ROADS: PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

Here in Canada we have entered on an era of good roads—cement highways and all that sort of thing. But this is only history repeating itself. Two thousand years ago the Romans were energetic builders of good roads in Italy and in their British colony. Remains of these old highways exist at the present day. The most renowned of these was the Appian Way a road elevated on blocks of stone, and which ran eventually from Rome to Brindisi. Even Mr. Biggs never contemplated emulating the Romans in anything so gigantic as this. But the Romans built in England roads somewhat similar to those we are now financing in Canada. These roads, like our own, were found necessary for through chariot traffic. Ours are for gas chariot traffic

When Pizarro conquered Peru he also found there highways of marvelous excellence, probialy better than they have there to-day. But just what kind of traffic the Incas indulged in we are not told.

As we have said, Canada is building good roads for gas wagon traffic. But these will in time disappear, and a thousand years hence, when humanity is soaring to business with flyometers or gas wings, such things as good roads will never be heard of, and the man who bores a well may strike concrete and think he has hit a new geological formation. And when roads are done away with the government can scarcely tax us for the maintenance of highways through the air. However we suppose they will find some other means of soaking us. No doubt the Amusement Tax Department will still exist a thousand years hence, and will doubtless have flying machines patrolling the sky to locate racng meets and soaring parties in order to take a nibble out of the proceeds.

However, these fantastic ideas do not lead one very far, because, unless the Hindoo idea of transmigration of souls is correct, none of us will be here at the time. But one may express a wish, as did John Gilpin: "May I be there to see."

WHO WANTS HARVESTERS?

The railways are sending out the usual pathetic cry for men to save the western wheat crop. This saving is to be done at nominal expense of $35 for each passenger carried to Winnipeg and back, and varied sums for points beyond.

From all appearances and disinterested information sent out, it would seem that the western crop has quite enough men out there to save it without calling upon the chivalrous East. There is just a danger that many who go out will find difficulty in securing a certificate that they have worked on a farm for the required length of time, and will be called on to pay full fare in order ot get a return ticket.

FISHING AND FISHING

A week ago last Sunday an Owen Sound lady caught a monster salmon off Meaford harbor. The fish weighed twenty pounds and one ounce. As it is illegal to fish on Sunday the Game and Fisheries Department should find no difficulty in making a conviction there. Probably the lady would even be willing to pay a handsome fine for the privilege of making shuch a record.

Up here in Artemesia the Department simply confiscates the ladies' poles when they are found walking along the highway in disputed territory.

EDITORIAL NOTES

We are told that there will be a small yield of peaches this year, and this is probably correct. The statement comes too late in the season to arouse a suspicion that it may be propaganda. Our peaches will likely come high this year.

* * * *

That fall feeling is in the air. But then, we have had nothing but fall weather all summer, with the exception of a couple of days when the mercury reached 80 degrees. The Chatsworth weather prophet has been out all summer in his calculations.

15 Loads Of Wheat From Eight Acres

Some real fine crops have been reported throughout this district this year, and one of the best fields of wheat we have seen was that owned by Mr. James Porteous of the Eighth Line, Artemesia. The yield was very heavy and fifteen loads were taken off the eight acres. The straw was very long and the sheaves remarkably free from weeds or thistles. No special preparation was made on the land as it was plowed from sod last fall and sown with wheat. Mr. Porteous expects to thresh the wheat next week and with the large yield and the good price offered should realize quite an amount from the harvest.

Mike Witka, one of the men charged with robbing Joe Ginsberg's store at Washago and beating up the proprietor, was sent to the Kingston penitentiary for five years and will be deported to Austria upon the completion of his term.

The Passing of James Reid of Old Durham Road

Mr. Jas. Reid of the O. D. R. passed away Monday at the age of 84 years. He had only been bedfast a few days being stricken with paralysis. He was tenderly cared for by his daughter-in-law and the last week by his daughter, Mrs. Daley (Belle) of Philadelphia. Mr. Reid was born in the vicinity of Guelph and lived for a time in Detroit, moving from there with his wife and family to the farm, on which he died, about 35 years ago. His wife predeceased him five years ago.

