A GOOD RULE

Don't interrupt your father when he's telling funny jokes;
Don't interrupt your mother when she's entertaining folks;
Don't interrupt a visitor when he has come to call;
In fact, it is wiser not to interrupt at all.
—St. Nicholas.

THE FIRST YEAR

Mrs. Jepson raised her eyebrows and stirred her tea reflectively.

"But you don't know her," she protested. "She may be stupid—mind, I don't say she is, I say she may be—she may be a prig, she may be 'impossible' she may be, well, she may be almost anything. Why are you hurrying so madly to call on this Mrs. Russell? You don't know anything about her."

"Yes, I do," flashed back Mrs. Miller, "I know two things. She's a bride and this is her first year in a strange neighborhood. That's enough, isn't it? Later she will have her own special friends and adjust herself to her appropriate social place, wherever it is; but this first year it people aren't nice to her, loneliness and homesickness will bite right into her heart."

"That's your creed, isn't it—being nice to people?" Mrs. Jepson smiled. "Well I wait; I'm cautious. When I know that they are going to be interesting and congenial, I am as nice as you are; but I don't hurry, and I wouldn't if I were you. I don't think I'll call on Mrs. Russell just yet; I'll watch results.

Results came rapidly. Mr. Russell proved to be clever and attractive; his wife was pretty and tactful. Within a year they were the most popular couple in Richmount, invited everywhere, and conspicuous on Mrs. Jepson's dinner-list. She had waited and was quite sure. Indeed she approved very highly of Mrs Russell. But for some the Russells, while they were friendly with every one, seemed to be especially fond of the Millers.

"And I can't see why," wondered Mrs. Jepson to Mr. Jepson. "The Millers haven't done very much for them, while I've asked them over and over—oh, yes, I know they've returned the invitations, and she's always nice, but that isn't what I mean. Why, I gave my most elaborate tea for Mrs. Russell; flowers from Megan's, teas from Brangs's, and music—well you know what we paid for that. And yet it's Mrs. Miller she chooses to make her special friend. I don't think she's quite grateful."

But Mrs. Jepson had forgotten the first, the lonely year, when friends had meant so much."

APPRECIATION

A man never appreciates ashes until he slips on the ice.

That which we acquire with most difficulty we retain the longest.

A bad vessel is seldom broken.

We never know the worth of water till the well is dry.

What costs little is little esteemed.

BAD BLOOD
Is The Cause of Boils and Pimples.

When boils or pimples start to break out on your face or body you may rest assured that the blood is in an impure state, and that before you can get rid of them it will be necessary for you to purify it by using a good medicine that will drive all the impurities out of the system.

Burdock Blood Bitters is a blood purifying remedy. One that has been on the market for the past forty years. One that is known from one end of the country to the other as the best blood purifier in existence. It cures boils, pimples and all other diseases arising from bad blood.

BOILS CURED.

Mr. Andrew E. Collier, River Glade, N.B., was troubled with boils for years, in fact, did not know what it was to be rid of them until he used Burdock Blood Bitters. It cured him.

PIMPLES CURED.

Mr. Otto Boyce, Varker, Ont., had his face and neck break out with pimples. He tried several kinds of medicine with out success. Two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters banished them.

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BLARNEY CASTLE

Among the many picturesque, ivy-covered castles and abbeys seen in Ireland, none are more beautiful or more widely known than the stately ruins of Blarney Castle, which rise near Cork in Munster, surrounded by some of the wildest and loveliest scenery in the Emerald Isle. This antique pile, which stands on the topmost pinnacle of a precipitous ridge of limestone rock that rises abruptly from a deep valley, was built in 1449 by Cormick McCarthy. At the base of the frowning limestone, washing its beetling crags with its clear waters flows the busy little Awmartin River; while near by, throwing into strong relief the turrets of the Castle, are the famous "Groves of Blarney," that thick shrubbery of giant laurels which has so often been celebrated in both song and story.

Of the splendid, original fortress, there now remains nothing save one large, square tower or keep, still massive and impressive in spite of its crumbling walls, for each ivy-mantled stone, standing silently in its place, has looked down for long centuries on some of Ireland's most thrilling history, and, could it speak, it would doubtless tell marvellous stories of days gone by.

