Cooley preached a sermon on the "Life and Work" of John Wesley and in the evening on the childhood of the great founder of Methodism. In the afternoon there was a special service for the Sunday School, at which papers on John Wesley were read by pupils. The attendance at all the services was large.

Wet Saturday evenings have interfered with the band's free concerts, but the weather was fine last Saturday evening and a choice programme was played in fine style. Is there any reason why a band stand should not be erected in the park on the Court House Square and the concerts held there?

Georgetown Conservator.

MORE BASS.—The boys continue to catch large black bass in the pond. The other day Stuart Jones caught two, one weighing a little less than four pounds and the other about half a pound lighter. All the bass are of the large-mouthed variety. The pond was stocked with both kinds, but it has a muddy bottom, unsuitable for the small-mouthed bass and all of that variety left it.

Arthur Osborne, seven-year-old son of Charles Osborne, was drowned at Bronte on Monday evening. He was sitting on a berry wagon when the horse backed over the side of the pier, throwing him into the water. The boy was brought to the surface by the Rev. A SUCCESS.—The strawberry festival and promenade band concert given by the Young People's Society of Grace Church on Monday evening was well attended. The weather was warm and the sales of strawberries, ice cream and other refreshments were large and the receipts satisfactory. The fine music of the Milton band was a feature, and the entertainment was a decided success in every way.

20TH LORNE RIFLES.—Captan Beattie, of No. 4 Co., Campbellville, will go to Toronto, next week for a course of instruction at Stanley Barracks for a field officers' certificate. Captain Galloway, of No. 5 Co., Burlington, is about to apply for a course at the School of Musketry, Ottawa, and Second Lieutenant Ashbury, of No. 1 Co., Oakville, will go to the Infantry School, Toronto, this month to qualify for a subaltern's certificate.

Mrs. Culloden, widow of the late W. G. Culloden, died on the 18th inst. at the residence of her son-in-law, Rev. A. H. Drumm, Belleville. She was married in Milton over 40 years ago, when her late husband was editor and publisher of the New Era, the first organ of the Conservatives of Halton. After Mr. Culloden's death at Elora about 25 years ago, his widow returned to Milton and lived here for some years. Both her children survive her, Henry A., of San Francisco, Cal., one of the principal officials of the Southern Pacific Ry., and Mrs. Drumm.

"WHITE CAPS.—Late on Tuesday night, or very early on Wednesday morning, a local band of "White Caps" made their way to the residence of one of Georgetown's well known characters. Just how it all came about, or exactly what happened, is hard to learn; but it is certain the mission of the band of civic regulators was not one of peace and good will. The visit was evidently the sequel to a certain warning letter given to the press two weeks ago, for the victim of the visit certainly received a summary handling. Some may question the wisdom of this mode of meting out justice; but in this particular instance it is generally conceded that at least no injustice was committed. It is said there is a similar fate in store for one or two other local "characters."—Conservator.

THE TRUE FISHERMAN.

He Enjoys Nature's Beauties and Is Not a Mere Butcher.

The angler's art is but a pretext, or, rather, the incentive to a ramble, and not the sole object of the fisherman, unless, alas, he belongs to that too common variety, the man whose sole object is his catch. Such a man fishes with a worm, hides fingerlings in the depth of his basket and photographs his catch as a witness of his crimes. He is not a fisherman, but a butcher. A yellow primrose on the river's bank is to him a primrose and nothing more.

The true fisherman loves to catch fish, to match his wits against the weary trout, but as he wanders from pool to pool the songs of the birds greet him restfully. Every turn in the stream reveals a nook in which strange wild flowers nestle. The gentle excitement of the sport prevents the scene from becoming monotonous. The element of chance, the uncertainty of the catch, add the drop of tabasco sauce which gives zest to the day. And the noontide meal by the brink of the stream! When did a meal have a more delightful flavor? Delmonico never served a trout like unto those we have eaten by the banks of a mountain brook with the clear blue sky above, the waving forest round about and the murmuring stream at our feet.

The hour of contemplation comes afterward, with the pipe of peace in our hand instead of the relinquished rod. How far off the city seems! Are there such things as corporations, trusts, stocks, bonds, electric lights that amaze the sight, harsh warnings of trolley gongs, the rumble and grind of the wheels and the brakes on the elevated road which affright the ear? The harshest note that breaks the stillness here is the boom of the bittern in the distant marsh.

