FIRST AND PARAMOUNT, ABSOLUTE SECURITY TO POLICYHOLDERS

'I have no one dependent upon me," you say.

Before many years there will be an old man dependent upon you. That will be yourself. Don't you think it worth while to provide for him ?

A few dollars saved each year now—when you can spare the money—and invested in an Imperial Endowment policy will furnish a regular monthly pension to support you in comfort and independence when you are old.

Write to-day—while you are in good health—for a copy of our booklet, "Penniless Old Men." To-morrow you may be uninsurable.

W. H. THURSTON EDITOR

THE WOMAN "FROM MISSOURI"

Miss McPhail's voice was heard in the House for the first time on Monday of last week, when she asked for information regarding a proposed advance of $500 in the salary of the Supervisor of Expenditures. The query, as reported in the House of Commons Debates, was as follows :

"Starting with the lower salaried officials and going up the list, there is first an increase of $40 ; one of $60 ; and three of $120, the last one being an increase from $3, 240 to $3,360. Then we have a rather large jump in the salary of the Supervisor of Expenditures, from $4,500 to $5,000 I should like to ask the minister whether the Supervisor of Expenditures has any particularly educational or technical qualifications to justify that increase. What is the explanation for this jump in his salary? An increase of $120 seems quite reasonable, but it looks as though it were a case of the higher the salary the higher the increase which is really quite a familiar thing today."

Miss McPhail was quite justified in drawing attention to this matter. Why should the country be called upon to pay large advances in salary to civil servants when all other salaries are on the downward trend? Our servants at Ottawa do not appear to be yet seized of the fact that this country is struggling with a load of debt that has reached a limit where silence has ceased to be a virtue. Every human being in Canada has to pay $100 per annum to the government, and this is all pulled through taxation. It is all very well to say we have to pay for the war, but there are many other things that we do not have to pay for, and which would lighten the taxation materially, and advancing of civil servant salaries on a falling cost of living is one of them. If this condition continues much longer there will be a whirlwind to reap by somebody The country is too sore to put up with much more extravagance by our legislative bodies.

The government sales tax in Canada has netted the enormous sum of $94,223,145 since its inception in June of 1920. And this only one tax out of the many. Does taxation restrict trade?

A Burks Falls cat deposited a litter of kittens in the girls' room of the public school. The Arrow does not know in what cat-egory the principal will place these new pupils, or how they will be cat-alogued. Wouldn't that joke give one a cat-aleptic fit!

The Owen Sound Sun -Times suggests that the hydro pond museum people include an elephant for Pheasant Island and a whale for the pond as additional attractions. It would be foolish to think of any such thing, because the whale might emulate his forefather and swallow its keeper. As for an elephant, why we have that now—the whole thing is a big white elephant.

Another Coal Hunt?

There are rumors that a Toronto syndicate, nothing daunted by the scoffing of geologists and the lack of success that has attended previous like efforts, is going to spend a bunch of money drilling for coal in this section. The "Scouts" sent out by the syndicate, so rumor has it, stated that the members of the syndicate are fully satisfied that the coal is to be found here if it is properly gone after.—Shelburne Economist.

ANNUAL INVENTORY.

Keep a Record of What You Own and What It Is Worth.

The man on the land can learn much about his own farming operations by taking an inventory each year. No form of record will give so much information about the year's work as will an inventory properly taken at a definitely fixed date each year. The usual time for taking an inventory of the farm business is in March, when there is least feed and unsold produce on hand. The inventory of any ordinary farm can be taken in a half day, so there is no excuse on account of shortage of time. The information gleaned about the farm business through the study made possible by inventory taking is worth many times the expenditure of time and effort.

For conveniece in keeping the farm inventory any blank record book with pages wide enough to permit spacing for a number of columns can be used, and if ruled to accommodate the entries for a number of years so much the better.—L. Stevenson, Secretary, Dept. of Agriculture, Toronto.

An Unexpected Pleasure.

One side of the famous Devil's Glen was open to the public. The other side was kept strictly private by the landlord.

An American visitor, ignoring the notice-boards, was walking up the private side of the glen when he was met by a choleric old gentleman, who shouted, "What do you mean, sir, by trespassing on this property."

"Waal," said the American, "it don't make any difference to you, do it?"

"Do you know, sir, that this is my property?"

"Snakes alive!" replied the American, affably. "Ef that aren't interesting! I knoo this wus the Devil's Glen, but I never expected to see the proprietor!"

E. G. Bennett, of Missouri, says: "When you sell grain you wholesale the fertility of your soil; when you sell butter-fat you retail water, feed and sunshine."

Preparedness

Have your car overhauled NOW—before the Spring rush begins—and you wish to go on that motor trip. You will want then to be sure that your car is in first-class mechanical order.

—engine	—brakes	—tires
—steering gear	—wheels	—wiring
—springs	—rear axle	—transmission

And it will be just then that our garage will be most congested and cars will have to wait their turn.

If in the case of the battery, as in that of the car itself, repairing and overhauling should be done only by those whose direct interest in and knowledge of its mechanism guarantees intelligent service.

The crank case should be drained out, and flushed with kerosene and a lighter body oil put in. The rear axle and transmission should also be drained and flushed and refilled to the prescribed capacity in each case with gear lubricant.

Acetylene Welding
