About three weeks ago ten ewes gave birth to 29 lambs, nine having triplets and one twins. About twenty of the young lambs are still living and doing well.—Durham Chronicle.

The Streets of Shelburne

From all directions in the vicinity of this town come reports of the road being in poor condition for vehicular traffic, but for downright impassable roads for any kind of traffic we might draw the attention of our town fathers to Main street, east from this office. On several occasions during the past week motors have been hauled out to solid terra firma by teams of horses. If the weather of the past week continues, some effort should be made to divert traffic to and from the town via Andrew St., as the main thorofare is not in fit shape for same and is a disgrace to the municipality. We might remark that to our knowledge Main street has never been in such a deplorable condition as at present.—Free Press.

Field Crop Competition

The East Grey Agricultural Society, Flesherton, are again taking up the field crop competition with oats, for which there is $75 offered in prizes. Kindly call and make your entries not later than May 15th.—W. A. Hawken, Secretary.

EUGENIA

The water is at its height at the lake at present. It is a pretty sight to see the water rushing with such force over the overflow down the old river bed, making the falls once more look quite natural. The fish were quite plentiful before the water rose to such a height. The lake must be alive with these suckers, judging from the number dashing over the overflow. What of our one time far-famed speckled trout? What spawn there is being deposited in the old river bed above the lake is being taken out by the government and shipped to other points, while we sit quietly by and help pay the expense of all this work for someone else's advantage.

Serious enough as it was, a much more serious result was narrowly averted on Saturday when Thomas McPherson, of the backline, Proton, came into contact with a circular saw while cutting wood at Walter Carson's. He was in the act of scraping the saw dust from under the machine when his arm was caught by the saw teeth, making a lengthwise cut along the fleshy part of the arm between the wrist and the elbow, almost grazing the bone. Dr. Martin dressed the wound, which, though painful, is not now considered serious. Mr. McPherson is fortunate to have escaped so well.—Dundalk Herald.