The top of the old tower is surrounded by a parapet which reaches breast high, and there is the spot toward which all tourists turn their eager footsteps, for on the very highest pinnacle, firmly held in place by stout iron bars,

There is a stone there
That whoever kisses
Oh! he never misses
To grow eloquent.

A clever spouter
He'll turn out, or
An out-and-outer
To be let alone.

Don't hope to hinder him,
Or to hewhider him,
Sure he's a pilgrim
From the "Blarney stone."

The firm belief among Irishmen that "whoever kisses the Blarney stone can persuade to anything" has many odd traditions as to its origin.

BOOKS

Books are the quietest and most constant of friends; they are the most accessible and wisest of counsellors, and the most patient of teachers. With his daily work and his books, many a man whom the world thought forlorn has found life worth living. It is a mistake to suppose that a great deal of leisure is necessary for this happy intercourse with books. Ten minutes a day devoted affectionately to good books—indeed to one book of the first order like the English Bible or Shakespeare—will in thirty years make all the difference between a cultivated and uncultivated man, between a man mentally rich and a man mentally poor. The pleasures of reading are, of course, in good part pleasures of the imagination; but they are just as natural and actual as pleasures of the sense, and are often more accessible and more lasting. Charles W. Eliot.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EARLEY, 961 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

WHEN TO USE THE WILL

Taking the pledge is not acknowledgment of weakness of the will—instead it proves the will's supremacy. The people who say a great deal about exercising the will to stop short of moral and physical suicide, seem to lose sight of the fact that it can also be used to keep one on the highest plane of moral and physical efficiency. It is better to use your will while it is possessed of all its normal vigor than to wait till it is enfeebled, vitiated and paralyzed by an indulgence which invariably undermines the will.

BISHOP ROBERT M'INTYRE TO THE BOYS

I know you, know you all, know you well, because boys are boys the land over, and across all seas, the same queer, mysterious, uproarious, troublesome, visionary, brave, unconventional, provoking, charming, and incomprehensible being everywhere. Your difficulties are many as you meet the "forks of the road."

Destiny hangs on your decisions now, Doom looks over your shoulder to note your verdict. Your burdens are as heavy to you as a man's load is to him. I suffered more before I was twenty-one than since. You once were misunderstood, pushed aside, pooh-poohed, snapped at, overworked, overschooled, overcensured. Your fights were with beasts inside, and you got no sympathy—only sawdust advice with no butter on it. Your passions swept over you like a flood, and folks said: "Sink or swim." Your ideals were white and high, and your elders said "mush and moonshine." It was then a hard, cold world for a hot-blooded boy. It is better now and, and there is still something better coming round the bend in the road. Be true, helpful, consistent, live, vital boys, like the Lad of Nazareth.—Greensburg Methodist News.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

are not a new and untried remedy—our grandfathers used them. Half a century ago, before Confederation, they were on sale in nearly every drug or general store in the Canada of that day, and were the recognized cure in thousands of homes for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Rheumatism—and Kidney and Liver Troubles. To-day they are just as effective, just as reliable as ever, and nothing better has yet been devised to

RAILROAD CROSSING—TRAVELLER'S DUTY TO LOOK AND LISTEN

A railroad track is in itself a danger signal, and it is only under exceptional circumstances that a traveller approaching a railroad track is relieved of the duty to look and listen for trains, according to the decision of the Supreme Court of Minnesota in the case of Pogue vs. Great Northern Railway.

The court further held that the failure of the railroad company to give the unexpected signals may excuse such a traveller in relaxing his vigilance somewhat, but does not dispense with vigilance altogether and that any circumstance imposing the exercise of the sense of hearing renders more imperative the duty of the traveller to use his sense of sight.

HIS SHARE.

"Great Scott, Clara, what do you mean by keeping me waiting here so long looking like a fool?"

"Well Harry, I knew I kept you waiting, but you did the rest yourself."

