To The Bitter End.

Washington, Nov. 14.—"Russia will pursue the war in the far east to the bitter end, that is until Russia has conquered." These were the opening words of an emphatic statement made at the Russian embassy to-day by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador. Several times recently the ambassador, in the name of his government, has categorically denied the possibility of any intervention in the war, but the recurrence of rumors that the powers contemplated mediation has caused the ambassador to reiterate, on behalf of his government, its position regarding intervention or mediation of any kind.

The statement continues: "I deem it my duty to reiterate what I have so often said, that Russia will not suspend in any case her military operations in the far east. All rumors and reports regarding the possible success of the direct overtures for peace which Japan is said to have made to Russia, and regarding the mediation of the powers, in my opinion, are started for the purpose of convincing the people that the end of the war is close at hand. In this way it is hoped that the public may be led to believe that Japan loans offer attractive investments."

Will Punish the Ballot Box Men.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—The Dominion Government are making a strict investigation into the alleged introduction of bogus ballot-boxes in West Hastings, and if there is wrongdoing the guilty parties will be punished. As soon as the attention of Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick was drawn to the report he instructed the Dominion police to conduct an inquiry, and Constable Chamberlain was sent to Belleville for that purpose. He reported to his chief that ballot-boxes had been imported from the United States as bee hives, and brought into West Hastings. Not satisfied with this, the Minister of Justice despatched the Commissioner of Dominion Police to West Hasfings, Lieut.-Col. Sherwood went to Belleville on Friday, Mr. Fitzpatrick wired to Mr. G. F. Shepley, K. C., of Toronto, to consult with Col. Sherwood, and to take proceedings against any persons who might be shown to have been privy to a conspiracy to stuff the ballots.

On Saturday evening Lieut.-Col. Sherwood arrived in Toronto, and consulted with Mr. Shepley, and as a result there will probably be information sworn out against three or four prominent citizens of Belleville.

Mr. DuVernet, who is acting for Mr. Guss Porter, M.P. for West Hastings, will attend the preliminary inquiry at Belleville, to watch the case for his client. Mr. G. F. Shepley, K.C., will of course act for the Government.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Lieut.-Col. Sherwood this morning returned from Belleville, where he has been investigating the importation of bogus ballot-boxes. He declined to say anything for publication other than that he would place the information he has obtained in the hands of Mr. G. F. Shepley, K.C., who has been instructed to prosecute.

Growing Rhubarb in the Cellar in Winter.

By H. L. Hutt, Horticulturist.

Most farmers who have a garden at all usually have a good supply of the old fashioned pie plant or rhubarb. This vigorous growing plant provides a wholesome substitute for fruit early in the spring before strawberries come in. It is not generally known, however, that it can be made to produce its crop in an ordinary cellar during the winter, when it would probably be more appreciated than when grown in the usual way in the garden in the spring.

The rhubarb plant makes its most vigorous growth under natural conditions early in the spring, when its large leaves store up in the thick fleshy roots a large amount of nutriment for the production of seed during the summer and growth early next season. To get the best roots for winter forcing it is well to allow the plants to make their full growth with little or no cropping of the leaves the previous season, and above all not to allow them to exhaust themselves by throwing up seed stalks. The more liberally the plants are manured and the better they are cultivated, the stronger the roots become and the better the crop they will give when forced in the cellar.

In preparing the roots for the cellar, they should be dug up late in the fall, just before the ground freezes hard. They should then be left where they will be exposed to severe freezing for three or four weeks. If placed under cover in an open shed, or where they will not be buried in snow, it will be all the easier to get at them when it is time to take them to the cellar. About Christmas time they may be put in the cellar and should be banked with earth to keep the roots moist. Care should be taken that the plants are set right side up, as at that season it is sometimes difficult to tell which side of the ball of earth the crowns are on. In the course of a few days the roots will thaw out, and usually enough moisture is thus accumulated to keep them fresh for some time. They should be watched, however, as they may need watering once or twice during the winter to keep the soil moist. The warmer the cellar, the more quickly growth will start, but for the best results a rather low temperature, about the same as that in which potatoes are kept, is best. In a partially lighted cellar the leaf blades will expand very little, and all the strength of the roots will go to the development of the stalks. If the cellar is light, it is well to darken the part where the plants are kept. If the roots are strong and vigorous, stalks one and a half to two feet in length and two inches in diameter will be produced with little or no expansion of the leaf blade at the top. When grown thus in the dark, none of the chlorophyl or green coloring matter of the leaf develops, and the stalks are bleached to a pinky white. When cooked and made into sauce or pies, they turn a beautiful pink color and are much finer in appearance and flavor than stalks which are grown in the ordinary way in the garden. Cropping may begin as soon as the stalks are well developed, and may be continued for several weeks, until the roots have exhausted themselves, after which they should be thrown out, as they are of little use for growing again.

