Mr. Corkill was patrolman here before going overseas and on his return from France was stationed at Flesherton and subsequently moved to Durham. While here he has made many friends by his obliging manner and willingness to help out in time of trouble. The citizens as a whole regret his departure. His new duties extend over the lines running out of Eugenia to Owen Sound and Collingwood—Durham Chronicle.

When Mercy Seasons Justice

Editor Advance: In his last letter "Torontonian" is determined to avoid the personal element in his argument, although it seems evident that if there had been no direct reference to some person in his first letter he would have had practically nothing to write about.

However, I am glad to see he also has an appreciation for christian charity, a lack of which his first letter seemed to indicate. In answer to his somewhat lengthy harangue re the O T A, I cannot remember having written anything contrary to his statements. I also have due respect for it, but not more than for any other law designed for the benefit of mankind. Looking at it in the abstract, it may no doubt be something to wax enthusiastic about. Looking at the great war as an event, it may seem to have been a glorious advance for civilization, but if one glimpses at the personal side of it how many cases of pain and suffering do we find in order that the great event might be achieved? And so, although I admit in a different way, with the O T A. Coming right down to personal cases, one will sometimes see an individual who, through thoughtlessness and with no deliberate malice or intentions of breaking the law, suffers a penalty as severe as that earned by an inveterate criminal. Of course this cannot be helped, but I do hold that the rest of us have no right to point the finger of scorn at him or his relatives or adopt a "holier than thou" attitude.

However, since "Torontonian" has stepped outside of his anonymity and revealed an old and respected friend, I feel certain from personal knowledge that he would be one of the last to withold the cloak of brotherly charity from any deserving case.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the courtesy of allowing me space in your valuable paper, I will also discard my anonymity and sign myself

—ELLWOOD GENOA.

Why Is the U.F.O. In Politics

1. To establish the personal responsibility of the elector.
2. To promote honest debate of public questions.
3. To establish honesty and economy in public business.
4. To secure fair treatment for farmers as producer (lifting embargo, finding markets, lowering freight rates and duties, etc.)
5. To establish a fair representation for Agriculture.
6. To insist on the fulfilment of pledges made by Governments.
7. To secure real responsible government—not government Orders-in-council.

Two Cases of Interest

Two cases of interest in this locality were heard at Osgoode Hall last week. They were—

Rex v Weber—W H Wright, K. C., for defendant, E Bagley, K. C., for the Crown. Motion by defendant on a case stated by Chairman of General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Grey, on 30th August, 1921, in convicting on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences without intent to defraud. Judgment reserved.

Stinson v Piper—H. H. Davis for plaintiff, W. H. Wright, K. C., for defendant. Appeal by plaintiff from judgment of County Court of 4th May, 1921. Action to recover $300 damages for alleged breach of warranty on sale of a horse. At trial the action was dismissed with costs. Appeal allowed and judgment awarded plaintiff for $100 and costs, here and below.
