VILLAGERS WHO DWELL IN CITY FORM ASSOCIATION AND HOLD PICNIC

Yet another local Old Boys' Association came into being on Saturday when 100 or more Torontonians whose birth or associations connect them with the Village of Priceville, Grey County, met in High Park for their first annual picnic.

Though little had been done in the way of formal preparation, former Priceville ites rallied to the call, and the success of the first "annual" was such as to raise high hopes for those to follow through the years to come. The afternoon was devoted to games and the pleasant reunion of old friends, concluding with a supper served by the ladies present.

Stirring pibrochs by Piper MacDonald, late of the island of Lewis, drew to the vicinity of the gathering many picnickers in the park who joined in applauding the Scottish music.

To assist in perpetuating the reunion officers were elected as follows: President, Hector B. McKinnon; Vice-President, Mrs. Wm. Walker; Sec., Robert O. Meads; Executive, Mrs. Flora Macpherson and Daniel McInnis

Prohibition At Wiarton

The Wiarton Canadian Echo makes the following sensible remarks on the liquor question. "swamp whiskey and bootleggers have been the most commonly discussed subjects this week in Wiarton, caused of course by the regrettable death of the young man on Saturday last. Some pretty strong language has been indulged in, and the reputations of a number of our citizens have not been enhanced in the course of being bandied from mouth to mouth during the week. If even 50 per cent. of the talk is true, swamp whiskey is about as abundant in town, and as easily procurable as ginger ale, and there is a larger percentage of the population engaged in the traffic than in any other line in town. Everybody seems to be perfectly conversant with the personnel of the fraternity that is handling the stuff, although they act as though it were a dead secret. Here is one tale which can be taken for what it is worth, but it came from a perfectly reliable source. One man was told by another man, who had bought a bottle of the stuff on a Saturday night, that the bootlegger had told him that was the seventy-third crock he had sold that day.—Some liar, or some business.

There is one word in the dictionary which so far as it applies to the liquor question, should be eliminated or sent back to the spirit of Sam Johnson for revision, and that is 'Prohibition.' It is at present a misnomer.

Howard Ferguson on whose shoulders rests the responsibility of bringing forward some solution for the present state of affairs has our sympathy. If he is inclined to take the matte too serious, it will likely either send him to an early grave or turn his hair grey. We have come to the conclusion that liquor, like the tariff, can be placed amongst the "eternal questions."
