KIMBERLEY

Service in the Methodist church here on Sunday evening was conducted by the Circle girls and Mission Band. Part of the delegate's report of the Branch meeting in Toronto was splendidly read by Lena Weber, and while the collection was being taken up by the little Misses Geraldine Weber and Hazel Stuart, the members of the Mission Band sang very nicely indeed, "Hear the pennies dropping."

Mr Ball of Toronto and his niece are visiting at James Hill's.

Mrs S S Burritt is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs D Graham of Vandeleur.

Quite a number from here were up at Eugenia on the 21st to see the unveiling of the memorial monument, to show their sympathy for the berett.

The brick for the completion of the memorial Community Hall has been drawn and we expect to see it completed before long. While we do well to remember the boys who will never return let us not forget to lend a helping hand to those who have returned, whenever an opportunity affords us. They were no less brave than the ones who are gone, some of them having been wounded several times.

DUNDALK

Chris Irwin's house at the west side of the village was struck by lightning in Monday's storm. The fiery fluid entered by the chimney and tore the bottom out of the kitchen range, ripped up some linoleum on the floor and splintered a screen door in making its exit. Mr and Mrs Irwin and Stanley had a narrow escape and still feel the effects of the shock.

Considerable damage was done by hail on Saturday on Con 14, Proton. Some of the growing crops will have to be cut green for feed.—Herald.

Business Education

A business education is admittedly the greatest gift a parent can give a child. For fifteen years the Orangeville Business College has successfully trained young people for the best situations in Canada and United States. "A position for every graduate" is our motto. This school is affiliated with the Canada Business College, Toronto, and ten other colleges in various cities and towns of Ontario. In union there is strength. In a munltitude of counsellors there is wisdom. The Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers of young people in Canada. Mail courses in all subjects for those who cannot attend. Special courses in Farm Book Keeping. Write for particulars to Canada Business College, Orangeville, or Toronto.

Memorial for Heroes Unveiled at Eugenia

Thursday of last week was a joyful day to the ladies of Eugenia, seeing as it did the culmination of more than two years of hard labor in raising funds for, and the unveiling of, a very beautiful monument to the soldiers of Eugenia and vicinity who fell in the great war. The monument is not only a memorial for the departed heroes, but a monument as well to the great love of a grateful people and the labors of a faithful mother and sisterhood. The funds for this beautiful piece of art have been raised by the efforts of womanhood alone, and to them be all the honor.

The picture at the head of this article gives only a fair idea of this chaste piece of art. Mounted on a cement base, the monument proper is composed of three sections. The top section shows a soldier in life size. The centre front contains the names of the boys who fell, accompanied by the motto, "Until the day breaks and the shadows flee away." The names on the stone are:—David Armstrong, Robert Bell, Fred Fisher, J. Howard, Robert Leppard, Earl Parliament, Stanley Parliament, Charles Roy, Emerson Smith, Fred Smith and Wes. Wilson. On the reverse side of the stone appear all the names of the boys who returned from overseas. The complete monument is hewn from white marble, and stands about seventeen feet high. We feel we can say without contradiction that it is the handsomest monument erected in any rural municipality since the war. A prominent Owen Sound citizen told The Advance that his home town had erected a stone which cost five thousand dollars and it was "a monstrosity compared with the Eugenia stone." A mass of flowers surrounded the monument.

A squad of soldiers, led by Capt. J. A. Legard and Lieuts. Cargoe and Edgerton, marched to the ground, presented arms and stood attention during the unveiling, which was executed by Col. McFarland of Toronto, accompanied by a neat speech. The ceremony which followed was very impressive. Rev. Fowler of Flesherton acted as chairman and a number of clergymen took part in the proceedings, including Revs. Madden, Eagle and Conn. The Last Post was sounded by Jack Perkins. The short addresses were all of an excellent nature, all eulogistic of the great work performed by those who had given their lives for the world's freedom. The Benediction brought this part of the program to an end.

An adjournment was then made to the pavilion where Rev. Conn acted as chairman. Excellent speeches were then delivered by Mr. Ball, M.P. for South Grey, Mr. Leeson M.P.P. for South Grey, Col. Fleming of Owen Sound, Hon. Col. Carmichael M.P.P, and Col. Chisholm of Owen Sound. Mrs. Buchanan of Ravenna read two poems suitable to the occasion.

