Investigating Cause Of Fire In the North

Haileybury, Oct. 30—Evidence of a somewhat startling nature in regard to the disaster of October 4, in Northern Ontario, possibly will be presented to fire marshal E. P. Heaton when he resumes his investigation here next week. The evidence may even run to charges of carelessness against certain authorities. These facts have transpired as a result of the investigators sent out by the Fire Marshall following his arrival here Thursday but as yet they have not been recorded under oath. This morning the fire marshall was assured by a resident of the Cobalt district that he would produce a witness who could identify the party responsible for the fire which destroyed Argentite. Accordingly an effort is to be made to locate this valuable witness. The sittings in Haileybury will occupy at least two days and for this purpose subpoenas have been served on more than 20 persons whose testimony is required in connection with the disaster These witnesses will describe the fire as it affected an area of approximately 20 square miles around Haileybury.

Mice Steal Money

(Alliston Herald.)

A sensational discovery was made by Clifton Kell a couple of weeks ago when hauling in clover. On loading a pile of fodder and baring the ground under it mice scurried in all directions, and on tearing the nest to pieces with his fork Mr. Kell was startled to see bank notes turn up. He picked up the good ones and some of the larger pieces of others. In undamaged bills there was $35 and considerable more had been so chewed by the mice that it was almost like down. Where the money was stolen by the mice is a mystery, as no one in the vicinity has lost any money. The field is a considerable distance from any dwelling, and how a family of mice could carry a roll of bank bills under a pile of hay is a mystery which is not likely to be cleared up.

Herman Taschke of Sullivan lost his large barn and contents by a mysterious fire. Loss estimated about $8000, insured for $3500.

Will Drill In Old Well More water For Rink

At a meeting of the shareholders of the rink it was decided to drill a well and thereby doing away with the old trouble in having to draw water to make ice. The contract for this work will be awarded in about a week and it is hoped that drilling will be completed by the middle of December. The Rink Company are out to make the rink up to date and provide healthy exercises for the winter months. The management have decided to operate the rink themselves again this year, and a caretaker will be appointed at a later date.