LIKE THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT

The interdependence of the various sources of wealth in Canada is well indicated by a comparison of activities during the year just past with the one preceding. Canada's western grain crop was less in 1914 compared with 1913, by 132,000,000 bushels. This and the general lack of funds among the public is responsible for the decrease in railway earnings. The decrease in railway earnings and the inability of the railway companies to secure adequate loans from abroad prevented them from extending their lines to the same extent as in 1913, and made it impossible for them to order rails and rolling stock. Partly for the latter reasons iron and steel foundries suffered. Another reason was that the building all over the country was only half what it was in 1913. All this impaired the demand for labor which has resulted in our unemployed problem. The fact is the nation is one family economically. This is the first lesson. The second is that being one family, all parties, the bankers, railways, manufacturers, agriculturists, traders and workers, should co-operate in a more thorough-going manner for the common good.

STELLA'S DIGNITY

"Glenn paid me a dandy compliment last night, mother—one that will please you too," said Stella Harding. "He was talking about the girls in this block and how disgusted the boys were with them. He said that the trouble with the girls around here was that they had positively no personal dignity—and he never seemed to take into account that I lived in the block myself. But he made up afterward for forgetting. He said—not much—he guessed he didn't mean me; that I was noted for my dignity with all the fellows, and he'd often heard them speak of it. What do you say to that?"

Mrs. Harding was listening with motherly satisfaction. "How did it happen to occur to him that you might be applying it to yourself?" she asked.

"I put it to him, straight. I just waited until he stopped for breath, and then I said, 'Well, Madame, Glenn, is this a slam?'"

"Stella, what a speech! There is no dignity about that."

"O toot, mamma!" was the laughing response, made without the slightest intention of disrespect. "That's just the way we all talk. Things like that don't count on dignity, one way or the other—not in our bunch. It's how you act, don't you know?"

DEBT—BEWARE OF IT

Young men, you that are about embarking in life on your own account as you value your hopes of success, let not the burden of debt over rest on you with its blighting curse. Resolve that though you possess but little it shall be yours untrammeled and free. That no man shall hold a mortgage over your title, and that no scheming money lender shall have the chance to step in and take advantage of your hard earnings. If you can't pay for what you want, better go without it until you can. Countenance the contracting of no debts except in sickness or other unavoidable causes. A little self denial at the start, often lays the foundation for a period of prosperity and affluence in after life. Live within your means, and grow up as your means increases. Break free from the old ruts with their galling chains, and institute a new departure. Turn your plow into the old field and root out the last vestige of the detestable weed that has so long been encumbering upon true progress. By this we do not mean that you should be covetous, niggardly, for this, too, is a vice equally to be shunned. But that you may walk up the journey of life without the crushing burden of debt to drag you down and darken your pathway, that you may peacefully enjoy the fruits of your labors, and that your chances of ultimate success may be brighter and freer of risks.—Ex.

NERVES WERE BAD

Hands Would Tremble So She Could Not Hold Paper to Read.

When the nerves become shaky the whole system seems to become unstrung and a general feeling of collapse occurs, as the heart works in sympathy with the nerves.

Mrs. Wm. Weaver, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I doctored for a year, for my heart and nerves, with three different doctors, but they did not seem to know what was the matter with me. My nerves got so bad at last that I could not hold a paper in my hands to read, the way they trembled. I gave up doctoring thinking I could not get better. A lady living a few doors from me advised me to try a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so to please her I did, and I am thankful to-day for doing so, for I am strong, and doing my own work without help."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DRINK AND CRIME

To the Editor:

I commend to your readers the following from the Pioneer:

"A Grand Jury sitting in Chicago a short time ago made a deliverance upon the liquor question which ought to have the careful consideration of everyone who seeks the welfare of his fellows. It said:

"We find that a large percentage of the crime brought to the attention of the public to the need of more stringent regulation of this traffic. We find that a large percentage of those charged with crime are from seventeen to twenty-five years old and that in nearly every case they drank malt or alcoholic liquors before or during the commission of the crimes for which they were indicted.

"We seriously question the wisdom of the state entering into partnership with those interests for the sake of an apparent profit (through the license system) but which is really a dreadful economic loss, and through this partnership feeding drink to those boys with one hand while with the other hand it metes out punishment for wrongs in which the state is really a participant."

