WASTING AWAY.

THE SAD CONDITION OF MANY YOUNG GIRLS.

Mothers Should be Very Careful When Their Daughters Complain of Headache, Fickle Appetite, Dizziness or Heart Palpitation.

Many mothers neglect the health of their growing daughters. Not wilfully, of course, but because they think the occasional headaches from which they suffer, fickleness of appetite, and pale cheeks, are the natural result of the merging of girlhood into womanhood. This is a serious mistake. There is no period in a girl's life when she needs more attention, and unless the little troubles are successfully treated, more serious ones—perhaps decline and consumption—are sure to follow. What every young girl needs at this period is a tonic; medicine that will give her a rich, red blood, strong nerves, and bring her safely through a critical period in her life. For this purpose there is no other medicine in the world can equal Dr. Williams's Pink Pills. Thousands of girls throughout Canada owe their present health and happiness to this medicine and thousands of others who are suffering would soon be strong if they would give Dr. Williams's Pink Pills a fair trial. Among the many young ladies who have proved the great worth of this medicine is Miss Jennie Beamer, of Boyle, Ont. Miss Beamer says: "Some years ago I became very ill, and my friends feared I was going into a decline. I was pale, suffered from terrible headaches, my appetite was poor, and I grew very thin. I became so weak that I could hardly walk. I remained in this condition for several months, during which time I tried several medicines, but none helped me in the least. Then my mother got me some of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills, and almost from the outset they helped me. As I continued the use of the pills the severe headaches left me, my appetite returned and I gained in weight. In fact I was soon enjoying perfect health, and have since continued to do so. I attribute this entirely to the use of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills, and will be glad at some other week and ailing girl will profit by my experience."

Pale and sallow cheeks, dizziness, headaches, palpitation of the heart, and the feeling of weariness that afflicts so many young girls will soon disappear if Dr. Williams's Pink Pills are used. These pills also cure rheumatism, dyspepsia, kidney ailments, St. Vitus' dance, and the other troubles that come from poor blood and weak nerves. Sold by all dealers in medicine or sent post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DON'T GET MORBID.

It Is Not a Difficult Matter to Think Yourself to Death.

Thousands of people actually think themselves to death every year by allowing their minds to dwell on morbid subjects.

As a rule, the thought that kills relates to something the individual dreads more than anything else in the world. There is the germ of fatal thought in ninety nine persons in every hundred, and the exception is only proof against the thought disease by having been inoculated with the lymph of optimism or philosophy.

The idea that one has some incipient disease in one's system, the thought of financial ruin, that one is getting on in life without improving prospects—any of them or a thousand similar thoughts may carry a healthy man to a premature grave. A melancholy thought that fixes itself upon one's mind needs as much "doctoring" as physical disease. It needs to be eradicated from the mind or it will have just the same result as a neglected disease would have. The thought disease sometimes cures itself after running its course; so does smallpox. But who would settle down to suffer from smallpox and chance recovery, as thousands of foolish persons settle down to let the thought disease, which has attacked them, do its worst?

Every melancholy thought, every morbid notion and every nagging worry should be resisted to the utmost, and the patient should be physicked by cheerful thoughts, of which there is a store in every one's possession, bright companions—cheaper than drugs and pleasanter.

There have occurred scores of dozens of cases where healthy persons have thought themselves into having tumors and cancers—cases which admit of no doubt whatever that the diseases resulted from constant morbid fear. There might possibly be fewer cases of cancer if some great doctors could assure the world that it is not a hereditary disease, but morbid minded persons on hearing that there is cancer in their families generally do the very worst thing they can do under the circumstances—they conceive an awful dread that they will be afflicted with it. They dwell upon the fear constantly, and every trifling ailment which troubles them is at first mistaken for the premonitory symptoms of cancer.

The morbid condition of mind produces a morbid condition of body, and if the disease does happen to be in the system it receives every encouragement to develop.

TWO PERORATIONS.

From Hay's Eulogy on McKinley and Blaine's Eulogy on Garfield.

