Big Barn Burned

The large frame barn belonging to Mr. Christopher Schopf at Williamsford was struck by lightning and consumed by fire about 11 o'clock Tuesday night, during the severe electric storm which set in a little after 10 o'clock and continued for several hours, says the Chaisworth News. The barn with its annex was about 65 by 100 feet in size and stood on a stone foundation and was an up to date building in every respect. The barn contained nine loads of fall wheat, and six tons of hay, in addition to farm implements comprising a mower, a buggy, a cream separator and other small articles. It also contained several sets of harness and a number of hens, all of which went up in smoke. The driving shed was saved through the efforts of the villagers in applying plenty of water to the roof.

Mr. Schopf only took possession of the farm this spring and had not taken off his first crop. He will be a heavy loser, as the barn itself could not be replaced today for less than $5000. His loss, including the contents, will not be less than $8000. He has an insurance of $2200 on the barn and a small insurance on contents, but just how much he is unable to say at present.

Ethel Petter, 15 years of age, of Colpoys Bay, dropped dead in the garden of heart failure.
