Mr. Jacob Loughead of the 4th line handed us some nice bunches of ripe wild strawberries one day last week. We notice by our exchanges that such phenomeral growth is quite common this fall.

We had a pleasant call on Saturday from Mr. Jos. Armstrong of Thornbury, who was visiting friends here and at Eugenia. Mr. W. D. Campbell, of Toronto, who has been holidaying at Eugenia, was another visitor we were glad to see.

Rev. Eagle of Holland Centre preached in the Methodist church Sunday morning and also favored the audience with a finely rendered solo. Mr. Wakefield of Harkaway took charge of the evening service. The pastor preached anniversary sermons at Harkaway.

There is a big change in the Flesherton streets this year since the extensive improvements were made early in the summer by gravelling. During the heavy rains the streets remained firm and the bore of other years, the mud, was not in evidence. The change has certainly been for the better.

The conversion loan issued by the Dominion Government to convert the 1917 Victory loan into new bonds at the same rate of interest have been successful and the amount of $100,000,000 has been taken out in new bonds throughout the Dominion. The total issue amounted to $198,000,000. We are informed that the big majority of the holders of the 1917 issue of five year bonds have converted them, but there are a few yet who have not done so. There is only a limited time to get the new issue and now is the time to act. A safer investment couldn't be had.

A Wonderful Escape

Helen Welton, the twelve year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Welton, had an extremely narrow escape from death on Friday last. She, with her younger sister, were sitting in a buggy at the town hall corner while the owner, Jim Stewart, was calling at Mr. Jos. Blackburn's residence. The animal started off. Helen, thinking it was running away, attempted to jump from the buggy, when her foot caught on the step in some manner. She had the presence of mind to grasp the spokes of the hind wheel, actually keeping it from revolving, thus keeping her head from striking the ground. When the animal was stopped after going nearly two blocks, the little girl was released. She was carried home and a doctor summoned, who found her terribly bruised on the hip and shoulder, her flesh being badly lacerated and muscles strained. She is recovering nicely and was able to sit up on Sunday. The animal was not running away, merely travelling at an ordinary pace, otherwise there would probably have been a fatality.

Coal $15 at Durham

The arrival of a car of coal is gratifying to citizens who thought they would freeze this winter for want of something to keep them warm. It is a further pleasure to learn it was sold here at $15.00 a ton, or $5.00 a ton less than many of us thought we would have to pay. The coal is hard chestnut, and from a casual glance at a load as it passed the office window, is apparently of good quality. It was received here and readily disposed of by W. Calder who says he expects to make further deliveries in the course of a few days. We learn in some nearby towns as high as $23 00 a ton is being asked.—Chronicle

Babe in Well

Last Monday, the 18-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carmack had a narrow escape fron drowning when she fell into an old well on their farm in Brant township, a short distance from Paisley.

The child was missing only a short time and when a search was made she was discovered floating on the top of the water in an unused well near the barn.

The childs father jumped into the well, in which there was 35 feet of water and succeeded in getting the child out.

Dr. Tucker, of Paisley, was at the scene of the accident in five minutes. Life was almost extinct, the pulse having stopped beating, and it took an hour and a half of artificial respiration to restore the child.—Hanover Post

DIED

CLARK—Alice Clark, wife of James Clark, at her home, Hume street, Collingwood, formerly of Maxwell, on Oct. 13, 1922, aged 64 years.

The funeral took place to the Anglican cemetery, Collingwood, on Oct. 14th.

DUDGEON—On Thursday, Oct. 12, 1922, at her residence 197 Margueretta St, Toronto, Elizabeth Kirkpatrick, widow of the late Henry Dudgeon. The funeral service was held on Saturday, Oct 14th and interment took place to Mount Pleasant cemetery. The deceased was the mother of Rev. J. Dudgeon, who was pastor in the Methodist church a few years ago, and was well and favorably known here. The many friends here of Rev. Dudgeon sympathise with him over his loss. She is survived by three sons: Thos. R Dudgeon, Toronto; Rev. Jas H. Dudgeon, Port Credit; Rev. Jos. W. Dudgeon, Bradford, and by three daughters: Mrs. Geo. Morrow and Mrs Thos. Lloyd, Toronto, and Miss Lillie at home. The surviving brothers and sisters of the deceased are: Thos. Kirkpatrick in Woodstock; William, in Barrie; James, in Shelburne; Mrs. Sherman, Mono Road, and Mrs Jas. Morrow, Everett.

Auto Burned

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph LeGard of Toronto, while motoring up from the Queen City Saturday afternoon, in their Ford coupe, had a rather nerve racking experience. Just as they arrived at the top of the Caledon mountain smoke was noticed issuing from under the footboard. The two occupants had barely time to jump out when flames burst forth, and the car was entirely consumed. There was not even time to secure a suit case which was stowed in the back of the car. Fortunately for Joe the car was insured

Mr. and Mrs. LeGard were brought to Caledon by a passing motorist, where they took the train for Flesherton and visited here over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Best and family, returning to Toronto Monday.

Busy Bees

William Cox, of the 10th Con, Kinloss struck something of a bonanza last week when he pulled down an unused chimney of his house. He knew for the past two years a colony of bees had been in possession of the chimney and the family had left them undisturbed. Knowing that this was a great season for honey, Mr. Cox thought this would be a good time to ascertain what his busy little neighbor was doing. After treating them to a "smoke", he proceeded to pull down the chimney. Quite a long section had been filled with comb and the comb filled with honey. Altogether there were over 200 pounds and all was removed without damage.

It was interesting to note how the little workers had adapted the construction of their nest to their surroundings. In no place was the comb allowed to come in direct contact with the bricks, but at frequent intervals braces of the comb material were put in so that the whole mass was held in position and kept perfectly clean. As the brick and mortar were removed the comb was easily taken out in sections.—Lucknow Sentinel.