It is a curious coincidence that on Feb. 27, 1882, and on Feb. 27, 1902, a secretary of state of a murdered president delivered a eulogy of his dead chief before the houses of congress. Mr. Hay, primarily a writer, showed the essayist in his oration on McKinley. Mr. Blaine, primarily a speaker, showed the orator in his oration on Garfield. Here is the peroration of Hay's eulogy of McKinley:

There is not one of us but feels prouder of his native land because the august figure of Washington presided over its beginnings; no one but vows it a tenderer love because Lincoln poured out his blood for it; no one but must feel his devotion to his country renewed and kindled when he remembers how McKinley loved, revered and served it, showed in his life how a citizen should live and in his last hour taught us how a gentleman could die.

Blaine's oration on Garfield ended with this famous passage:

As the end drew near his early craving for the sea returned. The stately mansion of power had been to him the weariest one hospital of pain, and he begged to be taken from its prison walls from its oppressive, stifling air, from its homesickness and its hopelessness. Gently, silently, the love of a great people bore the pale sufferer to the longed for healing of the sea to live or to die, as God should will, within sight of the heaving billows, within sound of its manifold voices. With a wan, fevered face, tenderly lifted to the cooling breeze, he looked out wistfully upon the ocean's changing wonders on its far sails, on its restless ways rolling shoreward to break and die beneath the noonday sun; on the red clouds of evening, as they bow low to the horizon; on the serene and shining pathway of the stars. Let us think that his dying eyes read a mystic meaning which only the rapt and parting soul may know. Let us believe that in the silence of the receding world he heard the great waves breaking on a farther shore and felt already upon his wasted brow the breath of the eternal morning.

THE PARADISE FISH.

One of the Wonderful Piscatorial Rarities Found In China.

The oddest of all piscatorial rarities is the paradise fish of China. Like the German canary and one or two other species of bird and fish, this little finny beauty is the product of cultivation only, there being no place in the world where it is found in a wild state. In the land of the dragon they are kept and cultivated in ornamental aquariums, each succeeding generation of the little oddities exhibiting more diversified colors. The male is the larger of the two sexes, measuring when full grown three and a half inches. The body is shaped very much like that of a common pumpkin seed sunfish, its color surpassing in brilliancy any fish heretofore cultivated for the aquarium. The head of macropodus (that's his generic name) is ashy gray, mottled with irregular dark spots. The eyes are azurine blue, bordered with bright crimson.

The eyes are yellow and red, with a black pupil. The sides of the body and the crescent shaped caudal fin are of crimson, the former having from ten to twelve vertical blue stripes, while the latter is bordered with blue. The upper surface of the body is continually changing color sometimes it is white, at others gray, black or blue. The dorsal and anal fins are remarkably large, hence its generic name—macro, large; podus, fin or foot. Both fins are shaped alike and are striped with brown and bordered with a bright blue. The dull colored ventral fins are protected by a brilliant scarlet colored spine, extending three fourths of an inch behind the body of the fin. The pectoral fins are well shaped, but transparent and colorless.

Mounting a Horse.

A careful horseman learns to mount from either side of the wheel, since the emergency may arise at any moment, says the Boston Chronicle. One would think that the horseman would be equally careful to provide for possibilities and accustom himself to mounting bridle readily from the off side and the near side. But if he were to venture to mount on the right side—which is the wrong side in a hotel stable yard the hostler would probably demand the price of a gallon as the statutory fine, and the horse would collapse with surprise. What is the meaning of this convention? It appears in odd places. Not only does the trick horse in the circus canter from right to left, but the after dinner wine passes the same way. "The way of the sun" is the current explanation, which is absurd.

BABY'S FIRST TOOTH.

A Family Event That Does Not Always Bring Unmixed Joy.

Baby's first tooth does not come unannounced. Inflamed gums and impaired digestion produce a feverish and fretful condition about which the mother often feels concern. The baby boy of Mrs. George McGregor, of Hamilton, Ont., was troubled with diarrhoea while teething and was cross and restless. He did not sleep well and matters became serious. The mother writes as follows: "My sister had used Baby's Own Tablets for her baby and advised me to try them. I got a box and after giving the Tablets to the baby a few times he began to improve and was soon well. He is now a big, healthy baby and whenever he gets fretful or does not feel well I give him a Tablet and he is soon alright again."

Baby's Own Tablets replace with great advantage castor oil and other nauseous, griping drugs. They sweeten the stomach, quiet the nerves and promote healthful sleep. They are guaranteed to contain no opiate and to be absolutely harmless. If your druggist does not keep them you can obtain a full-size box by mail, postpaid, by sending 25 cents to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y.