We would suggest that our readers try growing two or three roots this winter, and let us know the results next spring.

Western Wheat Yield.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 14.—The returns of the Ogilvie Company show that the western wheat yield is 13,000,000 bushels. Threshing is practicaly finished. The fine weather this fall has enabled farmers to complete their fall plowing, and with the amount of new breaking done, it is estimated there will be from 25 to 30 per cent. more land under cultivation next year than this.

BLOTCHY SKINS.

A Trouble Due to Impure Blood Easily Remedied.

Bad blood is the one great cause of bad complexion and blotchy skins. This is why you must attack the trouble through the blood with Dr. Williams's Pink Pills. All blotches, boils, ulcers, pimples and paleness are the direct, unmistakable result of weak blood loaded with impurities. Dr. Williams's Pink Pills conquer the poison; they drive out all the impurities; they actually make new, rich red blood; they strike right at the root of all complexion troubles; they are a positive and permanent cure for all virulent skin diseases like eczema, scrofula, pimples and erysipelas. They give you a clear, clean soft skin, free from all blemish and full of rosy health. Mr. Matthew Cook, Lamerton, N.W.T., tells how Dr. Williams's Pink Pills cured him of erysipelas after other medicines had failed. He says: "My skin was inflamed; my flesh tender and sore; my head ached; my tongue was coated; I had chills and thought I was taking fever. I tried several medicines, but nothing helped me until I began using Dr. Williams's Pink Pills and drove the trouble from my system, and I am now in the best of health. I think these pills the best medicine in the world for blood troubles."

It is an every day record of cures like this that has given Dr. Williams's Pink Pills their world-wide prominence. They cure when other medicines fail, but you must get the genuine with the full name: Dr. Williams's Pink Pills for Pale People, on the wrapper around every box. You can get these pills at all druggists, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canadians Stir British Patriotism.

While the "Kilties" Band of Belleville, Canada, were recently playing in the towns of middle and southern England, British patriotism was at fever heat, the tragic incident in the North Sea being responsible for the sentiment that swept over the Kingdom. At every concert Bandmaster Robinson received requests for the band to play "Rule Britannia," and when the Scotch-Canadian musicians responded with inspiring renderings of the patriotic music, the audience indulged in the most enthusiastic demonstrations, singing the words of the song and cheering as the last strain died away. It was a new experience for English people to be stirred to the depths of their hearts by a colonial musical organization. The Canadian bandsmen will never forget the outbursts of patriotism at those memorable concerts.

The "Kilties" continue triumphantly on their first tour of Great Britain, being cordially welcomed everywhere. At Halifax recently all of the bandsmen were presented by the business men of the town with beautiful bunches of white heather, as tokens of "good luck," and the Scotch-Canadians enjoyed a dinner in the "oak room" of the Old Cock Hotel, the oldest dining-room in England. The "oak room," which was originally used as a shooting box, dates back to the time of Henry VIII. Its beautiful old fire-place, and wonderful hand-carved mantelpiece, still survive the ravages of time.

Unknown Man Killed.

Galt, Nov. 13.—An unknown man was killed on the C. P. R. seven miles west of Galt at 9.30 o'clock this morning by being run over by a ballast train. The circumstances connected with the death are remarkable, and that the man took this terrible method of committing suicide is not improbable. There was absolutely nothing found on his clothing by which to identify him. The ballast train which ran over the man was going east and was following a freight. The engineer was on the alert watching for the train ahead, when he noticed the body of a man lying between the tracks. He also distinctly saw the man's head move. He applied the emergency brakes to his train, but failed to bring it to a standstill until eight cars had passed over the body, which, when it was taken from under the wheels was terribly mangled. The head and shoulders, however, were almost unscratched. The body is that of a well-developed man, aged about 32 years, height 5 feet 11 inches, weight about 180 pounds, eyes light blue, teeth good, lower molar on both sides absent, hair dark brown and inclined to be curly, clean shaven, fair. He wore a striped black coat, pants and vest of light cloth, made in Montreal. He had on a striped cotton shirt, and No. 16 collar, marked 2143. His necktie was of green, purple and white.

