WHAT'S THE USE OF WORRYING?

What's the use of worrying?
Fretting don't pay.
What's the use of hurrying?
It's the slowest way.
Half the whims that worry you
Never will come true;
Then why let them hurry you,
As you daily do?

Live your life out easily,
Then it will be long.
Take what happens breezily,
Whistle, sing a song!
Don't waste strength on worrying
Over phantom ills;
Don't waste time in hurrying,
That's the pace that kills.

FORGOT THE LETTER.

A young married lady one morning gave her husband a sealed letter, which he was to read when he got to the office, says Tit-Bits. He did so, and the letter ran as follows:

"I am obliged to tell you something that may give you pain, but there is no help for it. You shall know everything, whatever may be the consequence. For the last week I have felt that it must come to this, but I have waited until the last extremity, and can remain silent no longer. Do not overwhelm me with bitter reproach, for you will have to put up with your share of the trouble as well as myself."

Cold perspiration stood in thick drops on the brow of the husband, who was prepared for the worst.

Tremblingly he read on:

"Our coal is all gone. Please order a ton to be sent this afternoon. I thought you might forget it for the tenth time, and, therefore, wrote you this letter."

But he didn't forget that time!

SOMEBODY.

There was somebody who said unkind words which hurt somebody else. Was it you?

There was somebody who was selfish and thoughtless in her home. Was it you?

There was somebody who disobeyed mamma and made her a great deal of trouble and sorrow. Was it you?

There was somebody who spoke unkindly of somebody else. Was it you?

There was somebody who found nothing but fault with everything in the belongings of her friend. Was it you?

There was somebody who borrowed a book and kept it for month. Was it you?

There was somebody who, day in and day out, never did anything to make anybody else happy. Was it you?

THE WEDDING RICE.

At a wedding breakfast, according to "What to Eat," a bride-maid was heard to tell the true reason for rice being used at weddings. It was once believed that if on their wedding journey a newly wedded couple saw a flock of doves it would mean a long life of peace and happiness to them. A bridal party in passing so frightened a flock of these timid birds that they flew away in great alarm, and, to avert the evil omen that their flight signified for the newly-married couple, rice was thrown in great quantities to lure the birds back to the place from which they had flown. This plan was so successful that the wedding pair went on their way rejoicing and lived ever afterwards a happy and prosperous life. Since then rice has been used as a symbol of good luck, peace and happiness at weddings.

NEGRO GALLANTRY.

"When I was preaching at Wallawalla, Washington," said a Kansas clergyman, "there was no negro preacher in town, and I was often called upon to perform a ceremony between negroes. One afternoon, after I had married a young negro couple, the groom asked the price of the service.

"'Oh, well,' said I, 'you can pay me whatever you think it is worth to you.'

"The negro turned and silently looked his bride over from head to foot, then slowly rolling up the whites of his eyes said:

"'Law'd, sah, you has done ruined me for life; you has, for sure.'"

DEFINITION OF A LIE.

The vicar was addressing the school on the subject of truth. He expounded at some length on the wickedness of lying, and before going on to the merits of speaking the truth he thought he would see if the children really understood him.

"Now," said he, "can anyone tell me what a lie is?"

Immediately a number of small hands shot up. The vicar selected a bright-looking youngster.

"Well, my little man."

"Please, sir, a lie is an abomination unto everyone, but a very present help in time of trouble."

To know the good and prefer it is the secret of abiding happiness.—Dean Stadley.

The measure of life is not length of years, but honesty of conduct.—Ritcher.

'Tis only those who climb that get toward the stars.—Parkhurst.

It is foolish and unnecessary for most people to get housed up for the winter. The human animal cannot hibernate.

Keep the mouth closed when out of doors or when going from one room to a room of colder temperature, breathing through the nose.

Ventilate your sleeping rooms where you spend one third of your lives. Too many people poison themselves with the noxious exhalations of the night hours.

Don't try to prevent colds and illness by coddling. Create a vigorous healthful body by proper eating, proper exercise, proper clothing, proper bathing, and by proper medication if ill.

"If you love others, they will love you. If you speak kindly to them, they will speak kindly to you. Love is repaid with love, and hatred with hatred. Would you hear a sweet and pleasing echo, speak sweetly and pleasantly yourself.

