Election Boards

A large number of changes have been made in the election law. In the new law important sections relate to the formation of election boards for each county or Provincial judical district. In York county and Toronto the board consists of nine members: four County Court Judges, the Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, the Master of Titles, the Police Magistrrte and Inspector of Legal Offices. In other places the board will be composed of Judges of the District Court, local Registrar, Sheriff and Clerk of Peace. These boards really run the election under the authority of the Chief Electoral Officer, Mr. Allan M. Dymond. Three members of any board form a quorum. The Chief Electoral Officer is to advise the various county boards and supervise and instruct returning officers, poll clerks and so on.

As soon as convenient after the issue of the election writ these boards are to fix times and places in every municipality to hear complaints regarding voters' lists. Public notice must be given of such meetings. The last day for making complaints is two days before the date of the board's sittings. Any person entitled to vote can give notice of complaint as to any other person whose name should be on the list. Evidence before these boards is all under oath.

Mortality Among Pigs

The Owen Sound paper last week said it had investigated our story of an epidemic among young pigs and found it not correct. It said the mortality was no greater than in other years.

If the Sun-Times had wanted to investigate it should have come to us. As a matter of fact, five farmers on the west back line within half a mile of each other lost something like 90 per cent. of their young pigs. Mr. Ephraim Doupe lost the whole litter of fourteen, and Mr. John Parker was almost equally unfortunate, while Councillor Hogarth and others were heavy losers.

Mr. Doupe attributes the heavy mortality to the cold, backward spring. He says sows must have outside exercise in order to produce healthy offspring, and this year it was almost impossible to make them leave the pen. In his own case the sow had roomy, comfortable surroundings and was well fed. The loss was among early litters. Later litters, he thinks, will be all right.

The reporter for the Owen Sound paper should continue his investigation now that we have given him some pointers.

Ben Hur Recital

A rare treat was provided for the people of Flesherton when Capt. A. D. Robb of Toronto was engaged to give a dramatic recital of Ben Hur on Monday night under the auspices of the Tuxis Square. The recital was excellent, but the big crowd which should have been present was noticeable by its absence. However, the church was about half filled and the receipts amounted to about $33. The Hawaiian trio gave a number which was heartily applauded and this was followed by a chorus from the C S E T Girls. Miss Aleda Mitchell contributed an excellent solo. Edgar Sprott, who is President of the Tuxis Square, gave a short address, pointing out the nature of the Square and why it was formed. He also welcomed Capt. Robb to Flesherton again after an absence of three years.

Capt. Robb's rendering of Ben Hur was very realistic and carried his audience along with him, while depicting the scenes in the story. Especially good was the description of Ben Hur as the galley slave and the fight in the Aegean sea. His choice of language in the chariot race was excellent and very realistic. The recital deserved a larger patronage than was given it.

Suicide In Sydenham

Gillin Currie, one of the prominent farmers of Sydenham township, committed suicide by cutting his throat. He and his wife had been doing some chores at the barn, and Mr Currie was taken ill and said he would go to the house. When his wife came in latter she could not find him, and phoned her brother, Samuel Locke of Owen Sound. A search revealed the body of Currie in the cellar of his home with the throat cut. Currie had been ill with nervous trouble for a long time, but no one expected that he would commit such an act, as he was deeply religious. He leaves a widow. One daughter died some years ago.

A. M. Cole, coal dealer of Owen Sound along with fifteen other dealers in Ontario, have purchased the output of a small mine in Pennsylvania for this year. Mr. Cole's share will be 6000 tons of anthracite.