The Old Fashioned Purging and Griping Action of Pills Is Now Done Away With.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all waste and effete matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract.

They do this by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood, and thus causing constipation, jaundice, catarrh of the stomach and similar troubles.

Mrs. L. M. Ratchford, Peterboro, Ont., writes: "Having been troubled for years with constipation, and trying many different remedies which did me no good whatever, I was asked to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I have found them most beneficial, for they are indeed splendid pills, and I can gladly recommend them to all people who suffer from constipation."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Miller's Worm Powders act mildly and without injury to the child, and there can be no doubt of their deadly effect upon worms. They have been in successful use for a long time and are recognized as a leading preparation for the purpose. They have proved their power in numberless cases and have given relief to thousands of children, who, but for the good offices of this superior compound, would have continued weak and enfeebled.

SHARP SAYINGS

Even when he can't make anything else a man can generally be depended upon to make a fool of himself.

The proper time to congratulate a bride and groom is after they have lived together for at least a year and are still happy.

Luck has a perverse habit of favoring those who don't depend on it.

When a fellow makes a fool of himself he goes on the principal that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

Love is blind, or at any rate the little rascal doesn't always succeed in shooting straight.

A girl should allow her parents to pick out a husband for her. Then she can always blame it on them.

A MERCIFUL FARMER

A young lady from the city was going to make her first visit to a cousin in the country. At the station she was met by cousin, and after a half-hour's drive he told her they were approaching his farm.

In one of the broad fields that met the young lady's attentive eye stood a windmill, and gathered around it, some standing and some reclining, were several hogs.

"Well, that beats anything I ever heard of!" exclaimed the fair one. "I didn't know that you farmers were so considerate."

"What doesn't" queried the country cousin.

"That over yonder," replied the city girl, pointing a pretty finger. "Just think of having a fan out in the field to keep those hogs cool." Sel.

THE WHITE FLAG.

I sent my love two roses—one
As white as driven snow
And one a blushing royal red,
A daring Jacqueminot.

I meant to touch and test my fate,
That night I should divine
The moment I should see my love
If her true heart were mine.

For if she holds me dear, I said,
She'll wear my blushing rose;
If not she'll wear my cold Lamorque,
As white as winter's snows.

My heart sank when I met her. Sure,
I've been overbold,
For on her breast my pale rose lay
In virgin whiteness cold.

Yet with low words she greeted me.
With smiles divinely tender.
Upon her cheek the red rose dawned—
The white rose meant surrender.

THE VORLOHN HOPE

Sergeant Maguire had a squad of recruits on the rifle-range. He tried them on the five-hundred-yard range, but none of them could hit the target.

Then he tried them on the three-hundred, and two hundred, and one hundred-yard ranges, in turn, but with no better success. When they had all missed on the shortest range, he looked round in dismay. Then he straightened up.

"Squad, attention!" he commanded. "Fix bayonets! Charge!"

Dust Causes Asthma.—Even a little speck too small to see will lead to agonies which no words can describe. The walls of the breathing tubes contract and it seems as if the very life must pass. From this condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy brings the user to perfect rest and health. It relieves the passages and normal breathing is firmly established again. Hundreds of testimonials received annually prove its effectiveness.

DON'T GIVE CONSUMPTION A CHANCE To Get a Foothold on Your System.

Check the First Sign of a Cold By Using

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

A cold, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise you that on the first sign of a cold or cough you get rid of it immediately. For this purpose we know of nothing better than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and those who have used it have nothing but words of praise for its efficacy.

Mrs. H. N. Gill, Truro, N.S., writes: "Last January, 1913, I developed an awful cold, and it hung on to me for so long I was afraid it would turn into consumption. I would go to bed nights, and could not get any sleep at all for the choking feeling in my throat and lungs, and sometimes I would cough till I would turn black in the face. A friend came to see me, and told me of your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got a bottle of it, and after I had taken it I could see a great change for the better, so I got another, and when I had taken the two bottles my cough was all gone, and I have never had an attack of it since, and that is now a year ago."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; and price, 25c and 50c.

It is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