A DOUBLE-BARRELED RESOLVE.

When Frances Willard, whose statue now stands in the capitol at Washington, and whose name is known and reverenced the world over, was a girl of eighteen, she made this resolve:

"I will spend my coming years in being somebody, and in doing something for somebody."

She kept it, as everybody knows. But when we look at her life, we can see that she continually laid more emphasis on the last clause of it than on the first. It was a double-barreled resolve. Frances Willard was a splendidly able woman. But her greatness came from her using her extraordinary powers for the service of others. Doing something for somebody was her daily, steady thought, which made her the noble and inspiring leader that she was.

There are thousands of girls of eighteen to-day who are resolving, with all their might, the first half of Frances Willard's resolve. They are determined to be somebody. They are studying art or music, or taking college diplomas, or going into business or into public work, with the full determination to make a mark in the world. So far, so good, but the second clause is what they forget very often. To such, and to all young men and women who want to make the best use of their lives, Frances Willard's wise and complete resolve is recommended in all its fullness and helpfulness.

SHORTER OR LONGER.

Bridget had been going out a great deal, and her husband, Mike, was displeased.

"Bridget, where do ye spend yer toime nights?" Ye're out iv'ry avenin' fur two weeks," he said.

"Shut up, Mike! I'm gettin' an edication," she answered.

"An' phwat are ye learnin'?" said her indignant husband.

"Why, to-night we learn about the laws of compensations."

"Compensation,' said Michael, "And what's that?"

"Why, I can't explain; but, for instance, if the sense of smell is poor, the sense of thaste is all the sharper, and if yes are blind, ye can hear all the better."

"Ah, yes," said Moike, thoughtfully. "I see, it's loike this. Fur instance, if a man is born wid wan leg shorter than the other, the other is longer."

WILL KISSING BE PROHIBITED

The Osculatory Process Denounced by Scientists as Extremely Dangerous—How the Danger Can be Removed.

A keen discussion is being carried on by some of the best scientists as to the danger and "crime" of kissing, led by Dr. Somers, Health Officer of Atlantic City, and Dr. Nalpanse, of the Medical Faculty of Paris. They charge the kiss with spreading grippe, scarlet fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough, typhoid fever, diphtheria, erysipelas, meningitis, tuberculosis, and many infectious skin diseases. They suggest legislation on the subject, and the posting of notices in railway stations, street cars and other public places, but they say it would be useless to post them on verandahs, in cosy corners, porches, shady nooks, or moonlit lawns. They also propose compulsory legislation for methods of disinfection of the mouth and purifying the breath, especially with a view to the protection of the innocent babies who are particularly subject to infection. The greatest and most effective purifier and germ destroyer known to medical science for the mouth, throat and breath, as well as for the blood, stomach and lungs, is Psychine, that triumph of the medical world that is attracting almost universal attention because of the wonderful results attending its use. One of its recent triumphs is told as a matter of experience in the following brief statement:

Dr. Slocum Co.

I am sending you photo and testimonial herewith for your great remedy PSYCHINE. Your remedies did wonders for me. I was about 24 or 30 years of age when I took PSYCHINE. The doctors had given me up as an incurable consumptive. My lungs and every organ of the body were terribly diseased and wasted. Friends and neighbors thought I'd never get better. But PSYCHINE saved me. My lungs have never bothered me since, and Psychine is a permanent cure.

MRS. LIZZIE GARSIDE,
510 Bathurst St., London, Ont.

Psychine, pronounced Si-kean, is admitted to be the most wonderful of all disease and germ-destroying agencies. For building up the run-down system and curing all forms of stomach troubles and diseases of the chest, throat and lungs or head, it is simply unapproachable. It is a reliable home treatment. For sale at all druggists, 50c and $1.00, or Dr. T. A. Slocum, Limited, 179 King Street West, Toronto.

THE RIGHTS WHICH GO WITH A TICKET.

What rights go with a ticket to a public entertainment? That is a question that needs to be settled for the good of all concerned. Two young people recently occupied seats at a symphony concert given by a noted orchestra. The music was not the kind they fancied. They whispered and finally got to giggling. The people in the neighborhood cast indignant glances in their direction, but these instead of acting as a restraint, appeared to increase the hilarity. Indeed, on his way out the youth remarked that it was "worth the price of admission to see folks glare."

