"Saturday Treat"

Just think of it, two more weeks and Xmas Eve will be upon us, hard to believe isn't it? However it is a fact because we have received word from Santa Claus telling us he intended making our store his headquarters again for this Xmas. Poor Old Santa gave us a hint that he did not have quite as much money as he had last year, but we assured him that our prices were so much lower than last year that he would be able to buy just as much candy for less money. "Forbidden Fruit" —BY— Cecil B. DeMille

Clarence Burton, Agnes Ayres and Theodore Roberts in Cecil B DeMille's Production, "Forbidden Fruit"

A Paramount Picture

"In Forbidden Fruit" there is a fairy episode of the story of Cinderella and the Fairy Godmother. The episode was filmed in a stage setting constructed entirely of plate glass, the room was floored and walled with heavy glass, and a wide glass stairway beneath, on which lights and waterfalls alternately played. Stately glass pillars supporting baskets of blown glass fruit, serve as fountains, and wide pools of water peopled by black swans, alternate with the crystal floor, a section of this floor was so constructed as to permit the appearance of a massive clock, which strikes the hour of twelve, the end of Cinderella's dream. Agnes Ayres portrays Cinderella and Kathlyn Williams as the Fairy godmother.

Social Surveys of the World

Rt. Hon. C. J. Doherty was Canada's representative during 1921 at the assembly of the League of Nations in Geneva. Mr. Doherty took an important par in the proceedings, both on the floor of the assembly in reference to article 10, and in committee work.

Mr. Doherty indeed was chairman of one of the six committees of the assembly, the fifth, dealing with "humanitarian" questions. The agenda for the committee included traffic in opium, deportation of women and children in Turkey, traffic in women and children, the typhus campaign and international co-ordination of intellectual work.

At one of the meetings of the committee Mr. Henry Lafontaine, of Belgium made a survey of the evolution and scope of the movement for this co-ordination of intellectual work.

Mr. Lafontaine is closely associated with the "Union of International Associations," an organization with headquarters in Brussels, to secure the betterment of material conditions in intellectual work and also to develop a spirit of international union, and to encourage the co-ordination of the efforts of these associations to achieve within their own sphere—that of scientific, moral, legal, economic, social and charitable movements—the organization of intellectual life upon stable and sure bases.

At Brussels there has been established a bibliography comprising twelve million titles, a collection of inestimable value to intellectual workers all over the world. The diffusion of the information thus collected presented considerable difficulty, and this had led to the establishment at Brussels of an international university.

This institution is in no way intended to compete with other universities. It provides post-graduate courses for students who have already completed their studies and who wish to take advantage of the collective learning of the professors who, to the number of eighty-four, during the current year have assembled to give courses of lectures. It is hoped that in the future the organization will number among its members no fewer than 1,000 professors, members of universities in all parts of the world. Another objective is the fuller recognition of intellectual research, which is at present far from being recompensed or even recognized on the same terms as technical research, although it frequently occurs that the latter is inspired and brought to fruition only as the outcome of intellectual work, carried on perhaps under obscure and even penurious conditions.

Capital and labor, according to M. Lafontaine, are not the two essential factors, as is generally supposed, but intellect must in the first place provide the impetus for all human progress and production, and thinkers have, therefore, the right to a privileged position among the workers of the world, in order that they may be in a position to render services of still greater value than those which they have already rendered.

This Belgian authority hopes that the League of Nations may be able to build upon the foundations already laid, in such a way that both the material and the intellectual resources of every country may be pooled and distributed to the mutual advantage of intellectual workers all over the world.

M. Alvarez of Chile, another member of the committee, thinks there should be a standard to which students everywhere must attain in order to qualify for the pursuit of higher education. He also favors the unification of existing legislation with regard to literary property.

M. de Yanguas of Spain takes a similar view.

Mlle. Bonnevie of Norway emphasizes the viewpoint that freedom is one of the most important conditions of intellectual work. Too great a degree of contralization might be dangerous, especially if it were established too hastily.

The vice-chairman of this committee on humanitarian questions, headed by Mr. Doherty, is his excellency M. Tang-Paul-Fou of China. Other prominent members of the committee are Mr. Malcolm Lindsay Shepherd of Australia; Count Monadorff, of Austria; Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, of Great Britain; Mr. Gabriel Hanotaux, of France; Rt. Hon. Srinavasa Sastri of India; Baron Hayashi of Japan; Prince Giovanelli of Italy; Prince Arfa-ed-Dowleh, of Persia; Prof. Jonesco, of Roumania; His Excellency Phya Bidadh Kosha of Siam, and Prof. George G. Murray, representing South Africa.

Recalls Chicago Fire.

Lord Shaughnessy told a Chicago newspaper the other day that he was a clerk in the offices of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway at Milwaukee, his birthplace, when the great fire of Chicago occurred just fifty years ago.

"The present Chicago fire celebration interests me," he went on, "because I was in Chicago the second day after the catastrophe when the ruins were still blazing. I had to go as far as 12th street at the time to get something to eat."

Queer Taste.

"Have you had many books out of the library?" asked Jones.

"No," said his friend Smith. "I buy all mine."

"Oh!" went on Jones, impressed. "Have you read Conan Doyle?"

"No."

"Rider Haggard?"

"No."

"What have you read, then?"

"Red socks!"
