CANADA AT WEMBLEY

At Wembley, on Saturday last, under the most favourable auspices, the King, accompanied by Queen Mary, formally opened the new British Empire Exhibition. The date chosen was most appropriate, being the fifteenth anniversary of the proclamation of King George as King.

Those in charge are trusting to have better luck in the matter of weather, than that which was vouch-safed last year, so that the guarantors may in at least some measure be repaid for their losses, which they sustained last year. The main show expenses at Wembley have been much smaller than in 1924, many additional attractions are being provided. Part of the palace of engineering is this year devoted to housing, and over a dozen dwellings have been set up as a model village, which will be of special interest to many urban communities that have ever since the war been suffering from shortage of houses. Many interesting events have also been arranged for, to occupy the colossal stadium for the entire six months of the exhibition. For three weeks from the opening, a magnificent spectacle— "London Defended" will be given, in which detachments from the royal marines, the Royal Air Force, Metropolitan Mounted police and the London Fire Brigade, will participate. All the latest agencies for the defence of the metropolis on land and in the air are brought into play, certainly an awe-inspiring spectacle, which the populace may well hope will never be called upon to witness. Victoria day this year falling on a Sunday, there will be a Thanksgiving Service, which the king and other members of the royal family will attend. The wind-up of the exhibition will be an old English Fair, for three weeks in October, on the lines of the historical St. Bartholomew Fair.

Last year it was conceded by all hands that Canada made the most striking of all the displays made by the sister nations, and many thousands of visitors marvelled at the attractiveness of the exhibit of her products of the field, forest garden, farm and mine, of the excellence and variety of her manufactured products. The display of apples and other fruits was not excelled by any, and the special exhibit of the railway systems were such as to bring encomiums on all sides. This year, the display is even more interesting and instructive. The principal new feature is a panaroma which shows Canada from East to West as it unfolds itself during a railway journey across the continent. certainly gives to the visitors a realistic idea of the expanse and attractiveness of the Dominion. Last year the department of Agriculture supplied a statue, entirely made up of Canadian butter, of the Prince of Wales. This year a life sized effigy of the prince, also of butter is sure to be a centre of attraction. It represents the Prince, with feathers and tomahawk, and the general paraphenalia which he wore when admitted to the tribe of Stoney Indians, who hold sway in the region of Banff, as Chief Morning Star. We confess we are not enamoured of this advertisement of Canada and its attractions. Would it not have been more in accord with modern Canada to have represented the Prince as a yeoman, equipped to ter ranchman of Alberta? It is many ter ranchman of Alberta? IT is many a year since the Stoneys laid down the tomahawk and "took up the shovel and the hoe" on the foothills of the Rockies. Nevertheless, we do not doubt that the statue of the prince as an Indian chief of the great Indian tribe that farms near his Alberta ranch will command much attention.

It is likely that many Canadians will take occasion to visit Britain this summer and to see for themselves, the wonderful spectacle at Wembley, but the chief object of the exhibition will, as last year, be to promote commerce between the Motherland and the auxilary nations of the Empire, Canada taking no secondary part.

EDITORIAL NOTES

No doubt channels will be found to spend all the money received by the new gasoline tax of three cents a gallon.

During the past few years quite a controversy has raged because a day had not been set aside for Father's Day, as well as for Mother's. But Premier Ferguson has settled the issue by appointing May 21st as Father's Day.

The death last week of one of the leading British Admirals, Sir Doveton Sturdee, brings to light one of the first naval engagements in the late war. It was off the Falkland Islands that Admiral Sturdee won an important naval victory from the German navy. He later was in a command on the North Sea and saw active service in other fights there.

Many a marriage goes on the rocks because a girl cannot realize that the marriage ceremony literally means what it says about forsaking all others and cleaving unto the man she that this means her father and mother, sisters and brothers, as truly as it does strangers.

GREY COUNTY HISTORY

There has been appointed by the municipal council of each municipality in Grey County, a committee to secure data and write the history of their municipailty, and it is the wish of the county committee that each be fully dealt with and would suggest that anyone knowing of any events or incidents that they think would be interesting, give the same to the committee in their district. The committee also wish the names of all who enlisted for the great war in other units than the 31st, 147th and 248th, these we can get from the records, but many enlisted in other units and we would like full particulars as to these. If any one has a picture or photo of an old time cattle fair the Committee would like to have it for a time. Address J. S. Wilson, Owen Sound.