The purchase of a ticket entitles the holder to listen to the entertainment it promises. It is clearly impossible that it should give them permission to interfere with the enjoyment of others. Whispering and disorder are not merely bad manners, but defiance of the public's rights.

No one is obliged to sit through an entertainment he does not enjoy. The doors are not locked, and he will find abundant opportunities to retire without disturbing anyone. To remain through a programme which one does not enjoy, doing one's best to prevent others from enjoying it, is both silly and discourteous.

A COURTEOUS HINT.

A nervous man at the opera fidgeted behind a pair of those persons who explain the plot when the music is not too loud, until his endurance was exhausted. Then he leaned forward and said:

"Excuse me, will you speak a little louder? Sometimes the music prevents my hearing what you say."

Man's great business in this world is to know for the sake of living, not to live for the sake of knowing.—Chesterfield.

Not a Nauseating Pill.—The excipient of a pill is the substance which enfolds the ingredients and makes up the pill mass. That of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is so compounded as to preserve their moisture, and they can be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills, in order to keep them from adhering, are rolled in powders, which prove nauseating to the taste. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so prepared that they are agreeable to the most delicate.

Everything which gives us liberty without giving us command over ourselves is destructive.—Bailey.

How to Cleanse the System.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of scientific study of extracts of certain roots and herbs upon the digestive organs. Their use has demonstrated in many instances that they regulate the action of the liver and the kidneys, purify the blood, and carry off all morbid accumulations from the system. They are easy to take, and their action is mild and benefical.

He who knows not how to confer a kindness cannot justly ask for one.—Hereford.

A lady writes: "I was enabled to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

Greater virtues are needed to bear good fortune than bad.—La Rochefoucauld.

Worms derange the whole system. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator deranges worms and gives rest to the sufferer. It only costs 25 cents to try it and be convinced.

Tired feelings in the morning may come from too heavy bed-clothes.

More Terrible Than War!

More terrible than war, famine or pestilence is that awful destroyer, that hydra-headed monster, Consumption; that annually swoops away more of earth's inhabitants than any other single disease known to the human race.

"It is only a cold, a trifling cough," say the careless, as the irritation upon the delicate mucous membrane causes them to hack away with an irritable tickling of the throat. When the irritation settles on the mucous surface of the throat, a cough is the result. To prevent Bronchitis or Consumption of the Lungs, do not neglect a cough however slight as the irritation spreading throughout the delicate lining of the sensitive air passages soon leads to fatal results. If on the first appearance of a cough or cold you would take a few doses of you would save yourself a great deal of unnecessary suffering. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the life-giving properties of the pine trees of Norway, and for Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all Throat and Lung affections it is a specific. Be sure when you ask for Dr. Woods Norway Pine Syrup to get it. Don't be humbugged into taking something else. Price 25 cts.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Miss Lena Johnston, Toledo, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for throat troubles after taking numerous other remedies, and I must say that nothing can take the place of it. I would not be without a bottle of it in the house."

A fool and his money are much respected—while they remain together.

There never was and never will be a universal panacea in one remedy for all ills to which flesh is heir. What would relieve one ill in turn would aggravate the others. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtained in a sound, unadulterated state a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual and judicious use the frailest systems are led into convalescence and strength by the influence which Quinine exerts on Nature's own restoratives. It relieves those to whom a chronic state of morbid despondency and lack of interest in life is a disease, and by tranquilizing the nerves disposes to sound and refreshing sleep—imparts vigor to the action of the blood, which being stimulated, courses through the veins, strengthening the healthy, animal functions of the system, thereby making activity a necessary result strengthening the frame and giving life to the digestive organs which naturally demand increased substance—result, improved appetite. Northrop & Lyman of Toronto have given to the public their superior Quinine By the opinion of scientists, the wine approaches nearest perfection of any on the market. All druggists sell it.

It is always a serious thing to fall out in the sea of matrimony.

Let us try to make hopefulness and patience beautiful till the light from the lamp of self-sacrifice falls upon it.—John Ruskin.

Ignorance is a Curse.—"Know thyself" is a good admonition, whether referring to one's physical condition or moral habitudes. The man who is acquainted with himself will know how to act when any disarrangement in his condition manifests itself. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is a cheap and simple remedy for the eradication of pain from the system and for the cure of all bronchial troubles.