The deceased gentleman was a man well liked by everyone who knew him being a good neighbor and friend. In religion he was a Presbyterian and in politics a Liberal, and was a successful farmer. He leaves to mourn him, one son, William, on the homestead, two daughters, Mrs. Daley (Belle) and Mary now of Vancouver, also one brother, Wm. Reid, of Flesherton and, we believe, a sister, Mrs. Geo. Tuck, besides some other relatives in Egremont. The funeral took place at the home and was presided over by Rev. Angus Sutherland, and interment took place at McNeil's cemetery.

IMPORTANT SEIZURE

On Tuesday Provincial Constable Gardner made an important seizure in the Township of Mono. After investigating certain rumors, he proceeded to Glencairn and detained two men, G. W. Lawson and Norman Mix. Taking them with him he visited the farm of Herbert Boyle on lot 15, con. 2, Mono Township. There he found 18 quart sealers, 2 gallon jugs, 2 ten pound pails, 1 ten gallon crock and a 42 gallon barrel of wash which was in the third stage of manufacture. Charges will be laid against Lawson and Mix for manufacture and against Boyle for having on his premises. These men are suspected of being the source of supply for Wasaga Beach where a considerable quantity of illicit liquor has been sold. Lawson and Mix are also wanted at Orillia for offences under the O.T.A.—Enterprise.

One of the most extraordinary freaks seen in Carrick for some time is a white crow, which makes its headquarters in an orchard on the 2nd concession, opposite Harry Stewart's residence. It is all white, except its head, which is brown.

Political platforms are not wholly neglected. Proof readers read them.

BOBBING IS SERIOUS

A serious situation seems to be developing in tonsorial circles. Since time immemorial Saturday has been sacred to the purpose of shaving and polishing up the facial adornments of masculine patrons. As the day waxed to a close, the barber would loftily decline to even trim a bald headed dome, let alone cut a heavy thatch—unless he wanted the money.

But now everything is changing. The girls are crowding in on Saturday and having their crowning glory trimmed to their taste in such numbers that there is scarcely room to accommodate them all. In fact, two misses had made a tour of the shops about four on Saturday, but found their sisters in Eve filling alll the front esats,a nd the prospects of getting a "semi-shingle" were vague indeed.

"Well, I've simply got to have one; my hair's awful," said one to the other. We hope she got it, though we couldn't see anything "awful" about the picture she presented, standing there.

The serious part of the situation is, of course, that if hair-bobbing crowds in too much on the Saturday night shaves, there will be a marked falling off in church attendance on the part of the men.—Meaford Mirror.

ROBERTS—HAWKINS

An event of interest to the people surrounding the 8th and 10th line corners on 5th sideroad, Osprey twp., also the school circles of Feversham and Flesherton, where the bride has been a pupil of some brilliance, she having taken complete Normal Entrance in the two years she attended Feversham continuation school and one year at Flesherton high school. She was one of the few who passed the third form course in the last term. A little party of five motored to Markdale, and Bertie I. V. Hawkins, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Hawkins, and Mr. Milton S. G. Roberts, only son of Mr. and the late Mrs. Samuel Roberts, were united in marriage by the Rev. Mr. Gray of that place. Thence they went to Owen Sound, where they had a look at some of the many interesting sights that are to be seen in our tidy little marine city. They then returned to the bride's home, "The Gables," where a dainty supper was served. Besides the brde and groom there were in the party Mrs. Mabel Giblin, sister of the bride, and Mr. Willard Benson, who very ably witnessed the ceremony, and Mr. Fred Semple, the driver, and chum of the groom. The bride was dressed in a pretty dress of white organdie, trimmed with white ribbon and handmade lace, the work of her sister, Sadie, now Mrs. H. J. Courvoiseer of Blair. There were no guests.