It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures Diarrhoea, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses of the United States. Price twenty five cents a bottle, sold by all druggists throughout the world. Be sure and ask for MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.

The October Lippincott's Magazine.

Lippincott's Magazine for October contains a complete novel and many short stories. The novel, by Mary Moss, is entitled "Fruit Out of Season." Marie Van Vorst's story, her latest, called "The Primrose Way," in the October Lippincott, excels anything she has yet published, which is praise indeed. The quaint humor of Josiah Allen's Wife is abundantly demonstrated in her tale called "Dr. Marsh's Fortunate Call." A sharp contrast is presented in the story contributed by Cy Warman, entitled "The Persecution of a Pup," which is a powerful animal story. Alfred Stoddard's hunting tales have won him many friends. This, entitled "The Witch of the Hunt," is about a daring girl, a race, and what came of it. "Passing the Love of Woman," by Cyrus Townsend Brady, is the story of a temptation such as seldom falls to man's lot. Clinton Dangerfield's "The Master of Fate," is distinctly original in scheme. George Hyde Preston's burglar story, called "Gratsy," is a little gem. A timely paper by J. G. Rosengarten, author of "The German Soldier in the Wars of the United States," contains in brief form much information about "American History from German Sources." Some very practical suggestions for building and running a greenhouse at home are contributed by Eben E. Rexford, under the title, "The Home Greenhouse"; and an interesting travel-paper by J. W. Davies, is called "By Coach through South Africa." The verse of the month is up to the usual high standard of Lippincott's Magazine and is from the following poets: Thos. Walsh, Madison Cawein, Frank Farrington, Mildred I. McNeal, Ethel Watts Mumford, Arthur W. Atkinson, Lillian Howard Cort, Francis Sterne Palmer, and Edward Wilbur Mason. The humorous department, called "Walnuts and Wine," may be described this month by saying, "It is to smile."

New Use for Refined Paraffine Wax.

A new and important use for Refined Paraffine Wax seems to have been discovered by a prominent resident of Ohio, living near Lancaster, who had two trees badly damaged by storm, one being a maple and the other an apple. In each case a large limb was broken down from the trunk, but still attached to it. The limbs were propped up and fastened securely with straps, very much as a broken leg might be fastened with splints, and then melted refined was poured into and over all the cracks. The "surgical operation" was entirely successful. The Paraffine prevented the escape of the sap, kept out the rain and moisture which would have rotted the trees, prevented the depredations of insects, and the limbs seem thus far to be re-attached to the trees.

FARM AND GARDEN

THE JOUNCER.

An Up to Date Device For Freeing Extracting Supers From Bees.

One of the chief up to date appliances in my apiary is known as a jouncer. Some four or five years ago I described with pen and pencil my first jouncer, and it was a very crude affair compared with the one in use at present. The pictures show the device and how to use it, says Rambler in Gleanings in Bee Culture.

It will be observed that it is made very strong, mostly of tough fir, and put together with bolts, and a cloth tray is adjusted under the hive to be jounced.

When it is desired to jounce the bees from a super, it is adjusted, as in Fig. 1, and the whole jounced against the ground. The sudden jar or a few of them send the bees all into the tray. The latter can be removed, as shown in Fig. 2, and the bees dumped on the top of the frames of the colony.

In order to cushion the lower ends of the corner posts of the jouncer they are chamfered off to a point. As there are no stones in the apiary, when the jouncer strikes the ground the jouncer is broken just enough to prevent the combs from breaking.

The benefits derived from this method of getting bees off the combs are all in the line of rapid manipulation. In the American Bee Journal not many months ago Mr. Davenport caught on to this idea and applied it to the common Langstroth hive. The best success, however, is attained with a shallow brood chamber, and the only objection I have to it is when there is much thin honey it slops out upon the bees. But, of course, it is best to wait until the honey is thick. It is hard to make people believe that any new way is better than their way. Whether beekeepers use the Rambler's Jouncer or not, I hope the beekeepers will discard the old, obsolete use of a brush. Bees can be shaken off the combs clean enough. In central California but few brushes are used.

I have great hopes for the shallow extracting super. Mr Davenport says the jouncing principle is worth $50 a year to him over with the standard frames.

The Winter Wheat Condition.

