SUNSETS

Sunset pictures add interest to your snapshot album.

DID you ever stop to realize how considerate Mother Nature is of the amateur photographer? Month after month she changes the appearance of landscapes, trees, shrubs and even the skies, giving us something new to snap almost every day.

She has now shifted her scenery to her autumn display of new flowers, colorful foliage and last but not least—beautiful clouded skies to serve us with fascinating backgrounds for landscapes and sunset snapshots.

Don't overlook the opportunity to capture a few of these beautiful sunsets for your snapshot album. They add interest to your picture collections and usually bring that highly prized remark from your friends—"There's a beautiful picture. How did you take it?"

An artistic sunset picture possibility is not waiting for you every night in the week so don't rush out the door after reading this and expect to get one. Maybe you will but it is doubtful. A good sunset picture is just one of those things you watch and wait for.

You will find that a foreground of water or a background of hills will add much to the interest and artistic appearance of your sunset. By all means wait until there are clouds, for you will find that the clouds "make the picture."

No set rule can be made on the exposure time for sunset pictures but generally you will get a properly exposed negative if you set the diaphragm at f.16 and the shutter speed at 1/100 of a second. This setting of the diaphragm and shutter depends much on the brightness of your setting sun.

Believe it or not, attractive "moonlight" scenes can be made by sunlight. This is best done during the sunset hour and when there are masses of clouds floating in the western sky which create lighting conditions favorable for picturing "moonlight" scenes. The sun can be wholly or partially obscured and if the light is red, yellow or orange a snapshot exposure with a medium stop opening can be given.

To secure a night effect from a negative exposed in this manner, it must be printed long enough so that all but the highlights will be dark. If you don't do your own printing explain what effect you want to your finisher.

You will get a lot of pleasure taking these pictures and the result will be well worth your time and effort

LORNE RIFLES DRILL IN MANOEUVRES AT MILTON

Milton Agricultural Park was the scene of military manoeuvres on Saturday, when over 300 of the Lorne Rifles, Scottish, assembled for the annual general inspection by Brig. Kirkina, D.S.O., M.D. 2, assisted by Col. Frank Chappell, V.D., O.C.

Twenty-five companies from Oakville, Burlington, Georgetown, Acton and Milton went through their drills under the command of the following officers: A Company, Lieut. Meath-Cole, M.M., and Lieut. R. Miller; B Company, C. D. Chisholm; C Company, R. H. Millar; D Company, Captain J. R. Barber; Signals, Lieut. C. T. Sharpe; stretcher bearers, J. H. Nesbitt.

The pipe band, under the leadership of Pipe-Major McCurrel, and the brass band, led by Sergt.-Major Perrott, gave a splendid performance, as the boys went through their drills in a manner which proved exceptionally fine training. Following the inspection, a banquet was held in the Armoria, and military enthusiasm waged high as the boys continued their celebration by dancing to the music of Lehman's radio orchestra of Oakville.

GEORGETOWN BOWS TO ACTON

Last Wednesday evening, the Junior Rugby Team from Georgetown High School, under the coaching of Mr. Lambert, opened the gridiron season in Acton, and came out on the short end of a 13 - 6 score.

From the kick-off it was apparent that Georgetown was up against a heavier and more experienced team. For the first two quarters, Georgetown were backed under the shadow of their own goal-posts, but Acton could do no more than score a touch and a rouge.

After half-time, Georgetown appeared to have recovered from their nervousness, and, as a result, play was much more even. Their plunging middle, Arnold, ploughed through the Acton line for many long gains. Arnold and McNally teamed up on end runs, and this combination repeatedly moved the yard-sticks for Georgetown.

Acton's second touch was a gift Georgetown fumbling behind their own line, and Acton falling on it for another five points. In the last quarter Arnold carried the ball across the Acton line for a touch which Beaumont converted.

Arnold starred for Georgetown, both offensively and defensively, while Sylvester was the best of the ankle-snatchers. For Acton, Jones and Norton were the shining lights.

