THE WARDERS

On Vimy Ridge and Passchendale,
Our silent armies sleep,
Through summer's sun and winter's gale
And 'neath the starry deep;
No more for them the dawn of day
Nor sunset on the hill,
Their souls and songs have died away,
Their giant strength is still.

The march of time goes swiftly by
And brings its cares and toil,
But in eternal youth they lie
Beneath a foreign soil;
With iron limbs and fire for breath
They charged amidst the gloom,
And shared along those fields of death
The comradeship of doom.

Yet not in vain they watch and wait
Strong champions of the right,
They are the warders at our gate
And guard us through the night.
From selfish aim and paltry ease,
From slavery of the soul,
The men that save the land are these
They point us to the goal.

Quebec. —Canon F. G. Scott
