Propose Changes At Eugenia Falls

New Penstock and Reduction in Operating Costs are Prophesied

The Meaford correspondent of the Sun-times says:—It is learned from a gentleman who is well informed in Hydro matters that a rearrangement of duties of the staff at Eugenia is contemplated which it is hoped will result in greatly reducing the cost of maintenance. These changes will effect all the departments even to the management of the boardinghouse Rumor has it that the wooden pipe leading to the edge of the hill behind the power house will be replaced by new wooden pipe line in the spring. The new pipe line will be built beside the old one in a way that the operation will not be interfered with. As the fall between the dam and the edge of the valley is small, a wooden pipe line is deemed sufficient to stand the pressure. It is also considered more satisfactory for the purpose, as the pressure is light until the edge of the valley is reached. From this point to the power house below the powerful steel pipe line should always prove satisfactory for the pressure, which increases rapidly until the power house is reached.

At the power house this steel tube or penstock is made of material about seven-eights of an inch in thickness, which is probably heavier than the steel used in the large ships. Perhaps the average reader is not aware that with a head or fall of 525 feet the water confined up this tube produces, at the lowest point a pressure of about 225 lbs. upon every square inch of the inside of the tube or penstock.

An Exciting Moment

Mr. John Williamson of the Old Durham Road had an exciting moment on Saturday afternoon last when both he and his son, Walter, had a narrow escape from instant death. They were working in the bush and felled a dead tree which lodged in another tree. Mr. Williamson hitched his team to the but of the lodged tree with the idea of pulling it down, but the team was unable to move it. Mr. Williamson then stepped near the team and with the lines in his hands struck the horses sharply, when they plunged forward. The dead tree broke about 20 feet up and fell over between Mr. Williamson and his son, just grazing both, and struck one of the horses, knocking it down. The team was taken to the stable but just after arriving there the injured animal suddenly fell down and expired. Instead of mourning his loss Mr. Williamson is thanking his stars that he and his son escaped the blow. The lines were broken in two by the falling tree.

House of Refuge

The land is valued at $5000 and the institution is supported by the whole county.

There are 49 inmates of the House of Refuge, 27 of these being male, 21 female and a four months' old infant. Only seven of the 49 pay for their maintenance. During the past year there have been seven deaths among the members of the House. A Superintendent and a Matron are in charge of the institution and assisting them are a man and three women. Dr. Ego is the House Physician and there is also a practical nurse in attendance.

Orillia has thirteen miles of waterways within its boundaries.

Markdale Man In Auto Accident

An auto and buggy collision that might have been accompanied with much more serious results than it did occurred on Hurontario street just south of Dunroon on Sunday morning. Miss Mary McKinney, who lives on the eighth line on the farm formerly owned by Dougald McGregor, was driving to the village to attend church. When a short distance from her home, and about 10.30 o'clock, the buggy was struck at the rear by an auto driven by Mr. Bellerby of Markdale. Miss McKinney was thrown out and very badly shaken up. Mr. Bellerby immediately rushed the injured woman to the G. and M. hospital where she received medical attention. As far as can be learned, the unfortunate circumstance was purely accidental. It is said not to have been due to fast driving nor is it to carelessness. With Mr. Bellerby there were three others in the car. Late reports from the hospital are to the effect rhat Miss McKinney is making favorable progress—Collingwood Bulletin.