Every Two Minutes

Physicians tell us that all the blood in a healthy human body passes through the heart once in every two minutes. If this action becomes irregular the whole body suffers. Poor health follows poor blood; Scott's Emulsion makes the blood pure. One reason why is such a great aid is because it passes so quickly into the blood. It is partly digested before it enters the stomach; a double advantage in this. Less work for the stomach; quicker and more direct benefits. To get the greatest amount of good with the least possible effort is the desire of everyone in poor health. Scott's Emulsion does just that. A change for the better takes place even before you expect it.

We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

New Way of Using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. Arthur Chapman, writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says:—"As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and put some upon the dummy teat the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child. This they did and brought about a quick relief and cured the baby." This remedy is for sale by Higginbotham & Field.

HUMAN BRAINS.

The Difference Between Those of the Male and Female.

The female brain in human creatures is smaller than that of the male and it is also lighter. The difference in weight is considerable. The average man's brain is between four and five ounces heavier than the average woman's. The reason, it may be said, is that the woman herself is smaller than the man in size and weight. That accounts partly for the difference, but not entirely.

The diminished size and weight of the brain are said to be a fundamental sexual distinction in the human species. It is not peculiar to civilized men and women, but is found universally among savages, wherever sufficient observations have been made.

There is said to be also a difference of balance between the various parts of the compared brains. The occipital lobes, which preside chiefly over the physical functions of the organism, are declared to be more voluminous in the female than in the male, a physiological fact which is contrary to common belief.

It appears to be unquestionable that in purely intellectual endowment the man is superior to the woman. On the other hand, in the equally noble emotional capacity the woman is superior to the man.

JAMS AND JELLIES.

How They First "Got Among the Commonality" In Scotland.

In Galt's "Annals of the Parish" the Rev. Micah Balwhidder quaintly chronicles the events of his district in Scotland about the year 1760. In the course of these records he says:

"I should not in my notations forget to mark a new luxury that got among the commonalty at this time. By the opening of new roads and by our young men sailing to the West Indies heaps of sugar were brought home, while many among the cabbages in their yards had planted groset and berry bushes, which two things happening together, the fashion to make jam and jelly, which hitherto had been only known in the kitchens of the gentry, came to be introduced into the village.

"All this, however, was not without a plausible pretext, for it was found that jelly was an excellent medicine for a sore throat and jam a remedy as good as London candy for a cough or a cold or a shortness of breath. In the berry time there was no end to the borrowing of her brass pan, which occasioned a great fasherie to Mrs. Balwhidder."

SUBSTITUTE FOR GLASS.

Oiled Paper Used by Market Gardeners in Germany.

In a small way oil paper is used for glass in many places, but only in Germany is this done on a large scale. The florists and market gardeners in the district of Frankfort use what they call "fensterpappe" in great quantities for their greenhouses. The paper is a strong, tough manila.

There is no difficulty or secret about its preparation or use. The paper is nailed to light wooden frames and painted again and again with boiled linseed oil until it is so saturated that the last coat forms a smooth, glistening surface like varnish. This renders it translucent and water proof.

It is found to admit sufficient light for growing plants, does not need shading in hot sunshine, lasts well, is not easily broken and, on the whole, is a hundred times cheaper than glass. It is, of course, useful rather than ornamental and would not do as a substitute for glass in a private conservatory.—London Mail.

THE GREATER CANADA.

Lord Minto Says the Future of the Dominion Passes Imagination—The Old Order Passing.

At the farewell banquet given to Lord and Lady Minto, the retiring Governor-General said:

"I can assure Your Worship that if during my term of office I have been fortunate enough in the fulfilment of my duties to earn for myself the appreciation of the people of the Dominion, I ask for no greater reward and now I may say the same for Lady Minto. Her interests have always centred largely in the welfare of this country and the happiness of its everyday life, and it will always be a delight to her to hear of the further success of work which she has very much at heart.

