HALTON PIONEER DEAD

MRS. THOMAS McDOWELL ONLY-BEATED 101st BIRTHDAY ON FEB. 5th, 1936

On Wednesday, Mar. 18th, Mrs. Thomas (Elizabeth Menary) McDowell, one of Halton County's oldest and best known characters, died at her home in Milton five weeks after she had celebrated her 101st birthday. The funeral took place on Saturday from Grace Anglican Church, where she had been a devout member and worker.

She had lived under five sovereigns, being born in 1835, when William IV. was on the throne, just two years before Victoria became Queen. She was confirmed by Bishop Strachan, and remembered how her father had helped build the first Anglican Church in Milton. It was there that she was first married in 1855. On the occasion of her birthday on Feb. 5 last, she attributed her longevity to hard work. "That is my recipe for 100 years of abundant and healthy life," she declared. With pardonable pride she related how she had made a Christmas cake last year.

Almost to the last she had retained a very clear memory, and often recalled her childhood days. She remembered arriving with her parents from Ireland in 1842, and attending the old school at Ligny, Ont. Last summer the first reunion of old pupils was held, and Mrs. McDowell took immense pride in a presentation made her as the oldest old pupil present, she then having reached the century mark. In her day, lessons were given in an old log structure, which had been put up in 1830 by the first pioneers of the district.

Her first husband, Henry Farrell, died in 1860, and two years later she married Thomas McDowell. These survive, two sons, Thomas McDowell, of Calgary, and Robert McDowell of Victoria Harbor, and two daughters, Mrs. Hugh Roks, of Port Stanley, and Mrs. Arthur D. Draidt of Hamilton.

The first Canadian cheese factory was established in Ontario in 1864 and the first Canadian creamery for butter-making n Quebec in 1873. The first centrifugal cream separator was imported from Denmark in 1882 and the Canadian Government's organization of cold storage services dates from 1895.

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, March 24—Coming events in the parliamentary world make a more sensational story than the accomplishments of the past week, which were fairly limited. The House of Commons spent the best part of four days passing the schedules of the United States trade agreement. Practically every item of the several hundred prompted some discussion. Protection versus Free Trade was the text of a good many speeches. The farm implement industry and its relationship with the prosperity of the farmer were thrashed out several times; in spite of the fact that the agricultural committee of the House is engaged in a study of farm implement prices, and that therefore many further opportunities will present themselves for a debate on this subject.

The House had a very hectic hour on Oscar Boulanger's bill to bring part of the civil service again within the patronage system; the tempest developed when the Secretary of State suggested that Mr. Boulanger's bill be given second reading so that it could be studied by a committee. This was rather an unfortunate proposal, because the approval of the second reading of a bill means the approval of its principle, and there are members in the House in all parties who would not allow such a measure to become law over their dead bodies. The result was a heated debate on the 'merit' and the 'patronage' systems of appointing civil servants; and for the second time in a few days the Boulanger bill was 'talked out.' But it will come up again, and it is pretty safe to predict still more fireworks.

(Not Much in the Hopper)

The legislative mill has been grinding along without much stuff in the hopper; but that defect will soon be rectified. Notices of resolutions, bills, committees of inquiry and so forth are beginning to pile up. A hasty glance over the 'bill of fare' for the immediate future as it stacked up last week-end immediately brings to light the following:

A committee to study the radio commission and its work.

A committee to study the wheat board and its work.

Legislation to bring the Bank of Canada under the control and ownership of the government.

A study of electoral and franchise machinery in Canada.

Legislation to set up a national Harbor Board.

An amendment of the British North America Act to provide federal guarantees of provincial loans.

Another amendment, to authorize provinces to levy indirect taxes on retail sales, places of amusement, hotels, etc.

Legislation to create a National Employment Commission.

Legislation to create a Veterans' Assistance Commission.

Legislation to provide for agricultural settlement, rehabilitation, development of natural and other resources and relief for unemployment.

Legislation to merge the Pension Appeal Court and the Pension Commission.

I have probably missed two or three, even at that; but it is obvious that a great deal of important work is now before the House. Add these and any other such new legislation as may be prepared, a budget which will not be empty nor insignificant; a discussion of the Japanese trade arrangement; discussions of the Ottawa agreements and a few such current issues: and it is easily seen we shall be plugging away here for some time. Talk of a short light session is obviously idle.

(Payments to Pool Farmers)

Legislation to provide for payment of about $8,000,000, to farmers who delivered wheat, rye and flax to the pools in 1930 was also heralded during the week by the placing of the necessary notice on the order paper. The government has relented a little from its first position. The order in council of October last contemplated a total payment of over $8,200,000; the original proposal of this government was for a payment of $4,900,000. The present plan is about half way between these two and provides for some payment to producers of coarse grains (rye and flax only) and durum wheat producers of Manitoba. The government finds it impossible to suit everyone in regards to these 1930 payments. In the East there is a good deal of opposition to paying anything; in the west the pool farmers feel they are not getting enough while the nonpool farmers are displeased because they are getting nothing.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Alliston is trying to revive its band.

Announcement has been made that the Black Knights Preceptory will hold a monster celebration in Orillia next August, which officers estimate will bring close to 6,000 visitors to the town.

A new moving picture theatre, being erected in Mount Forest, is almost completed. It will be known as the Lauder Theatre and will be opened on April 1.

Holland township in Grey County holds a unique position with not a single tax arrear, no debenture debt, every 1935 account paid and a balance of $7,097 on deposit in the bank.

Midland tax receipts to date are the highest in three years and are 33 per cent higher than last year. To March 1st, $93,870.08 has been collected this year as compared with only $70,568.76 in 1935.

Decision of a majority of Orillia council to provide, in their estimates, $500 for the purchase of a car for use of the local police, caused Mayor J. B. Johnston to leave the committee room, declaring as he went: "I am through with your estimates if all you are trying to do is throw money way."

Eight to ten acres of woodlot on a 100-acre farm is usually sufficient to supply the ordinary farm house with fuel, but two or three acres are better than nothing.

Harry Perks of Meaford, through the Natural History Club, has forwarded a goshawk to the museum in Toronto, which it is claimed is the largest goshawk found in Ontario to date.

Halton County Council has again refused to pay the bill sent them for Halton pupils attending Streetsville High School, so we guess those Halton pupils will have to make a change and attend some high school in their own county.

The town of Stayner has a relief recipient who keeps a large family on $3.50 per week. The man was termed an "efficiency expert" by one of the town councillors.
