Brampton Public Schools are to be conducted on new plans. Efficient pupils will be dismissed daily at 3.30 p. m., and the remaining half hour will be devot. ed to the more backward. Home work has been cut off in all classes under the third and that of the senior cut down. Weekly examinations will be held and bright pupils promoted when qualified.

An unfortunate error occurred in our Eugenia correspondence last week with reference to Mr. Gorley's death. It was announced as Mr Robert Gorley who had passed away, whereas it should have been Reuben Gorley. Mr Robert Gorley is still with us, as we hope he will be for many years. The error is not charge- able to our correspondent, but to the proof reader.

The ladies of the Methodist church will give a high class entertainment in the high school Thursday evening of this week. The program will include a play entitled "A rag carpet cutting bee," also an exhibition of Mrs Jarley's Wax Works, interspersed with music and singing. When the ladies go in for a thing like this they go for all they are worth, and always produce something very laughable and entertaining, and—worth the money. Don't fail to see what our girls of older years can do on this occasion. See bills.

Some of our exchanges announce that Flesherton had a $15,000 fire recently. For the past two years Flesherton has not had even a fifteen cent fire. The item first appeared in an Orangeville paper, then started the rounds. There was no justification for the error. It was a confusion of Clarksburg with Flesh- erton and an evidence of rather slipshod editing.

A modern cave-dweller has been dis- covered in the village of Linwood by Tax Collector Beggs, who has seized the herd of swine belonging to Mr Frederick Probst in order to get payment of dog taxes on the 40 dogs alleged to be kept by Mr Probst on his premises. Mr Prob- st's manner of living is reported to be the most primitive. His dwelling is said to consist of a shack with a hole cov- ered with a blanket for ingress and egress. Huddled with him in his hut are the in- numerable dogs, which he maintains principally on horse meat which he pro- cures though the countryside. The auth- orities are investigating the matter.

A gentleman told The Advance an in- cident the other day that illustrates to a dot the inefficiency and carelessness of the Hydro Commission in incurring expenses. It was found advisable to move a certain pole in a near by village and the Com- mission was thus informed. They sent a man from six miles away, and another from nine miles away to examine the pole and report. Later they sent another man 22 miles on the same errand. Three different men to report on the removal of one pole. After these reports had been made a gang of men was sent in from miles around, who moved the pole just three feet from its original position! And all this would be charged up to the municipality containing the pole. Yet that municipality is assured that it is get- ting electricity "at first cost!" and is sup- posed to keep quiet and suppress all grumbling. It cannot do anything but sweat. If all their business is done on the same basis as in this instance it is no wonder that engineers' estimates are doubled or trebled. Inefficiency can make first costs grow like a puffball in autumn.

The Spring Assizes

The Spring Assizes are being held in Owen Sound this week. There is but one criminal case, that of Rex v Daniel McMillan and Mrs. Daniel McMillan on a charge of murder. There are three civil cases being tried before Mr Justice Logie.

The first is that of the Dufferin Con- struction Co. v the County of Grey. The county had a contract with the company to do any work that their engineer should require. The Construction Company claimed that they had done 512 cubic yards extra work on part of the Meaford and Owen Sound road and that they should receive extra payment for the extra work. The county claims that this work was included in the contract.

The second case is that of Lloyd v Lloyd. Mrs. Lloyd is suing her husband for alimony. The parties are from Mark- dale and there has been trouble in the home. Mrs. Lloyd is suing her husband for an amount sufficient to maintain her.

The last case is that of McDowell v the County of Grey. The former County Engineer, Mr. McDowell, is suing the county for certain wages said to be owing him for services performed as the County Engineer. Mr. McDowell was engaged by the county in February, 1920, at the definite salary of $3000 per year and he was to pay his own expenses. This agreement was terminated in March of last year and a new agreement was made out. The engineer was to receive $10 per day and have his expenses paid. Mr. McDowell claims that the county will not pay him the amount owing under the new agreement. The county claims that the engineer is paid in full for all work authorized by them.

Hewson--English

On Wednesday, February 22, at the manse, Duntroon, by the Rev, J. A. McMahon, the marriage ceremony took place of Lieut. Francis M. Hewson, Duntroon, to Elizabeth Vera, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John English of Singhampton. The bride wore a navy tricotine suit, navy taffeta hat, a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and maidenhair fern, and the groom's gift, a sable wrap. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hewson left for Toronto. After a short honeymoon they will make their home on their farm north of Duntroon. The bride was one of Singhampton's most talented and popular young ladies and her friends in the community evidenced their esteem by meeting at her home on the Friday before her marriage and showering her with a number of beautiful gifts.

J W Hamilton of Shelburne fell on the icy sidewalk while going to church and dislocated his shoulder.

Claiming the sum of $2,634, said to be owing to it by an agreement with the County of Grey, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has issued a writ against the County in the Supreme Court. The claim arises out of work done when roads were being built. In the course of operations it was found necessary to move a number of poles; and the Commission, at whose expense the work was done, claims that the Country agreed to reim- burse it for all expenses incurred. Mes- srs Middlebro & Spereman, County Sol- icitors, are acting on behalf of the County.
