THE UPHEAVAL IN GERMANY

Field Marshall Von Hindenburg has been elected President of the Republic of Germany, defeating Marx the Republican nominee, by a plurality of over a million voters. Hindenburg is 78 years old, and has from his earliest years been a professional soldier. He took part in the war against Austria in 1866 and saw active service in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. Though he retired into private life three years before the late war, he was prevailed upon to accept a command and was successful as a leader in the campaign upon the eastern front. When the revolution came Hindenburg held to his post, and as Field Marshall led the retreating German armies over the border. In 1919 he finally gave up military life. It was an entirely new adventure for him to accept the candidacy of the party of the Right, which has decided monarchial leanings. Hindenburg made few speeches in his campaign, but he has appealed for German unity, for an avoidance of warfare and for the taking of every legitimate step to again achieve German independence. He has always maintained his friendship for the Kaiser, and has let it be understood that, subject to favorable diplomatic negotiation, he would have no objection to the return of the ex-Emperor. The President-elect has also let it be understood that if on a plebiscite the will of the people is to restore the monarchy, he would not be averse to such a change, though at present he proposes his intention to loyally maintain republican institutions.

With the lead given them in the election, by eighty-five per cent. of the German electorate who went to the polls on Sunday we may expect the Kaiser and the Crown Prince, with their sympathizers, to make increased efforts to regain the prestige of the Hohenzollerns. The Crown Prince has been in Germany for some time and no one has objected. Will his fire-eating parent endeavor to join him, and what attitude will the allied nations take to deal with the new issues that such a move might betoken?

Chatsworth's weather prophet is patting himself on the back. His prognostications for the month of April were verified almost to a turn. We trust, however, that his prophecy of snow in May will not be verified, though it is no unusual thing to have a reminder of the beautiful in that month.

Some woollen mills in Ontario have now so many orders that they are kept going night and day. Other facories, with antiquated machines find it difficult to keep up with the procession. 'Twas ever this. The progressive man, in a fair field, generally succeeds.

The Ottawa Citizen presents the following conundrum :— "Suppose a magistrate requests an old offender to take the pledge, and the said old offender is nabbed again, and admits he drank some of the new 4.4 beer, will he have broken the pledge?" According to Attorney General Nickle's curious claim that 4.4 is not intoxicating it is hard to see how the offender will be held to blame.

Lord Byng of Vimy may be given a second term as Governor-General of Canada. In the past, the terms of Governor-General has been extended by a year or more, but we have no recollection of a Governor holding the office for two terms. Lord Byng, however, is very popular and he has made an excellent executive Chief.

The market for Canadian cattle continues to improve in Great Britain. For the year ending March 31 last 51,000 were imported into the Motherland—an increase of 23,000 over the previous twelve months. With the remaining unnecessary restrictions on the marketing of the cattle on the other side of the Atlantic even last year's imports should be even more to the advantage of the Canadian grower.

Our old friend, John Oliver, Premier of British Columbia, has had another piece of good luck. In the general election, last fall, he was returned to power with a majority of one. Then the Conservative member for Grand Forks-Greenwood was killed on a train by a mysterious explosion and now Mr. Oliver's candidate has been successful in the bye-election and his Liberal following is three over all parties in the Legislature.

If one - fourth of the trees planted in this country within the past few days, can be taken care of and reared to reasonable growth, our forest wealth will be vastly increased. And why should they not be? Trees can be planted on almost any spot where ordinary crops cannot be produced, and can be brought to maturity with but little care. As requested by the Dominion Minister of the Interior, good work, which it is calculated to good work, which it is calculated to confer countless blessings on the land in years to come.

Mr. W. J. Robb, Vice-President of the National Railways, says he met many disillusioned natives of this Dominion down in California who would come straight back to Canada if they could raise the price of the fare. No doubt; far away hills look green, and our neighbors are good advertisers. Too often, Canadians are caught by specious promises of big pay for little work soon to find that they were foolish to throw up a steady job at home for an experiment in a far off place that was only temporary.

On March 23, the minister for justice of the Irish Free State reported that there were then 13,000 public houses for the retail sale of intoxicating liquors, in the Free State, or one for every 230 of the population, as against one to every 400 in England and one to every 695 in Scotland. Out of 219 houses in the village of Ballaghadereen, Co. Mayo, 72 are licensed premises. Every one of these places have, of course, their clients, and their plethora no doubt accounts for the poverty that is reported as being prevalent in many parts that ordinarily, from their natural advantages, ought to be prosperous.

Armstrong of town have been secured by Mr. Frank Whittemore and three other gentlemen of Toronto for a term of five years The reserve extends for a distance of a little more than a mile, stretching from above Hoggs Falls to the high bridge, where the reserve of the Beaver Valley Fishing Club Commences. INTELLIGENCE PLUS.

It does seem as if some of the lower animals possessed intelligence. Some people will always say, no matter what you may tell them, that the action was prompted by instinct. It seems quite a task to distinguish between instinct and actual intelligence.

The rat that drops a stone on a trap to spring it and enable him to get the cheese without the fear of getting his neck broken, seems to have a great deal of intelligence.

The dog that will protect a squirrel from cats and other dogs, and yet chase wild squirrels, has his share of wisdom.

It hardly seems that instinct prompts the beaver to use birch for his dams when ever he can get it. He is wise enough to know what side of the tree he must gnaw in order to have it fall nearest the water, and save him labor, and also just what size tree will answer each purpose.

The well known "Jesse James" family of bears in Yellowstone Park go out to the road and block all travellers until they are bribed by sweets to let the traveller proceed.

A man baited a trap for a bear by hanging some fish up in a tree and placing his trap below, covering it carefully. The bear smelled the trap but was anxious for the fish. He clambered up the opposite side of the tree, and squirmed around till he could reach the fish. He came down by the same method, leaving his would be captor to puzzle over the

The most skeptical will have to admit that the lower animals possess intelligence. —H. T.