"But to-night, Your Worship, there is a 'rift' in the lute. I now have come to say good-bye. I have run my race in Canada, the awkward fences and the nasty turns are things of the past, and I cannot ride it over again. It is not for me to say whether the course has been easy or difficult, but it has certainly been full of interest, and, after all, gentlemen, it has only been the first heat in the great Imperial stakes which it rests with the people of the United Kingdom and the people of Canada to win or lose.

"I hope Your Worship will absolve me from any intention of trespassing in the domain of politics, but perhaps it may not be out of place for me to glance very lightly at the history of the past six years that have gone by since, as Governor-General, I set foot in the Dominion. They have been years of marvelous prosperity, of great advancement in commercial wealth, of great development of the magnificent resources of this wonderful country, but greater influences in the history of Canada than any of these have come into existence.

Problems of the Future.

"A great man has raised considerations as to the Imperial responsibility of the King's subjects beyond the seas, and a great statesman is aiming at directing into one common channel the interests of the Motherland, and her self-governing dependencies. We are in a transition state, the old order of things is passing away, colonies are becoming nations, with a national sentiment of their own, but—I say it as strongly as I can—with no diminution of affection to the Motherland from which they sprang. We are face to face with a problem full of difficulties, no doubt. Conditions are changing, and we cannot afford to stand still. Now that I am leaving you, I will only say, work out the problem with all deference for the traditional doctrine of the Old World, with full regard for the hopes of your rising nationality, with all respect for racial traditions, but remember always that what is good for the Empire is good for Canada, and what is good for Canada is good for the Empire.

Canada's Splendid Provinces.

"Your Worship, I have traveled much throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and, proud as Canadians are of their country, I believe they can hardly exaggerate its future possibilities. I have just returned from the Northwest. The Territories are, as you know, not new to me, but as the other day I rode through the Saskatchewan Valley, beautiful beyond description in all the brilliant coloring of the fall, across prairies still strewn with the skeletons of extinct buffalo herds, past Indian battlefields of only a few years ago, and as I found settlements growing into villages, villages into prosperous towns, and immigrants pouring into the land, I realized that we are at the commencement of a new era. Your Worship, I can at any rate bear witness to the splendid promise of Canada's future. I can go home to tell the people of the Motherland that their kinsmen here beyond the seas are, by their own energy, day by day developing Imperial resources and Imperial wealth, the vastness of which is as yet but little known. I hope I may always share in the aspirations of the Canadian people, and, Your Worship, I can assure you Lady Minto and I will take home with us the warmest recollections of our life here, and will never forget the farewell we have received from the citizens of Montreal."

Uselessness of War.

At the recent meeting of the Women's National Council in Toronto, Mrs. Byles drew attention to the population of Canada—five or six millions—and said that there was that number of men in the European Continental armies in time of peace. They earned nothing and did nothing, but their fellow countrymen had to pay for their support while they practiced the art of killing.

In dozens of recent wars there had been only loss for both winner and loser. The soldier was promoted and the contractor got rich, but the nation lost. England had once a war to keep the Bourbons from the Spanish throne. They had another to put a Bourbon on the throne of France. No Bourbon would ever reign in France as long as the world lasted.

The United States had a war and got the Phillipines. Now they were guessing what to do with the new territory. Britain had a war. She gained the Transvaal and achieved her point. But things were never worse in South Africa. Men were coming away from the country. Chinamen were working the mines.

Till recently the plea had been that there were no international courts. Now there was a court at The Hague, with 65 judges on the rota, prepared to arbitrate any case. Carnegie would give it a home. Men would get justice, which was never gained in a war where the strong party won.

Alexander H. Notman, district passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway for Ontario, died at Albuquerque, New Mexico, on Monday, while on his way home to Toronto from Los Angeles, California. Mr. Notman had been in failing health for some months past, and about five weeks ago he was granted an indefinite leave of absence by the company. He went to Los Angeles, where his brother resides, but finding that the change was not benefitting him he decided to return to Toronto. He was seized with hemorrhage and died on the train. Mr. Notman entered the employ of the C. P. R. about 20 years ago, as rate and chief clerk in the passenger department at Montreal. He was subsequently transferred to St. John as district passenger agent of the Atlantic division, succeeding Chas. Macpherson. When the rearrangement of the offices was made, about five years ago, under D. McNicholl, Mr. Notman was transferred to Toronto, again succeeding Mr. Macpherson.
