A Great Potato Crop

W. H. Downs, a farmer of the Garafraxa road, according to the Owen Sound Sun Times will this fall harvest over 3000 bushels of potatoes, in addition to several hundred bushels of early potatoes already marketed. In spite of the fact that the potato crops generally in this section are not the best, his crop will be uniformly good. This year Mr. Downs, who lives about a mile and a half from Owen Sound, had 35 acres of potatoes under cultivation. Five acres were planted to early potatoes, which have been harvested and marketed, realizing over $600.

Thirty acres, planted with different varieties, are still to be harvested Over 3000 will be taken from these fields. These when ready will amount to 2000 bags. Undoubtedly this is the largest potato crop ever taken up in this part of the country and Mr. Downs should realize some five or six thousand dollars from the sale of his crop.

The farm on which the potatoes are grown has a sort of sandy loam which is peculiarly adapted to potato growing. In addition to this, fertilizer is used. The potatoes are not hilled up but are continually cultivated and looked after all season.

Shot a Bear

While hunting bees near the Mad river in the Black Ash swamp, Wilfred Rogers of Sunnidale had an exciting time with a bear and her cub. While passing through a lonely place he was alarmed by a noise in the bushes and a large she bear stood up and showed signs of fight. Fortunately Wilfred was carrying a sporting rifle and a well directed shot brought bruin to the ground. Knowing the trick of the bear family Wilfred kept the bear covered and approached carefully to find his shot had proved fatal. Just then a cub sprang from the bushes and climbed up a tree about thirty feet. A shot brought it to the ground but it managed to get away and made its escape Wilfred skinned the bear and made for the clearance. The lad was alone at the time, but he is a crack shot and being a good sport expressed the desire to meet the rest of bruin's family in the near future—Stayner Sun.

A barn in the township of Sunnidale, near the Nottawasaga river, owned by J. Little, was struck by lightning and completely destroyed by fire. Mr. Little lost all his crop and farm stock, including a valuable thoroughbred bull.

The Corn Ear Worm

The Department of Agriculture has received quite a number of worms at the office. They are occasioning quite a worry to the farmers, as this year they are especially serious. We have forwarded samples to the O A C, Guelph, for identification.

The corn ear worm is a member of the cut worm family, or the same family as that to which the army worm belongs. The adult is an ochre colored moth having a wing expanse of one and a half inches. It has been in the province for a long time but has only done damage in small, isolated districts. This year the season seems to have been particularly favorable hence the large number to be found. The female lays her eggs on the silk of the ear. When they hatch the young caterpillars eat their way into the ears. Other parts of the plant are not attacked. Although numerous eggs are hatched out on each ear, only one worm is found, because they kill one another, or are cannibals.

When the worm is full grown it drops to the ground. There in little earthen cases it spends the winter. To destroy the insect we suggest cultivating and harrowing immediately after harvesting the crop, followed by late fall plowing. This will destroy the nest and expose the pupae to the frost, which kills it.

The farmer who first drew our attention to this pest informs us that they have nearly all disappeared now. It is therefore not necessary to worry over the pest destroying much of the crop.

A canvass is being made in Shelburne for a memorial hall, estimated to cost $20,000.
