The carrying of mail from the station, which has been faithfully conducted by W. Moore for several years past, has been taken over by Bert Fawcett of the Flesherton livery. Mr. Moore still continues his express and passenger business.

The following item appeared in The Globe of June 30, 1871, just 50 years ago, which goes to prove that Flesherton is exactly 50 years behind the times. "Three flower beds were destroyed on Pembroke street last night. Depredations of this sort are numerous and will be as long as cows are allowed to wander where they please through the streets of Toronto."

A change has been made in the road building on this section of the county highway by the manager, Mr. Nichol. The crushed stone has been discarded and replaced by gravel, watered and rolled. The village gave the road makers a demonstration this spring on the excellence of a rolled gravel road and the demonstration has evidently borne fruit. The rolled gravel appears to be fully as satisfactory as the crushed stone and comes considerably cheaper.

A near fatality occurred at Wasaga Beach on Friday last when Geo. Stewart, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Stewart of Flesherton, experienced all the nauseous thrills of going through a drowning experience to the unconscious stage, when he was pulled out by Mr. Royal of Creemore, a fellow bather. George got beyond his depth and went under. He was unconscious when pulled out and was brought home, and was confined to his bed for a couple of days. It was an exceedingly close call and George is to be congratulated that he escaped with his life as he did.

The sun has been giving us a taste of tropical heat during the past week. The thermometer for several days flirted around 90 to 95. The weather was ideal for hatching potato bugs, also for curing sweet clover, which is on the same plane this year with the farmers.

Rev. J. H. Oke, the new pastor of the Methodist church, occupied his pulpit here Sunday morning. The evening service was withdrawn on account of anniversary services in the Presbyterian Church, where Rev. Pilkey of Owen Sound preached morning and evening to large congregations.

London has sidewalk artists who make pretty pictures on the sidewalks for tuppence ha'penny. Flesherton has sidewalk artists, too, who make pictures free. The London artists are humans. Ours are cows. Our citizens appear to be satisfied with the difference.

Excessive heat drove the editor to the millpond this week where he drank of the fountain of youth again (no reference the essence of the millpond.) Water rusts iron, but he took a chance, and discovered that, hot as the day was, the water was cool if you went deep enough, and it was as wet as of yore. All ye who swelter in the heat can reduce your temperature if you but "go and jump in the lake," and your temper will also be vastly improved, as winess ye editor—who knows nothing of the writing of this bit of history, and will not till the paper is out, if the staff can avoid it.

Address and Presentation

Mr and Mrs Norman Coulter paid a visit to the latter's old home, C M Fields', Maxwell, on Thursday of last week and just before leaving for their own home the choir of the Methodist church gave them a surprise by calling and presenting Mrs Coulter with a beautiful china tea sett and the following address:

To Mrs Norman Coulter,

Dear Pearl—We, the members of the choir of the Maxwell Methodist church, felt that we could not let the occasion of your leaving us for your own home pass without expressing to you our sincere wishes for your prosperity and happiness in all your future life. We shall miss you in all the activities of the church and especially in the choir where your willing helpful service has been freely given. The service of praise is its own reward and we do not think of attempting to compensate you, but we ask you to accept this little gift as a token of our abiding friendship. We hope you will think of us sometimes and we trust that God's blessing may be upon you and your life partner. Signed on behalf of the choir—Mary Guy, Mrs J Brown, Beatrice Long, Willie Kerton, Robert Priestley, Mrs G Lawler, Alice Ross, Rose Dawson, Mrs Chas Brodie.

Will Be Missionaries

A farewell evening was given Tuesday night to Mr Robert Dingwall of the South Line, Artemesia, who leaves this week end to take charge of a mission field at Ahmic Harbor, Parry Sound District. He has been an earnest christian worker at Salem Methodist church for some years. The past year he has been president of the newly organized Gospel Band, which meets every Thursday night, and has also been Bible class teacher. An address most appreciative of his work in these organizations was read Robert proposes later to enter college and take his Arts course, ultimately fitting himself to take up missionary work in China. Two other young hearts from Priceville Methodist congregation, Misses Willa Patterson and Allie Parslow, propose to equip themselves for work in the foreign field—surely a grand response to their Master's last earthly command, from Priceville circuit—Durham Review.

There are rumors of fairly strong showings of gas at the Chamberlain Co. driling on the Stoddart farm, Melancthon, where the drilling was stopped temporarily at a depth of about 450 feet. The Canadian Oil Fields hole west of town is understood to be down in the neighborhood of 1,600 feet.—Shelburne Economist.
