Ferocity of the Rooster.

Some explanation of the sudden and unprecedented development of ferocity among the feathered crowing masters of the barnyard is urgent. Within a month five small children have been attacked by a rooster with fatal results in several instances. What ails this heretofore harmless and usually cowardly brawler of midnight and early morn? A very Falstaff for bluster and a skuttling impersonation of terror whenever a cat slinks across the fence corner, why is he suddenly embittered against human kind, bent on using the one weapon that nature gave him with deadly diabolism on infancy? There is a degeneration marked here that must have its reason for being. The gallinaceous tribe may have been given a too elevated notion of its importance in the world.

Colic has many remedies, but only Justice Jacobs, of Wallington, N. J., has been able to transmute evidence into a panacea for that ailment. A man named Frisco had been brought before the justice on the charge of selling liquor without a license. Several bottles of whisky and brandy were turned over to the justice, and the case was adjourned. It came before Judge Zabriskie one day recently, and when he asked Justice Jacobs for the evidence the latter admitted that he had suffered from colic the same night and had taken the whisky and brandy.

Seldom has there been a better illustration of the folly of fraud than the case of a woman who, when she moved away from a town 37 years ago, left a grocery bill unpaid. The debt weighed on her conscience until she grew morbid and could not sleep, and for years she suffered from insomnia. A few weeks ago, on the advice of a lawyer, she paid the bill, then went to bed and slept soundly till ten o'clock the next morning. Now she wishes she had been honest long ago.

Foreign immigration is still on the increase. The September arrivals at Ellis island were several thousand larger than last year, and the nine months' arrivals show a big increase over the same time last year. If all these people were of a class to make good citizens there would be no "kick," but many are of the European criminal class, and are worse when turned loose under the banner of freedom.

At a political meeting in New York last week a Tammany man named Delancy was one of the orators. Speaking of certain men whose names are often seen in print, he was about to say that they were fond of newspaper notoriety, but instead said "newspaperiety." The new word has "caught on" and on several subsequent occasions has been used to convey the same idea.

"Towers of Babel" is what a New York man calls the tall buildings going up in that city, not because they are so high, but because there is a babel of tongues among the workmen employed on them. Irish and German, Italian and Scotch, with now and then a native-born American, work side by side.

Mr. Carnegie predicts that England and America will eventually be one nation, but fails to tell us which one.

The Venezuelan Roads.

The roads of Venezuela are not suitable for American styles of vehicles, and draft animals are rather small for any ordinary vehicles for freight. The lighter kind of pleasure vehicles could be used if the roads were not so bad.

You are not "in the midst of life's battle" so much when you are on the farm, but when you plow through a bumble bee's nest as a Kansas farmer did, you may feel that there are other stings than that of defeat.

A young woman in Connecticut is to pay a wife $5,000 for the alienation of her husband's affections and keep the man. Is any man worth that much?

Despite reports of prosperity many persons throughout the country are so poor they still play the piano by hand.
