Wondering Why

Men send their autos roaring along the midnight street, disturbing people snoring, destroying slumbers sweet; with cutouts madly coughing, and piston whanging loud, we hear them in the offing, the foolish, fathead crowd. There is no sense, beshrew it, in racketing along;I wonder why they do it, when they must know it it's wrong. Speed fiends in all the papers read tales of death and wrecks; because of speed fiend capers, men carry broken necks; and to the boneyard daily, men in hearses go ,because the speed fiends gaily refuse to travel slow. Cops run them down and pinch them, the while some victim groans, and Justice, which should clinch them, just fines them seven bones. Such leniency's a blunder—they pay without a tear, then scorch again like thunder, and kill an auctioneer. 'Tis wicked to pursue it, this vicious course and vain; I wonder why they do it—why not be safe and sane? I drive my fiery auto, a thing of brutal power, by fen and weir and grotto, at fifteen miles an hour. And though for years I've driven my bus along the pave, I've sent my guy unshriven, to fill an early grave. I've caused no sore contusion, with fender or with hood—but, hap'ly, in conclusion,I'd better knock on wood —Walt Mason.

The same food that stupefies the brain by day keeps it unduly active at night.

Some of the motorists we know could possibly keep on the road if they were driving through a tunnel.

Bitten By A Mink Blood Poisoning Results

T. LOCKHART, DUNDALK, HAD REMARKABLE EXPERIENCE DANGEROUSLY ILL

Mr. Thos. Lockhart had a remarkable experience one day last week, and one which may yet cost him his life. While fishing with chub a mink appeared on the scene and decided that it would like to have that piece of chub, not known that the chub was loaded wih a sharp hook. Taking hold of the fish he attempted to get away with it. but the wiles of man prevented. With a twitch of the line the hook penetrated Mr. Mink's upper lip and he was a captive.

While attempting to take the hook from the animal's mouth it bit Mr. Lockhart on one finger. Nothing was thought of the small wound for a couple of days, when it began to pain and the hand and arm swelled. A doctor was called, who pronounced it a bad case of blood poisoning. On Sunday two doctors and a nurse were in attendance, and no person was allowed to see the patient.

Mr. Lockhart's an inveterate fisherman and hunter, and can relate interesting adventures and incidents by the hour, but should he recover (and we sincerely hope this may be) he will have nothing more thrilling than his encounter with this mink. His extensive knowledge of the fauna of this continent has been materially added to, and we fervently trust the result will have a happy ending.

Rabbits Are Prolific On Farm of Mr. C. Moore

Charles Moore of Victoria Corners purchased from Nova Scotia last January a pair of Beaverton Babbits, which have a blue fur. It was of the Beaverton that Princess Mary had a coat. The first litter arrived about the middle of May, consisting of six. The second litter arrived about the first of July consisting of fourteen, all of which, except one, are at present living and doing well. This we think a splendid record. Besides the rabbits Charlie has a large number of black foxes and seems to be going extensvely into the raising of fur.

Fishing At Eugenia Ladies Lost Their Steel Fishing Poles

One day last week a couple of ladies who were out east fishing drove around by the 8th line bridge over the hydro pond, and thought they would try at the bridge for a trout. In a few minutes an overseer swooped down on them and took their poles away from them—good steel poles. Although numerous people have fished there, these are the only poles that we have heard of as being confiscated. That was a brave overseer. The husbands of these ladies are laying low for a short time to see what is going to be done about it. The officious official should return the poles and apologize.

Prominent Euphrasia Couple Are Divorced

Peter Alexander Fawcett, a prominent young farmer of Euphrasia township. petitioning for divorce from his wife Eva Bertha Fawcett (nee Hutchinson) on the usual grounds, appeared together with his counsel, Mr. A. J. F. Sullivan of Stayner, before the Divorce Committee of the Senate at Ottawa, on June 24th last. The couple were married at Flesherton, on Oct. 14th, 1908, and resided thereafter in Euphrasia; and the chief matrimonial offence was alleged to have occurred on or about Oct. 1921. The wife was also present, and with the assistance of counsel strenuously opposed the petition. Considerable evidence was heard on both sides. On conclusion the Divorce Committee, after due deliberation, decided the divorce should be granted; and reported accordingly. The usual Bill has since gone through both Houses of Parliament; and on Saturday last, the 19th instant, received the Royal Assent. This be coming law. The marriage is thus dissolved, and the petitioner is at liberty to marry again.
