not doing the same? When you know that Hood's Sarsaparilla has power to cure rheumatism, dyspepsia and all diseases caused by impure blood, why do you continue to suffer? Hood's cures others, why not you?

Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient. 25c.

Summer Comes.

With the flowers and sunshine. Birds pour out their melody and the chirp of the grasshopper will soon tempt the fisherman to stretch forth his hands and grasp the shadow of his flight. The playful mosquito will do her nicest to soothe weary pleasure seekers into the realms of slumber, and the stinging, aching corns will remove every semblance of comfort, make and the songs of the birds, and evoke cloudiness in the soul, that even the brightest sunshine cannot dispel. Corns are thorns in the flesh, but Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor removes them in twenty-four hours. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor is the best.

It will pay you to practice the art of love making on your horses. The more they love you the better service they will give.

Suddenly Attacked.

Children are often attacked suddenly by painful and dangerous colic, cramps, diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, etc. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is a prompt and sure cure which should always be kept in the house.

Severe colds are easily cured by the use of Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup, a medicine of extraordinary penetrating and healing properties. It is acknowledged by those who have used it as being the best medicine sold for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs, and all affections of the throat and chest. Its agreeableness to the taste makes it a favorite with ladies and children.

Physicians

prescribe Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites because they find their patients can tolerate it for a long time, as it does not upset the stomach nor derange the digestion like the plain oil.

Scott's Emulsion is as much easier to digest than the plain oil as milk is easier to digest than butter. Besides, the fish-fat taste is taken out of the oil, and it is almost palatable. The way sickly children, emaciated, anæmic and consumptive adults, gain flesh on Scott's Emulsion is very remarkable.

DEADLY CANCER CURED BY B.B.B.

HERE IS THE PROOF.

Messrs. T. Milburn & Co.

Sirs: About four years ago I was taken sick with stomach trouble. I consulted several leading local physicians, all of whom pronounced my disease incurable cancer of the stomach, and told me I had not long to live. Two physicians attending me gave me up to die. Through reading your advertisement, and by advice of friends, I tried your Burdock Blood Bitters and I am happy to say that after using one bottle I was able to leave my bed which I had been confined to for a long time. I am thankful now to state that B. B. B. cured my disease which baffled the doctors, and I am firmly convinced that B. B. B. saved my life.

Gratefully yours,

Vacation Time

is at hand and is gladly welcomed by all, especially those whose duties in life have caused them to greatly run down their system to meet the requirements physical and mental, forced upon them. With these and others, it is important, whether at home, at the sea shore or in the country, that some thought be given to diet, and as further assistance to Nature, a good building up medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla had best be resorted to. Why not take Hood's Sarsaparilla now?

Man dressed in a little brief authority is apt to find the jacket several sizes too small for him.

Agitation in the world of homœopathic medicine has been as very soul of progress as in politics and religion. The difficulties of opinion and the individuality of men have been parent to the disagreements by which the standard of these bodies have been elevated. So with most of our famous preparations, foremost in illustration of which truth stands the world famous remedy to general debility and languor "Quinine Wine," and which, when obtainable in its genuine strength, is a miraculous creator of appetite, vitality and stamina. Last, to the general fertility of the system Quinine Wine, and its improvement, has from the first discovery of the great virtues of Quinine as a medical agent, been one of the most thoroughly discussed remedies ever opened to the public. It is one of the great tonics and natural life giving stimulants which the medical profession have been compelled to recognize and prescribe. Messrs. Northrop & Lyman, of Toronto, have given to the preparation of their pure Quinine Wine the great care due to its importance, and the standard excellence of the article which they offer to the public, comes into the market purged of all the defects which skilful observation and scientific opinion has pointed out in less perfect preparations of the past. All druggists sell it.

WINSOME RELIGION

Is your religion winsome? Does it charm and attract? Does it show itself in a pleasant face, a cheerful smile, gentle tones, courteous manners? Is it kindly and thoughtful for the comfort of others, willing to serve, slow to push personal claims, quick to sympathize and help? Or is it sour and hard, grim and frowning, dominated by petty gossip and jealousies, self asserting and domineering, driving away more than it draws. Look into this matter. Carefully consider this question. See whether or not you are properly representing Christ.

