WALTER J. MOORE IS SENTENCED OT 4 YRS.

Burned Sawmill nl Euphrasia Township And Sent Down For Arson

Four years in Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence imposed upon Walter J. Moore, form-erly of Meaford, by Magistrate Creasor in court n Owen Sound Saturday morning .

Moore had been remanded five times for sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of arson on September 27th . Th e last remanded was made at the request of the Attorney-General's Department, as an application for examination of Moore as to his sanity had been made to the Attorney General. The examination was carried out Friday by an official from Toronto, who reported that he was not at the time of the offence, or is not insane at the present time.

The offence to which Moore pleaded guilty took place some time in August, 1922, when the saw mill of the Euphrasia Lumber Co. in Euphrasia Township was burned to the ground. Moore was alleged to have ordered one of his employees to do the work. The mill was destroyed and the insurance money was collected. Investigation was carried out by the Fire Marshal's Department, resulting in Moore's arrest.

Magistrate Creasor, in passing sentence on Moore Saturday morning, said that he had his duty to perform as an officer of the law. He had listened with a good deal of sympathy to the plea of Mr. Birnie, counsel for Moore. "Arson is so serious that I could send Moore to prison for life. The law considers he crme of arson very serious."

Moore to get money to pay his debts to his friends, had hired a man to set fire to the mill. The insurance companies had put a policy on the building in perfect good faith. As a man Moore was unknown to him,it mattered not whether he was rich or poor. "I think I will give some consideration for the restitution he has made. I am awfully sorry for Mr. Moore's wife who is putting up the money."

"I am going to commit Moore to Kingston Penitentiary for four years," was His Worship's concluding sentence.

Mr Moore was a prominent man in Meaford and was respected by his fellow citezens. He had been in business of considerable extent and was one of the firm of the Georgian Bay Milling and Power Co. when that concern went bankrupt and he lost everything. In order o secure some money and in a moment of weakness, he had the mill burned for the insurance. Restitution had been made to the insurance Company, but Crown Attorney Dyre said that though restitution had been made the idea should not be left that justice could be bought

NOT GREAT IN COMPARISON

A baseball match for the world,s championship was advertised in at least one Toronto paper as the most largely attended athletic contest in history.

A paid attendance of 62,000 at a world,s series baseball match represented the enthusiam of Greater New York, a city of 5,600,000 population, plus the territory tributary to Greater New York.

A paid attendance of 15,500 at the Queen,s-Varsity football match represented the enthusiasm of Toronto, a city of less than 600,000 population, plus the territory tributary to Toronto.

Orangeville, a town of 2,000 population, and its territory, can send an attendance of nearly 5,000 to a lacrosse match.

In compariso,n the crowd at New York was not so great, after all.—Hanover Post.

LLOYD GEORGE WAS HEARD OVER RADIO

Gave Farewell Speech At New York On Friday

On Friday evening last the writer had the privelege of "listening in to the farewell speech of the Right Hon. David Lloyd George at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York through Mr. Geo. McTavishe's long distance radio set. Lloyd George's voice is not first class for radio transmission on account of the rising and falling inflections, but the rich tones were carried through space with wonderfull clearness and was a real treat for those who have been unable to hear this great man England. He was well received o his American trip and the last night was no exception, as the audience repeatedly applauded throughout his speech, and this could be distinctly heard at this end of the 500 mile journey it made in the instant. Radio is a wonderful thing!

Average Man Sent To Prison Is Not A Criminal

Former Governor Bickett of North Carolina So Expresses Himself

I am profoundly convinced that the average man sent to prison is not essentially a criminal. As Attorney-General of the State I prosecuted every criminal case that came before the supreme Court in eight years. During these years I was immersed in the study of crimes and criminals. It was my duty to sustain every conviction when legally possible to do so, and my work tended to develop a bias against the prisoner.

But those eight years of experience and study have produced in my mind a deep and definite conviction that the average violator of the law is not an oral pervert, is not essentially a criminal, but is a perfectly normal man, who, by reason of an environment for which he was not responsible, or by reason of some sudden passion or overwhelming temptation commits an act for which he is very properly sent to prison. But after this normal man has been in prison for a reasonable time, if the state gives him another chance he will not be a menace to society, but will be a better citizen than he was before he fell into temptation. He has learned something about the wages of sin.

There are, of course, gross and vicious exceptions to this general rule, but the conviction that the average prisoner is not fundamentally wicked has been intensified by my study of crimes and my experiences with criminals during my four years' service as Governor.