Under-woollens should be as heavy as needed for warmth but of loose fitting. Such garments are warmer than tight-woven ones which are impervious to air and moisture.

Many inherit weak lungs, and as disease usually assails the weakest point, these persons are continually exposed to attacks of cold and pulmonary disturbances. The speedy use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup will be found a preventive and a protection, strengthening the organs so that they are not so liable to derangement from exposure or abrupt atmospheric changes. Bickle's Syrup is cheap and good.

HUMOROUS.

"Is he as much of a lady killer as he was before his marriage?"

"More; he's got an auto now."

There are two portions of every man's life, when he should not use profanity: first when he is mad, and second when he is in good humor.

Down along the shore near Salem a way has added "y" to the sight, so that the familiar auto sign reads "Slow down to not faster than eighty miles an hour."

THREE Trying Times in A WOMAN'S LIFE WHEN MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS are almost an absolute necessity towards her future health.

The first when she is just budding from girlhood into the full bloom of womanhood.

The second period that constitutes a special drain on the system is during pregnancy.

The third and the one most liable to leave heart and nerve troubles is during "change of life."

In all three periods Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will prove of wonderful value to tide over the time. Mrs. James King, Cornwall, Ont., writes: "I was troubled very much with heart trouble—the cause being to a great extent due to "change of life." I have been taking your Heart and Nerve Pills for some time, and mean to continue doing so, as I can truthfully say they are the best remedy I have ever used for building up the system. You are at liberty to use this statement for the benefit of other sufferers."

CORDIAL INVITATION

ADDRESSED TO WORKING GIRLS

Mlle. Robitaille Tells How Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Helps Working Girls.

Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female disorders, especially those who are obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night in stores or factories.

Day in and day out the girl toils, and she is often the bread-winner of the family. Whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, she must go to her place of employment, perform the duties exacted of her—smile and be agreeable.

Among the ills she is subject to are those symptoms of female disease so clearly manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower parts of the abdomen. In consequence of frequent wetting of the feet, periods become painful and irregular, and frequently there are faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden. All of these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism which can be easily and promptly cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Anna Robitaille, 78 rue St. François, Quebec, Quebec, tells what this great medicine did for her. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

Overwork and long hours at the office, together with a neglected cold, brought on a very serious female trouble until finally I was unable to go to work. I then thought of a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when her health was in the same condition that mine was and straightway sent out for a bottle. I finished that and took two more before I really began to improve but after that my recovery was very rapid and I was soon well and able to go back to work again. I certainly think your medicine for sick women worthy of praise and am indeed glad to endorse it."

It is to such girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Her long record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl.

WAGES OF LYING.

Mr. Orison Swet Marden, in his book on "The Optimistic Life," tells this story:

"If I hire you," said a Detroit grocer to a boy, who had applied for work, "I suppose you will do as I tell you?"

"Yes, sir."

"If I told you to say that the sugar was high grade when it was low, what would you say?"

The boy did not hesitate a moment.

"I'd say it," he responded promptly.

"If I told you to say the coffee was pure, when you knew that it had beans in it, what would you do?"

"I'd say it."

"If I told you to say that the butter was fresh, when you knew that it had been in the store for a month, what would you say?"

"I'd say it."

The merchant was amazed.

"How much will you work for?" he inquired, very seriously.

"One hundred dollars a week," answered the boy in a business-like tone.

The grocer came near falling from his stool. "One hundred dollars a week?" he repeated in astonishment.

"With a percentage after the first two weeks," said the boy, coolly. "You see," he went on, "first-class liars come high; and, if you need them in your business you've got to pay them the price. Otherwise I'll work for three dollars a week." So the boy caught the grocer at his own game, and got the job at three dollars a week.

And he never sold a pound of sugar, a pound of coffee, a pound of butter that was not all right; and both grocer and boy prospered in their integrity.

MAKING SHORT WORK OF TEMPTATION.

Half-hearted resistence is the greatest encouragement you can give a tempter. "No-o" can easily be changed to yes, and the one who is trying to induce you to go contrary to what you think is right, is only spurred to try harder by your hesitating refusal. Make short work of temptation by being whole-souled in your resistence. Put all the strength of your will into your "No."
