AILING WOMEN

Gain Health and Strength Through Dr. Williams's Pink Pills.

Bloodlessness is the surest starting point of consumption. When your blood is thin and weak and watery your whole health declines. Your face grows pale, your lips and gums white, your appetite fails, and your heart jumps and flutters at the least excitement. You have frequent attacks of headache and dizziness, and sometimes fainting spells. You are always weak and wretched and lose heart in everything. These are the signposts of consumption, and you may easily slip into a hopeless decline if you do not build up your blood with Dr. Williams's Pink Pills. They actually make new, strong, rich, red blood, which brings back your rosy cheeks, your hearty appetite, your strength, energy and general good health. Here is strong proof from Mrs. Samuel Belisle, wife of a well known merchant and contractor at Sheet Harbor, N.S. Mrs. Belisle says: "Some years ago I became so run down and distressingly weak that life seemed not worth living. I had a bad cough, was tired out at the least exertion and was unable to do even light housework. I had the best of medical advice and medicines, but did not get any better and grew so seriously ill that I became confined to bed, and my friends thought I was in a decline. My cough grew worse and I despaired of ever being better. My husband then began to use Dr. Williams's Pink Pills, and I soon saw they were doing me good. Gradually my strength returned, my appetite improved, and the cough left me and day by day I grew better until I was again a well woman. I have since had perfect health, and when I compare my condition now with that of a few years ago I began taking Dr. Williams's Pink Pills, no one need wonder that I am enthusiastic in praising the medicine."

Cases of this kind can only be cured by filling the veins with new rich blood, and every dose of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills makes rich health-restoring blood, which goes right to the root of the disease. That is why these pills cure every day ailments like anæmia, heart trouble, indigestion, nervousness, headaches and backaches, neuralgia, kidney troubles, rheumatism, erysipelas, and the special ailments of womanhood and girlhood. All these troubles are rooted in the blood, and Dr. Williams's Pink Pills is the only medicine that actually makes new blood. Common medicine cannot do this, so you should insist upon getting the genuine pills with the full name, Dr. Williams's Pink Pills for Pale People, on the wrapper around each box. If in doubt, send direct to the Dr. Williams's Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be sent by mail 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

A Little Frank Talk.

(Ottawa Journal, Tory Ind.)

Let us speak frankly to them. All that the manufacturers or the manufacturers of this country are entitled to from its people, even if our rational policy is to be avowedly protective, is such a moderate scale of customs duties as will give to their brains, if they have any, a good start in a race with outside competitors. A protective policy is not entitled to be carried to extremes in order that the consumers, the mass of the people, may be bled white to force money into the pockets of men who might not have ability to run a factory solvently without enormous protection; or to "develop" industries which nature did not intend this country for, and which become mere sponges to absorb and destroy capital which would otherwise find genuinely desirable and successful investment. Man was not made for a protective policy, nor is Canada, we guess. A protectiye policy, like any other, is made for man.

And our manufacturers, instead of blandly assuming that the industrial prosperity of Canada is identical with a policy which would enable them to charge the people of this country 40, 50 or 60 cents more on the dollar than the people can get the same goods for from Britain or the United States, will have to argue out the question with Chamberlain and with Canadian common sense as to whether Canada does not do quite enough for the manufacturers, existed or proposed, when she gives them 20 cents start on the dollar on British competitors, and 30 cents start on foreigners. Pity it is not half instead of one-third preference to Britain, and to the sister colonies what it is to the rest.

Panoramic Yellowstone Park

The Northern Pacific can supply to all who have visited, contemplate visiting, or are interested in Yellowstone Park, a large Panoramic Picture of the Park. This work of art is 48 inches long by 32 inches wide, done in fifteen colors. It shows, absolutely, the topography of the Park, the location of the hotels, geyser basons, canons, roads, lakes, mountains and all features of the Park. It gives as nothing else can a connected idea of the region and is a valuable picture and map combined. Framed, it is ornamental as well as useful, and is specially suited to the school, class room and library.

This Panoramic Picture will be sent to any address by A. M. Cleland, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn., upon receipt of 35 cents. Orders may be sent direct to A. M. Cleland, or through any of the General or District Passenger Agents of the Northern Pacific in the larger cities, or through the local agents in Northern Pacific territory.

