The Financial Strength Of The Church

Few realize the importance of the financial side of the modern church, based upon the annual contributions not only for the maintenance of the individual church, but the gifts towards the missionary, philanthropic, medical and educational work now widely carried on in both home and Foreign fields.

Totalling the sums received by the Protestant Churches for all purposes, the large amount of $35,000,000 is reported. Of this substantial sum, the Presbyterian and Methodist denominations contributed approximately $11,000,000 each, the other churches contributing in equal ratio based on membership.

Another large financial total comes from an estimate of the property value of the same churches which may safely be estimated at a round hundred millions, the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches accounting for seventy millions of this. It may thus be seen that the finance of the modern churches are an indication of their strength and importance.

Over in the city of the Greys the local followers of Izaak Walton are interesting themselves in forming a protective organization for speckled trout. In the Co. of Grey it is claimed that the streams are becoming depleted, and soon, if nothing is done to ward off the poor sportsmen, there will be nothing for the real sportsman to live for. A plan is being worked out and may be put before the County Council in June—Collingwood Bulletin.

PRICEVILLE

During the past week weather conditions have been excellent. The warm, moist weather has advanced the meadows, and pastures greatly, and the young grain is making a good showing.

Meetings will be held this week on Friday, in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches here, and also in the Swinton Park, Salem, and Bethel churches, for the purpose of trying to form a local union of the two denominations.

The several persons who have been ailing for more or lese time are all gaining nicely in health.

The Field Crop Competition in connection with the Agricultural Society here has the appearance of being quite successful this year.

The Fox Co. are anticipating a successful year in breeding and rearing of a large number of high class animals.

Mr and Mrs R Conkey are getting settled in the appartments in their brick block connected with the postoffice.

Farmers and the Wood Lot

Perhaps the greatest objection made to caring for the woodlot is the time it takes to produce large sized timber. On the farm, however, there are many uses for small and medium sized forest products and these take a comparatively short time to produce. On many wood lots a thrifty young growth already exists that will not require many years before it is sufficiently large to use. A little attention will shorten considerably the time required to produce marketable material. The use of small dimension material is steadily increasing since the scarcity of wood in large dimension has forced the attention of manufacturers to the use of built up wood. The war has done much to increase our knowledge regarding the possibilities in the use of laminated products, of which the airplane is an example. The use of wood in small sizes makes it possible to market the products of the wood lot while the trees are comparatively young.—Bulletin No. 60, Director of Forestry, Toronto.

Want Streams Restocked

A special meeting of the Local Board of Trade was held on Tuesday afternoon at which a scheme for the establishment of a fish hatchery in Grey County was put forth. The aim is to completely restock the different streams and waters in Grey County.

It is planned to seek the aid of the Government and also the aid of the County Council when it meets next month. A Committee to deal with the matter and communicate with other interested parties in the county was appointed. The committee consists of the following nimrods, Messrs. M. D. Lemon, J. H. Christie, A. J. Frost, W. G. Hay, J. C. Telford, W. H. Smith and E. D. Bonnell.—Owen Sound Advertiser

What To Expect Here

Engineer Geo. M. Downey of Bruce County, is carrying out the instructions of the Provincial Highways Department in making a proposal to the land owners along the highway to donate a strip of land 10 feet wide to the Department, in order to increase the width of the road to 86 feet. The Department in return will erect a uniform wire fence in front of each owner's farm, at a cost of $1.35 per rod, so that the owner will receive $108 worth of fence for three-fifths of an acre of land. South of Harriston all of the farmers have signed up, and in fact fully 30 per cent. of the owners of this division have accepted the offer of the Dept. in this matter. The sides of this road will be levelled off, and a row of ornamental shade trees planted. This will greatly beautify the provincial highway.

More Money For The Parliament Buildings

One of the interessing facts brought out in last Friday's discussion of public works estimates was the new home of Canada's Parliament will cost the country eleven and a half millions when it is completed. Hon. Dr. King confided to the members that up to the end of March $10,275,000 had been spent and "about" another million would be required to complete it. The House provided $700,000 to carry on.

Agitation Will Go On

In summing up its report of the hydro meeting at Durham last week the Chronicle has this to say:

The meeting we believe, will be productive of good, as the determined attitude of the users will have some influence on the Commission. The explanation given had some influence in allaying the existing dissatisfaction, but few, we believe, are fully reconciled to existing conditions, and the agitation will go on till better terms are secured. The concensus of opinion of the meeting was in favor of a change by which users, whether from far or near to the source of power, should get the current on equal terms. They looked upon it as unfair for one municipality to pay double or treble as much as another for the same service, and further, it was believed by every delagate that local commissions should have some measure of control in the management of their own local affairs

A 19 inch trout weighing over three pounds was pulled out of the Saugeen on the 2nd con., Bentinck, by a Mr. Schaus of Hanover.

Yesterday morning several West Esa men went up to the fishery for some fish and to have a little outing. The fun they had far exceeded their expectations, it having been the good fortune of a number of them to witness two battles with sturgeon. Both were secured, one while the men were fishing for shad. The other sturgeon appeared along the bed of the stream when the young fellows had put on their boots and coats and were preparing to come home. Without hesitation they jumped into the stream and captured the fish, which did not come out without a big fight. One of them weighed 48 pounds and the other 35 pounds.—Shelburne Economist.
