The annual meeting of the Presbyterian church was held on Thursday afternoon of last week in the basement of the church. The financial statement shows a good balance for the year in all the departments.

Saturday and Sunday were exceedingly cold and blustery days. As a result the church services on Sunday were poorly attended. In both Methodist and Presbyterian churches all services were held in the basement.

Friday last was Candlemas day, when the bear is supposed to come out and look for his shadow. There would not be much looking in this instance as it was a bright, sunshiny day, so we suppose we will have to put up with another six weeks of winter—would anyway.

The Methodist and Presbyterian Young People's Societies are uniting in this district this year in holding a summer school at Owen Sound from June 30th to July 8th. Last year the summer school was held by the Methodists alone and was considered a sucess.

A number of hockey fans from here attended the game at Shelburne Friday night last when Bolton played there. The home team won 7-0 and thereby won their group without losing a game. Tonight they play in Elora and the return game will be in Shelburne Friday night.

The Women's Institute, Maxwell, will hold a social evening in the Orange hall on Tuesday evening, Feb. 13. A good play to be given, entitled, "A Case of Suspension." Vocal selections, instrumental music and readings will be rendered. All come and have a good time. Lunch will be served. Admission—adults 25, children 15.

Some time last summer Reeve McKenzie entered into an agreement with Mr. Hugill, Hydro engineer of right of way, to repair a part of the tenth concession west of 35 sideroad, which had been flooded by overflow of the hydro pond. The amount agreed upon was $200, and later a cheque arrived for the amount from the Hydro office.

A Successful Concert

The ladies of the W. I. gave a concert in the high school on Friday evening last which was not as well attended as the excellent program provided would have warranted, but this was owing to counter attractions and sickness.

Reeve McTavish occupied the chair most acceptably. Two playlets were given—The Ghost of Crooked Lane and The Squire's Lesson. The talent which gave the entire program was mostly from out of town and the ladies desire us here to thank them for the very excellent variety of entertainment provided. Mr. Geo Littlejohns is a singer of Scotch songs of no mean order and his selections were heartily greeted. Mr. and Mrs. W. McFadden of Orange Valley rendered duets very sweetly and Mrs. Blackburn and Miss Mildred Caswell gave a piano duet; but perhaps the most attracive number on the program was the Scotch schottische dancing of Misses Kathleen and Irene McDonald, which simply brought down the house.

Mrs. W. J. Henderson

Mrs. W. J. Henderson passed away at her home here on Saturday afternoon after an illness of nearly five months' duration. She suffered a stroke last September from which she never rallied and was unconscious for some days before she died.

The deceased lady was born in Artemesia, near Wareham, her maiden name being Jane Isabel Morton. She married her now sorrowing husband and they lived on the Centre Line until a few years ago, when they gave up farming and came to Flesherton to reside. She was the mother of seven daughters and one son, as follows: Christena, at home; Belle (Mrs. H. Lowick) of Batteram, Sask.; Robt. of Moose Jaw; May (Mrs. Russel) at Weyburn; Grace (Mrs. Geo. Blackburn) of Artemesia; Agnes at home; Maybelle at Weyburn, Sask. and Lizzie, deceased (the late Mrs. Murray.) One child died in infancy about twenty years ago.

Mrs. Henderson was an ideal and affectionate mother of retiring disposition but a warm friend and counsellor to all who knew her. Her early death at the age of 67 years is a sad blow to the family. These have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Of her family one brother and one sister survive — Wm. Morton of the Centre Line and Mrs J. Johnston of Dundalk.

The funeral took place on Tuesday of this week to Flesherton cemetery after an impressive service in the Methodist church conducted by Rev. F. G. Fowler in the absence of her own pastor. Rev. J. H. Oke, who was ill.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, being given by: wreaths from the family, Robt and wife, grandchildren, C. M. White, Sunday School and Bible Class, Dr, and Mrs. R. H. Henderson, Jas Orr family; bouquet, R Bentham and wife; sheaf by E. C. Murray and wife; sprays from Shirley Murray, the choir, Hickling's staff, Bell Telephone staff, Mrs Blackburn, Mrs Mitchell and Mrs Moore, a spray.

Mr. Robt. Trimble of Stratford is on a three weeks' vacation at his home. Mrs. Trimble's condition has not improved to any great extent.

Two Scotch brothers had sworn off. Sandy suggested keeping a bottle in case of illness. It was purchased and put away. After three days Sandy could stand it no longer and he said, "Angus, am ill." "Too late," said Angus, "I was ill all day yesterday."

Rev. L. F. Kipp Glad To Visit Flesherton

From the Canadian Baptist

Going back to a former pastoral charge, after an absence of several years, is often an unpleasant experience. Families have removed to other cities; familiar faces are gone; the staunch supporters of other days have died and new workers are bearing the brunt of the conflict.

I went home last summer to the farm of my boyhood days. I shall always regret the trip; the place had changed so much. The barn had been re-built: most of the sugar bush had been cut; even the big cherry tree, from beneath the roots of which I used to dig the grounb-hog, had been cut so long that the stump had rotted away. Farms were owned by strangers; I was a stranger at home!

So I went back to Flesherton a Sunday ago, to preach anniversary sermons, with strangely conflicting feelings. I had concluded an unusually happy postorate there in 1909: once a year or two later I had been back for a Sunday. The years between, the world over, have been filled with changes, but the Flesherton-Rock Mill congregations have been left almost unchanged. From Flesherton—the mother of Baptist endeavor on that circuit—few Baptist families have disappeared. The leadersof fifteen years ago are those of the present day. Some of the younger members are in Toronto—the Mecca of the country—but the work is continuing with the "old guard" in charge.

At Rockvale two families have moved to Toronto, but the district as a whole remains as it was in 1909. Then it was crowded with youug people; the church was packed to the doors every Sunday evening. Now those people are the farmers of the community, Father and mother have moved to the town to spend their final days: the younger generation has taken their place. So the names in the locality are as of yore, but faces are different at the farm house doors.

Baptist work on this field is hopeful. At Ceylon there is a community hall in which services are held each Sunday. At Flesherton the work is old. The church is not large, but it is comfortable and a parsonage at the rear has recently been renovated at a cost of $1350. Rockvale is fifteen years old. The church building is good and it stands in the centre of a block nearly ten miles square in which there are few churches. The district likes the Baptist faith and welcomes its preachers. It looks forward eagerly to the time when it will be self-supporting.

I am glad I went to Flesherton. It was a treat to see old faces again and to find a place of such happy memories rejoicing still in Christian progress and fellowship.

Amos Train, Reeve of Floss township, is over 80 years of age, but still active and full of energy.

The chief of police of Barrie is named as tax collector there, but the treasurer does the work. The statutes provide that the treasurer must not be appointed tax collector, so the chief is made the goat.