This completed the afternoon program. A baseball match was on the bill, but Dundalk defaulted and it was impossible to secure a substitute. A team was picked up, however, and played the Ceylon club and were vanquished by the latter the score being 27-9. In the evening a successful concert was held in the pavilion, which ended a successful day. Financially the affair was also very successful and sufficient funds were raised to place the ladies out of debt. Some grading and beautifying of the park has been done, and there will be more to follow. It can be made a very beautiful spot, and the graceful stone just erected will prove an attraction to people from long distances away who wish to see just what a soldiers' monument should be and what a body of women with a single mind and determined hands can achieve.

The proceeds of the day amounted to $664.79, and the ladies have $400 to the good. After everything is paid for the ladies still have $300 to further improve the grounds.

Mr. Borland of Collingwood, the contractor, delivered a beautiful piece of work at an extremely moderate price, for which service the people of Eugenia are grateful.

EUGENIA

Although Eugenia has been a place of interest to sight seers for many years, I doubt whether there has ever been as many people at one time to visit this picturesque spot as on the occasion of the unveiling of our memorial, which took place here on Thursday, July 21st, in the Hydro Park. Some two years ago the village and community, which is nothing large at best, undertook to raise funds to erect some kind of a memorial, and as it was soon decided to erect something in the way of a monument the design was chosen and to that end the committee has worked with the help of the people and now have one of the finest memorials in this part of the country. The monument, which stands seventeen feet or more in height, graced with a life sized soldier, rifle in hand, standing at attention, is a splendid piece of art, and a fitting tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice. The setting of the monument is most beautiful, having a natural background of maple trees and an approach of walks of flower beds, and reflects credit on those who worked faithfully to make it so. The day was unclouded and beautiful and the unveiling of the monument was an occasion long to be remembered by those fortunate in being present. Well might we be proud of the soldiers and returned men and volunteers who, headed by Markdale band, marched in a body to the spot of interest and took up their position in front of the flag draped monument. Had it not been for the boys, who donned the khaki once again, in order that they might in a fitting way show their respect for fallen comrades, the day would not have been complete. Under the supervision of Rev. Mr. Fowler, the program was carried out in a most impressive manner. Colonel G. F. McFarland, who was head of the Grey battalion, had the honor of unveiling the monument, and delivered an appropriate address which will not soon be forgotten, paying a grand tribute to the boys who sleep in Flanders and also to those who returned, not forgetting the dear mothers who so nobly did their part in the great war. Jack Perkins, one of the young volunteers, sounded the Last Post, and ministers acquainted with the boys who went overseas assisted Rev. Fowler and beautiful were the prayers offered by these men. The ceremony throughout was a most beautiful and impressive one. The flowers which were placed on the base of the monument by loving hands were but another tribute of love to the dear boys who sleep in Flanders' fields. The concert in the evening was of the highest order and enjoyed by all.

Proceeds for the day, $664 79.

Many visitors were in town and visited friends over the 21st.

The Memorial Committee wish to thank all those who helped in making the day a success.

Mrs J Cooey of Owen Sound is the guest of friends here at present.

Rev. Mr Fowler's pulpit here will be filled next Sunday by Mr Robert Paton of Flesherton.

Eugenia intends holding a dedication day each year on July 21 for maintenance of monument and grounds surrounding.

Miss Georgina Smith is home from Toronto on her holidays.

Mrs Spencer and family of Toronto are visiting at R Purvis's.

Miss Lucas of Guelph is the guest of her sister, Mrs Ellwood Purvis.

Killed At Nottawa

J. A. Brackenbridge, a prominent citizen of Nottawa Village, and for over fifty years proprietor of the grist mill there, was instantly killed on Saturday last when he fell from the roof of his mill a distance of over forty feet into the rocky bottom of the Pretty River. He had ascended to the roof of his mill for the purpose of making some repairs, unknown to any of his employes. He leaves an invalid wife and two adopted children.

Arthur is about equally distant from Grand Valley and Fergus. Arthur is tied up, however, to the Grand Valley end of the Hydro system, where its electricity is $85 per horsepower. And if it were tied up to the Fergus end instead, the rate per horsepower would be $41 less And Arthur scratches its head and wonders. But then the Hydro makes lots of us wonder.—Shelburne Economist.