ADVICE TO CAMPERS-OUT.

In camping out do not encumber yourself with useless baggage of branches. Take salt pork and bacon and save the fat to fry fish and hard tack with. An iron oven and a supply of grocers' wooden dishes come in handy.

As soon as camp is made keep up a big fire of hardwood until you have a good bed of hot ashes to bake beans with. The party should take turns cooking. It is an old saying that too many cooks spoil the broth, and the adage never fails to be realized in camp.

Fried hard-tack or warm water biscuits is an old army luxury. Soak your hard tack in water about five minutes, and before to leave your bacon very hot.

Duck breasts fried in pork fat or bacon are fetching and the rest of the bird makes quite a good stew or broth.

Partridge, if roasted, should have a thin slice of salt pork or bacon pinned to the breast or it will become quite dry.

To cook fish in hot ashes, remove the innards and fills and cut off the tail, leaving the scales on. Roll the fish up in two layers of heavy moistened wrapping or express paper, and bury it about an inch under the ashes. Leave it an hour with a small fire on top of it. When you take it out, cut down the back, skin paper and fish and scales all come off together, leaving a fish better cooked than can be done in any other manner. Golden Days.

JAPANESE MORALIZING.

An English teacher in a Japanese school discovered, by giving out subjects for composition, that the pupils had been trained to find a moral in everything, animate and inanimate. Mr. Hearn, in his "Glimpses of Unfamiliar Japan," gives a few specimens of the moral ideas evoked from the native students by subjects for English composition. One boy thus wrote on "Mosquitoes":

"On summer nights we hear the sound of faint voices and little things come and sting our bodies violently. We call them ka in English "mosquitoes." I think the sting is useful for us, because if we begin to sleep the ka shall come and sting us, uttering a small voice. Then we shall be brought back to study by the sting."

To another pupil was assigned the botan (Japanese peony) for a composition, and he wrote:

"The botan is large and beautiful to see, but it has a disagreeable smell. This should make us remember that what is only outwardly beautiful in human society should not attract us. To be attracted by beauty only may lead us into fearful and fatal misfortune. Vermont Chronicle

THE DAYS OF SLAVERY.

Who tells me the days of slavery are past? There are other kinds than that of the negro. We are more or less slaves to some habits and under bondage to them as surely as ever human being was to a human taskmaster, not always habits that show plainly like drinking, smoking, swearing, but hidden ones perhaps known only to ourselves. Procrastination has a hold on me, an inclination to plan faster than I can accomplish, and put by till some future time, until at last I find that future packed, stacked and crowded so that I am at my wits end what to do and what not. Again, I am a slave to impulse. I incline to drop what I am doing at the first desire to do some other thing, which at times gets me into trouble, something that should have been finished is not, and I am reminded of my mother's remark many years ago: "Your bump of stickiveness is small and will some day get you into trouble." Let us look within and see what slave holders we can destroy and thus help to make this world brighter and better.

Nettie F. Johnson.

IRRIGATING WITH FRUIT CANS

Turning water upon the surface of the soil to dry, but if watering is very liable to bake it, so that the effect of watering is lost. I mulch the bottoms of old fruit cans and sink one in each hill of tomatoes, cucumbers, or other plants. Water can then be turned into the can from which it will be conveyed at once to the roots of the plants, as illustrated, without a chance for the surface of the ground to become baked. The can being deep, there will be no drying out of the hill because of its presence.

FEATHERED WHISPERERS

In every country district one may find favorite roosting places. Robins and crows are in these days the most conspicuous for the gregarious habit that leads some birds to gather in one bit of woodland every night. Roosts where thousands of robins congregated every night thousands were actually counted by one patient taking observer have been described in various publications devoted to birds. Only a few bird lovers can hope to find such opportunities for the study of the night habits of birds and of those who have had the opportunity not one has ventured to swing a hammock among the trees and await the the comedies and tragedies that very likely have place there.

For birds dreams are made do. They tumble off the perch incredible, roll out of bed. They frame themselves enough to imagine that a murderous robber is among them and the robber often does come in the shape of a silent winged, big eyed owl.