YOUNG PEOPLE TO GATHER FOR ANNUAL CORPORATE COMMUNION

The Fourth Annual Corporate Communion and Breakfast, sponsored by Peel Deanery and District Local Council of the A.Y.P.A., is to be held at Christ Church, Brampton, again this year, on Thanksgiving morning, Oct. 24th, at 8.30. Branches all across Canada are holding similar services, and it is, without doubt, the outstanding day in the entire Association's year.

The Council has been extremely fortunate in securing the Rt. Rev. A. R. Beverley, Suffragan Bishop of Toronto, to be the celebrant at the communion service, with the Rural Dean Rev. R. W. Allen, Rector of Christ Church, and other clergymen of the Deanery, assisting.

The breakfast, which will be served in the schoolroom immediately following the service, will no doubt be a delightfully informal affair. Mr. Charles Mercer, President of the Council, will be the chairman, and short addresses will be given by Bishop Beverley, Rev. R. W. Allen, and others.

BRAMPTON WORKER KILLED IN CAVE-IN

Joseph M. Caves, aged 53, was instantly killed about 4.30 Wednesday afternoon last, when he was struck on the head by a piece of "hard-pan" in a gravel pit owned by James Bovaird, Brampton.

Caves, who was shovelling gravel, stooped forward just as the "hard-pan," lying on the edge of the pit, gave way, and, bounding down the side of the pit, struck Caves on the head. A flow of sand, following the harder material, buried him to a depth of between six inches and a foot, but fellow-employees quickly pulled him out of the sand, only to find that he had been fatally injured.

W. C. Cunningham and Albert Livingstone of Georgetown, A. Casely, Norval, and George Payne of Brampton, were eye-witnesses of the accident, and went to the assistance of the stricken man.

Caves was a widower, living in Brampton, and is survived by two daughters, Lucy and Doris, and one son, William.

HALTON PLOWMEN ACHIEVE HIGH STANDING AT INTERNATIONAL MATCH

The International Plowing Match held at Caledonia last week broke nearly all previous records. Many of the classes attracted between forty and fifty entries. Competition was therefore keen and notwithstanding unfavorable soil conditions some excellent ridges were turned by the plow boys. Halton was well to the fore in a number of classes. Harold Pickot of Hornby won Premier Mitchell Hepburn's tea service emblematic of the championship in stubble. Ray Blacklock of Campbellville placed ninth in third class stubble which attracted forty-five contestants. In the Inter-County competition the Halton team composed of Stanley Fuller, Hornby; Donald McNabb, Georgetown, and Ray Blacklock, Campbellville, placed fifth in a competition which brought entries from seventeen different counties. In this competition Stanley Fuller placed twelfth amongst the fifty-one competitors. All of which speaks well for keen competition at the Halton Match which is to be held November 1st on Wm. Moore's farm, Lot 6, Con. 1, Esquesing Township.

AUTUMN LEAVES

The leaf is a great store house of energy, the green color is a very vital part of the mechanism, and it is important that no material is unnecessarily wasted. As part of a great economy scheme the chlorophyll or green coloring matter is partically decomposed so that some part of it may be conveyed to the stem instead of being cast off when the leaf falls. The shedding of the leaves is not a matter of chance, but there is very careful preparation for this time. At the base of every leaf where it joins the ste ma layer of cork is made, so that when it falls no wound will result on the stem, but a perfectly definite well-defined leaf scar. These scars have characteristic shapes; for instance, in the horse chestnut they are the shape of a horseshoe, each having in it usually five or seven ends of several veins, which formed continuous channels for sap from stem to leaf to stem, and now represent the nails of the horseshoe.

It is these scars which have helped to name this tree, the remaining part of the name arising because the seed resembles in appearance the familiar dible chestnut. The leaves which actually fall are very dry and have lost their activity; they are in a sense the ashes of the summer work. They form a thick carpet on the floor, burying many a dead animal and proving a blanket for the seeds and resting underground shoots they cover, and thus protect from some of the frost and cold of winter. Let us not consider that their work is entirely done. They are the starting point of further life processes and activities concerned with the making of new mould for future generations as well as the parent from which they fell.

—In Norway the average length of life is greater than any other country in the world.