Orange Judd Farmer declares winter wheat in a sensitive condition. Correspondents report the winter unfavorable in Texas. Similar condition exists in Arkansas, in Tennessee and Kentucky. In Ohio two-thirds of the counties report the winter unfavorable. Michigan has had ample snow protection. In Indiana and Illinois the situation is doubtful. Kansas makes a far better showing, and Nebraska has another story. In the latter state the acreage is the largest on record and the prospect declared as good as ever known. Conditions on the Pacific coast are almost entirely favorable except an unimportant section of southern California.

At St. John, N.B., the trial of Fred. Higgins, charged with the murder of Willie Doherty, resulted in a verdict of guilty, with a strong recommendation to mercy.

Messrs. Michael Reddy, M.P., Haviland Burke, M.P., William Lowry and Michael Hogan were sentenced at Birr, Ireland, to terms of imprisonment with hard labor. They appealed, and were released on bail.

Life in the North-West!

If you have any idea of changing your location, GO INTO THE NORTHWEST where life is worth living.

It is the coming empire of this country. Climate and elevation are found in great variety and land will never be as low priced as it is now. For farming, fruit raising and grazing no portion of our country equals it. Irrigation makes the farmer independent where irrigation is practiced, and the finest irrigable parts of our country are in Montana and Washington. The towns and cities are all growing rapidly in the Northwest.

Let me know what you want and we will try to help you. There are all sorts of places and kinds of land in the Northwestern States through which the NORTHERN PACIFIC runs. Don't wait until it is too late to go.

VARICOCELE NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED.

No Names Used Without Written Consent.

If you have transgressed against the laws of nature, you must suffer. Self abuse, later excesses and private diseases have wrecked thousands of promising lives. Treat with scientific physicians and be cured. Avoid quacks. E. A. Sidney, of Toledo, says: "At the age of 14, I learned a bad habit and at 19 contracted a serious disease. I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The drains ceased, worry veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my sexual organs vitalized. I was entirely cured by Dr. Kennedy and recommend him from the bottom of my heart."

We Treat and Cure Syphilis, Gleet, Varicocele, Emissions, Stricture, Unnatural Discharges, Seminal Weakness, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

Reuben said to Susie,
"Now, Sue, I'll never rue."
Susie said to Reuben,
"If you don't, I'll have to sue."
Reuben was a gallant chap,
And Reuben never rued,
But Susie was dissatisfied,
So Susie simply sued.

Hasn't Gone Up.

Mrs. Wickler—Did you ever see how all the necessaries of life have gone up?

Wickler—No; they haven't all gone up.

"Well, I should like to have you mention one thing that hasn't gone up."

"Certainly. My salary."

WE have hundreds of Upright Pianos returned from renting (by persons moving) which must be disposed of at once as we cannot make room for them in our salesrooms. These pianos include Steinways, Knabes, Fischers, Sterlings and other well known makes. Many of them cannot be distinguished from new, yet all are offered at an enormous discount from prices when new. Uprights as low as $100. Very easy terms of payment to reliable persons. It would probably cost about $5 for freight to have one of these pianos shipped to you. Write at once for complete list and full particulars. You can make a great saving by securing one of these instruments. Every piano warranted exactly as represented.

CUTTING HIMSELF OFF.

The Blunt Way In Which Chaplain Cannon Refused a Fortune.

The Rev. Edward Cannon, a chaplain to King George IV., was a dogmatically independent man. On one occasion he refused to compliment the royal master on his singing and for a time fell into disfavor. His manner was high handed and not always too courteous, but his actions were always on the side of right and justice. The biography of his friend Barham, the author of the "Ingoldsby Legends," contains, among other anecdotes of Cannon, the story of how he cut himself off.

A silly old lady summoned him to her house and pretended to be dying in health. She told him she had made her will, by which the latter was a considerable fortune was left to him.

"I don't believe it," said Cannon after a pause, in which he thought doubtfully. The lady assured him the document was lying in a drawer in the room.

"I won't believe it," persisted the parson, "unless I see it."

Smiling at his incredulity, she had the will in his hands. Cannon read it.

"Well," he said deliberately, "I had not seen it in your own hands I could not have believed you would be an unnatural brute."

Thrusting the paper between the bars of the grate, he continued in a low voice: "Have you no one nearly connected with you than one to whom your money should go, who has a right to be provided for first and best? Pooh! You know how to make a will. Send for a lawyer, and he shall make a will. You shall leave me a guinea. There's no harm in that, but I am going to take it all to please you. Good day, ma'am!"