Home to camp the fisherman goes, taking a cast in this silent pool in which the trout rose in the forenoon to his cast, but missed the fly, or in that dark hole deep under the bank in which a vigilant eye may detect the brown sides of a trout with lazily waving fins and tail, an old campaigner not easily caught.—Dr. A. T. Bristow in World's Work.

CHINESE CONTRASTS.

We bake bread; in China they steam it.

We divide the day into twenty-four hours; they into twelve.

We locate intellect in the brain; they locate it in the stomach.

Our calendar is based on solar time; theirs is based on lunar time.

With us the seat of honor is on the right; with them it is on the left.

Our given name precedes the surname; theirs follows the surname.

The needle of our compass points to the north; theirs points to the south.

We have standard weights and measures; their weights and measures differ in each district.

Our children stand facing the teacher to recite their lessons; theirs turn their backs to the teacher.

Our watchmen quietly go their rounds with a view to catching thieves; theirs beat gongs and yell to frighten them away.

We bury our dead a few days after their decease; they often keep theirs in the house in heavy, sealed coffins for years.

The Hookah In India.

The hookah is smoked as a refreshment and sign of fellowship by the natives of India and not merely as a luxury. When a group of natives are seated together and, as is the custom, the hookah is passed around to each in turn it is considered very bad manners for any one to decline to have a few puffs. If the hookah is thus refused in a friend's house or while one is the guest of another it is regarded as an insult. If for any reason a native is put out of caste the fact is strictly marked by his former caste fellow's refusal to smoke with him, and any one who eats, drinks or smokes with an outcast is himself outcasted.

"Executive Ability."

"But then, of course, he has executive ability," we said conclusively.

"Executive ability!" repeated our acquaintance. "What do you mean by that?"

"Why, the quality of holding subordinates responsible for failures and taking credit to ourselves for their successes," we responded.

Which we considered rather clever for studied impromptu.

Mad and Bad.

Kind Hearted Citizen—Tut, tut, tut! Don't worry over it, little boy. You didn't break your pitcher, and there's no use, you know, in crying over spilt milk.

Little Boy—Do I talk as if I was cryin', mister? (Resumes his violent language.)

A Mystery Explained.

"I don't understand," said the ignoramus at the academy, "why they always put the baldheaded men up in the front row."

"That's easy," butted in the usher. "They put 'em up there so they'll be near the flies."

Evil.

Good is positive. Evil is merely privative, not absolute. It is like cold, which is the privation of heat. All evil is so much death or nonentity.—Emerson.

A Poor Bargainer.

Ethel—I offered Ferdy a penny for his thoughts.

Edith—Well, I'll never let you do any shopping for me!—Puck.

Agricultural Notes.

Food preservatives will not take the place of hygienic conditions in any manner or form.

Manure should go direct to the field. This is now the advice of many of the authorities.

Judgment has been given in favor of the Dominion in the Manitoba swamp lands case.

The Department of Agriculture has made an arrangement with the Grand Taunk Railway to supply refrigerator cars for the carriage of cheese.

Charles W. Taylor, business manager of the Globe, died suddenly from heart failure at his residence, Toronto, last Thursday. He was a son of Capt. John Taylor, a retired army officer, and was born in Toronto in 1857. He entered the service of the Globe as office boy nearly 36 years ago, and rose steadily until, in 1881, he was appointed business manager, a position which he held until his death. He left a widow and five children. Judge Taylor, of White Horse, Yukon, is a brother.

A Well Kept Secret.

In 1850 a Milan student is said to have discovered the secret of petrifying human flesh. In 1866 he was drowned in a shipwreck on the Mediterranean sea, the wonderful secret perishing with him.

Stalk and Stock.

Stalk is the stem of a plant; stock is the stem or trunk of a tree.

Deft Smokers.

Japanese jugglers are deft smokers. Several of them will sit before a curtain and from the tobacco smoke which issues from their mouths will form a succession of readable letters.

Perthshire Men.

Perthshire men possess the largest and heaviest brains in Scotland, declares Professor Ramsay.

The Dominion Government has commissioned Mr. Justice Richards to inquire into charges of lumber dealers having formed a combine in restraint of trade.

The Middlesex, England, County Council Scholarship examination candidates were asked what advantages lay in emigration to Canada. One replied, "When a man has lost his character, he should go to Canada, where he will not want one."

His Last Hope Realized.

(From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.)

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his travelling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by Higginbotham & Field.