Tried Ten Times That.

Dr. R. J. Baldwin, secretary of the Southern Educational Conference, patted a little Mobile negro boy on the head.

"This little boy," he said, "failed in an examination last week. It was an examination on the Bible, and the first question the teacher asked was:

"'How many commandments are there?'

"The little boy thought awhile and then he answered:

"'A hundred?'

"'A hundred! No, of course not,' said the examiner. 'That will do for you.'

"And the little boy went out sadly. He had failed.

"But he hung about the building and in a half hour another boy appeared. He was on the way to the examination too. He asked the boy who had failed what questions had been put to him and the unhappy failure answered:

"'The teacher wanted to known how many commandments there were. What will you say when he asks you that?'

"'I'll say ten,' was the reply.

"The boy who had failed laughed loud and long.

"'Ten,' he cried. 'Well, just try him with your ten. I tried him with a hundred and he wasn't satisfied.'"

Fruit Crops Declared Bad.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Mr. McNeill, Dominion fruit inspector, has issued a report on crop prospects which doesn't give any cause for cheers. It is rather a dismal outlook.

Grubs and all sorts of evils are rampant, although the good effects of spraying are more apparent than ever.

Apples will be light, not more than 50 per cent. of last year.

There won't be any pears for export.

Peaches will be a poor crop.

Cherries are rotting.

The prospects are 200,000 barrels of apples for export from the Annapolis Valley.

The British Columbia crop will be an average one, while the Northwest yield will be heavier.

Was Done But Wouldn't Stop.

Chaplain E. A. Horton, of the Massachusetts Legislature, tells a story about a long-winded member of that body. The legislator was delivering a political address in a town not far from Boston, and the village folk gathered in the town hall to hear it.

"He had been speaking quite a while," said Dr. Horton, "when finally an old Scotchman arose and walked out of the hall. At the door one of his countrymen was waiting with his hack to drive the orator to the station.

"'Is he done yet, Sandy?' asked the Scot on the box.

"The old man turned about.

"'Aye,' said he, 'he's done lang ago, but he will na stop.'"

General Information in Business.

Writing of the relation of education to business in the New Idea Woman's Magazine for September, Esperance Goodlove, who has made wise observation of the industrial field for women, says: "Take stenographers and secretaries, clerkships of various kinds, managerial work in businesses of a dozen descriptions—the well-informed woman gets ahead of the uninformed every time. But—and this circumstance is important—the information that secures preference for these women is general, not special, with the exception of stenographic training, and that is only one section of a good secretary's equipment. It is the kind of knowledge picked up from many sources, in school and out of it. The same brand of information fits a person, speaking roughly of course, quite as well for the clerkship as for the managerial work, or for the secretaryship. For instance, a knowledge of current events is quite as important in one as in the other. Acquaintance with the outlines of history, and at least the landmarks in literature, raise the standard of their fortunate possessor, no matter what her work is.... General information, more or less, is the need of every woman who intends to earn her own living in this twentieth century."

A Flower Book of Real Flower

The Yellowstone Park Flower Book, published by the Northern Pacific, is a beautiful creation. It contains twelve specimens of real, pressed flowers, in natural colors, from Yellowstone Park, with botanical names and the places where found.

The book also has six full page, fine half-tone illustrations showing the Park bears, the Grand canon, geysers, hotels, etc., found in the Park, with a brief description of this most wonderful region, 54 by 62 miles in size, in the very depths of the Rockies.

The Flower Book makes a beautiful souvenir. Send A. M. Cleland, General Passenger Agent, Northern Pacific Ry., St. Paul, Minn., fifty cents for a copy.

A Cure for Mosquito Bites.

Some dozen years ago I had a particularly bad time with mosquitos, and the irritation of the bites made life almost unbearable. With me was an old trapper, and he told me to rub the bites with damp salt; the irritation immediately ceased, and since then I have never minded much "being eaten," as this simple remedy is always handy.—Frederick Gillett, in London Daily Mail.

