The score, however, does not indicate the class of play. It was a hard battle from the drop of the hat and each player fought hard. The local boys worried the visitors with their persistent back checking and Kennedy, goalkeeper for Acton, displayed wonderful skill, as he was frequently stormed. Mr. Hynds, of Acton, refereed the game to the entire satisfaction of all.—Advocate.

SELECTED THOUGHTS

Don't blame a man for kicking if you call him a donkey.

If you have anything to say to a mule say it to his face.

If a man leads a dog's life he may be excused if he growls.

Lawyers can stir up strife and create business, but doctors are obliged to let well enough alone.

She: "How's the motor car getting along, Sir Charles?"

He: "Well, fact is, I've seen very little of it. You see I've only had it three months and when it isn't in hospital, I am."—Punch.

A farmer hitched his team to a telephone-pole.

"Here," exclaimed a policeman, "you can't hitch there!"

"Can't hitch!" shouted the irate farmer. "Well, why does the sign say, 'Pole for Hitching?'"

"What is that for?" asked his mother.

Johnny came home the other day in high glee, wearing the arithmetic medal.

"That's the prize for doing examples," said Johnny. "I did this one: 'If our new baby weighs eleven and a half pounds, and gains an ounce a day—cause you told Mrs. Smith she did yesterday—how much will she weigh when she's twenty years old?' And the answer was four hundred and sixty-six pounds. And the teacher said I earned the prize."

ANIMAL WEATHER PROPHETS

Before a rainstorm a cat usually washes its face. Why? Some claim that the atmosphere excites the electricity in the cat's fur, and to overcome the tingling sensation she sets to washing herself.

One need seldom fear getting wet in the country. Horses, cows, sheep, hogs, dogs—all evince certain peculiarities before a storm. Dogs bury bones, horses fidget and neigh, cows lie down, hogs grunt.

Some day you may walk into a field and see a flock of sheep in a corner, all with their backs turned to the northwest. If you wait long enough you will feel a wind blow up from that direction.

FORESTALLED!

Pat had got hurt—not much more than a scratch, it is true, but his employer had visions of being compelled to keep him for life, and had adopted the wise course of sending him to the hospital.

After the house surgeon had examined him carefully, he said to the nurse: "Antiseptic bandage is not observable, I do not think there is any reason to apprehend tegumental cicatrization of the wound."

Then, turning to the patient, he asked, quizzically, "What do you think, Pat?"

"Sure," said Pat, "ye took the very words out of my mouth. That's just what I was goin' to say."

SYMPATHY

Obviously they were rural newlyweds. Equally patent was it that while he really knew very little about Toronto, he was heavily posing for HER Benefit as a blase embodiment of sophistication—and she believed him to the limit.

They had elected to walk from the station to the King Edward and were passing the Queen's when he pointed across the way and remarked in the bored manner of the lecturer on the rubberneck car:

"That place across the road's the new Armories."

"My ain't they fine—an' big," she commented, duly impressed.

Crossing Yonge Street on their hotelward course she was first to notice a masculine line-up on the opposite sidewalk. It was Saturday and nearly noon.

"What's all them men doing there, dear?" she cooed, clinging close to the coatsleeve of Wisdom.

The line obscured the window lettering, "Ontario Government Vendors." Therefore he answered nonchalantly:

"Oh, that there's the City Soup Kitchen and Toronto's breadline. Ain't it awful how this here unemployment hits city folks!"—Telegram.

THE CAREFUL McTAVISH

Mr. McTavish attended a christening where the hospitality of the host knew no bounds except the capacities of the guests.

In the midst of the celebration Mr. McTavish rose up and made the rounds of the company, bidding each person present a profound farewell.

"But, Sandy, man," objected the host, "ye're not goin' yet, with the evenin' just startin'?"

"Ney," said the prudent McTavish. "I'm no' goin' yet. But I'm tellin' ye good night while I know ye."

APPLE SAUCE BRICKS

Experts of the United States Government Chemistry Bureau have found out a means whereby apple sauce may be converted into bricks and stored by the housewife for many months without deterioration.

All she need do is to dry her apple sauce slowly in an oven, at low temperature, with or without spice in it. But it should contain no sugar.

When it is wanted for use sugar and water may be added, and after boiling three or four minutes it will be found most palatable. Apple sauce "dehydrated" and preserved in this way has no dried apple flavor.

A DIFFERENT ONE

Some time ago a well-known shoe traveller took "wifey" on one of his trips in which he had considerable driving. As they drove up to the hostelry in one of our northern towns, the stable boy, to whom the traveller handed the rig before helping his wife out, remarked casually "Huh! Got another one this time?" The traveller is still trying to explain that this is a pet expression of the hostler everytime a rig comes in with a girl.

DID SHE CALL AGAIN?

An old lady who is very much of a bore paid a visit to a family of her acquaintance. She prolonged her stay, and finally said to one of the children:

"I'm going away directly, Tommy, and I want you to go part of the way with me."

"Can't do it. We are going to have dinner as soon as you leave," replied Tommy.

WAS TAKING NO RISKS

Looking up from her paper with a sigh, Mrs. Smart, who had been reading the statistical column, remarked:

"Do you know, Charlie, that every time you draw your breath somebody dies?"

"Awfully sorry," returned her absent-minded husband, "but if I stop drawing I'll die myself."

NOT CONTINUOUS

Moonshining, rum-running and bootlegging are intermittent, not continuous like the regular saloon. It was the regular, every-day business at the same place, with the abundant supply, that caused "alcoholism." That has gone from New Hampshire.—New Issue.
