Watching Her Step.

From the Toronto Star

Ottawa, March 31—Agnes McPhail, M. P., has a mind of her own. She won't be whipped into line at the crack of any party interest, vested or vestless. She proved that she is thoroughly independent when the first division of the new parliament was taken. "If I could have had my way every member of the Progressive party would have left the chamber when the vote was taken," she remarked to me this morning. Instead of every Progressive marching out, every man of the party voted with the government.

"I love politics as a game," continued Miss McPhail: "The tragedy is that the game went too far at the expense of the people of the country. I know that parties do not stand on their pre-election platforms once they get into power. If the Laurier regime of 1896 did not prove to us that the Liberals did not implement their pre-election pledges, then witness the Borden government of 1911, which was elected on the cry of 'no truck nor trade with the Yankees'—and then proceeded to introduce free wheat and free flour—although the party had asserted that these were the very keystone of the protection arch."

"I am not going to be rushed into lobbying for anybody's pet schemes," asserted Miss McPhail. "While I believe in temperance and prohibition personally, I won't be lobbied into introducing deputations who would make the country bone dry whether the people want it so or not. The will of the people must prevail."

To meet Agnes McPhail in her little private office on the sixth floor of the House of Commons and chat with her as woman to woman, is a delightful experience. She has made her room quite homelike with growing plants. The members have a certain discretion in choosing the furnishings for their quarters—they may select them from the rugs and furnishings on hand. Miss McPhail's choice can be taken as an index of her quiet good taste. The furniture is substantial oak of the early English finish, and the rug of rich brown tones harmonizes with it. There are dainty curtains and flowers in radiant bloom which indicate the feminine occupant.

This pioneer of the federal parliament dresses as any other smart business woman of the present day. She favors dark cloth frocks on tailored lines. Sometimes when she is going out to tea she brightens up the gothic chamber with a dash of flame color. She detests wearing a hat—says that she cannot think properly with a chapeau pressing on her brains. She has never appeared in the House with her head covered. Thus she is always in a position to catch Mr. Speaker's eye without a moment's delay.

"I follow every word that Arthur Meighen utters, with rapt attention," said Miss McPhail. "He always knows what he is talking about, and I always learn something when he speaks. Before I came to Ottawa I was enveloped in a sort of awe of the great men I believed sat in the Commons—but after three short weeks that haze has almost lifted. I find that there are only a small handfull in the whole House who know anything about our constitution.

Miss McPhail takes the position that she does not represent the women of Canada in the Canadian parliament. She represents the men, women and children of Southeast Grey, which is her constituency. "There wasn't a single woman delegate at the convention which nominated me as Progressive candidate. There were eleven nominees, and I won out. It would be a bit ungrateful for me to say I represent only women and children and forget the men of Southeast Grey," she remarked with a smile.

Naturally because she happens to be the first woman in the house she intends to be more than usually careful not to do anything that might prejudice the chances of other women being elected. She does not regard herself as an anomly. One of her greatest sources of satisfaction lies in the fact that the men of the Progressive party come and consult her as a member, not as a woman, whenever questions of policy are vexing their souls.

Agnes McPhail M. P., has no hankering for the social spotlight. She holds social affairs as social affairs in light regard, but if gatherings afford her an opportunity to meet interesting people and have a worthwhile chat she enjoyed them thoroughly, She is an exceedingly busy woman—for her day seldom ends before midnight, and she is in her office at ten o'clock every morning. Her mail, her personal callers and her telephone callers keep her on the jump until three o'clock when the house sits.

Miss McPhail shares an apartment in the Queen Mary Apartments with Mrs. Quaig, who is chief of the senatorial stenographical staff. They do their own house work—whoever gets in first puts the kettle on and sets the table. About the only recreation Miss McPhail has had time to indulge in since coming to the capital is walking. The evening sessions of the House prevent the members from attending the theatre.

Why an Orchard Will Pay.

The planting of commercial apple orchards in the Province of Ontario is highly desirable for several reasons:

1. Ontario is not producing enough good apples for home supply, but imports annually from Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Oregon and California.

2. Production in Ontario is likely to fall off still more because no commercial planting is being done. Very few commercial apple orchards have been set out in this Province since 1911.

3. Of the thousands of young trees set in the boom years of 1905 to 1911 a large proportion have already passed out of existence. Probably not more than 20 per cent. of the trees planted during those years will figure in the commercial production of the future, and certainly not more than 40 per cent. of them are alive and receiving reasonable attention to-day.

4. The home orchard will never again be an important factor in commercial apple production in this Province, because it is not large enough to be worth while. In seasons when scab control is difficult, or when prices are down because of a heavy crop, the return from the small orchard is not large enough to justify the expense and risk involved. When conditions are unfavorable the small orchard passes quickly into a state of neglect; this is why apple growing in Ontario is at such low ebb at present.

5. Fruit is an essential part of diet. While it is true that in case of necessity people can live without it, it is also true that health suffers and nutritional complaints become much more general in the absence from the dietary of fresh fruits and vegetables. The apple is the most important and most useful fruit of the temperate zone, and, from the standpoint of public health, its culture should not be negelected.—J. W. Crow, O. A. College, Guelph.

Noah Up to Date.

From the time of Noah when the dove brought the green back, homing pigeons have been of constant service to mankind. That well-bred stock of this breed is desirable is shown by a live-stock owner in Henrico County, Va. He lists 22 homing pigeons of pure breeding among other live stock enrolled in the Better Sires.

D&S CONTROLS TRADE MARK LIGHTNING

Insurance Is Good, But—

Insurance will, in a measure, repay you for loss from fire due to lightning.

But it will not prevent the fire.

It takes the DODD System of Lightning Protection to do that.

In the past thirty years over 300,000 buildings have been rodded by the DODD System and in not a single instance is there a record of the DODD System properly installed, having failed to prevent damage by lightning.

The fact that you haven't yet suffered loss by lightning only means that you are fortunate, not that you are proof against it. Ask us today what it will cost you to have DODD protection.