Wor has just come to hand of remarkable discoveries made in the Toltec pyramids near San Juan Teotihuacan, Mexico. Altars, idols and tablets have been found in profusion, a curious fact being that the features and headdress of the idols represent four races. One is typically Egyptian, one Nubian, another Assyrian and the fourth represents the Indian. A temple was unearthed, the walls and floors being of solid cement, in bright color as if the paint had just been applied. This was also true of pottery which was found in the room in profusion. Beneath the floors were found human skulls of great thickness. The pyramids, of which there are two, called the Sun and the Moon pyramids, it is assumed, were built centuries before the Aztec supremacy. The Sun pyramid is the second largest structure of its kind in the world, being 500 feet high. The lesser pyramid is 400 feet nigh. An avenue, known as the road of the dead, leads between the two pyramids and is lined with small altars, or tecalli, as they were known to the Aztecs. There are forty altars along this road, one which has been uncovered showing seven stone steps, with a cement platform at the top. Immense cacti are growing on the top of several altars, giving an idea of their great age. Four zigzag paths, fifteen feet wide and enclosed by stone walls, lead up the east side of the pyramid of the Sun. They are in a good state of preservation. The work of excavation has been in progress six months. It is in charge of Professor Leopoldo Bartes, who is connected with the Mexican National Museum and is an authority on the history of the ancient inhabitants of Mexico. Professor Bartes states that the relics uncovered are not less than ten thousand years old and that they will serve to overthrow many accepted theories of the origin of the native Americans.

Virtually a Revolution.

(Providence Journal.)

At a meeting of a volunteer fire company in West York, N. J., last week, a man who had no harmony in his soul, no sense of the fitness of things, came out boldly in advocacy of a change from red shirts to blue uniforms. Think of a volunteer fireman without his red shirt! Think of a monkey without his tail! There is no comparison between them, other than that one concomitant is as necessary as the other. The red shirt is given to an amateur fireman that it may serve as a warning sign of his coming, that he may be seen afar off, and that its lurid color may serve, perhaps, as a suggestive reminder, on the festive occasions on which he most often wears it, of the serious nature of his emergency and occupation.

Good tea must be grown under proper conditions

LOW, damp or swampy lands in a warm, humid climate produce tea of rank, rapid growth, coarse in texture, woody fibred, rudely flavored—makes a cup heavy, murky in color, rough-tasting—it is poor tea.

But the Indian and Ceylon teas used to make the Red Rose brand are grown on the high lands of India and the mountain sides of Ceylon.

These teas are grown in clear dry sunshine, they mature slowly, the leaves of the Ceylon teas are tender, delicate, finely flavored, but not strong.

The Indian teas thus grown are full bodied, richly flavored, smooth in texture, strong.

Such Indian and Ceylon teas combined in Red Rose Tea produce a cup of a rich rosy brown, strong and smooth—all the richness and strength of Indian, all the delicacy and fragrance of Ceylon teas—that "rich, fruity flavor" which belongs alone to Red Tea—more qualities of tea excellence than any Indian or brand of Ceylon alone can possess.

Red Rose Tea is good Tea

HEIR TO HALF OF QUEBEC.

Mrs. Caroline Lambert Campbell of Brooklyn, N. Y., Will Press Claim For Twenty Millions.

Seeking to establish her claim to a $20,000,000 estate escheated for three generations by the British Government in 1760 which includes a tract a mile and a half long and a half mile wide through the heart of the City of Quebec and eight acres of the famous Plains of Abraham, Mrs. Caroline Lambert Campbell, wife of William A. Campbell, an assistant superintendent of schools in Brooklyn, has engaged counsel to push her case in the Dominion and British courts.

Recently she received from Lord Lyttelton, Colonial Secretary, a reply to a letter she addressed to King Edward, which states that Lord Knollys, the King's private secretary, is unable to advise His Majesty to take other action than to suggest that Mrs. Campbell take her claim to the courts.

In 1887 the Privy Council refused a joint application from representatives of the Catholic Church, the Church of England and the citizens of Quebec asking that $20,000 held by the British Government and collected as rental upon this property should be equally divided between the two churches in Quebec. The Privy Council with the assent of Queen Victoria decided that the heir would in time appear and that the property and its usufruct from the time the decree of escheat terminated in 1865 belongs to the heirs of Louis Joseph Lambert, who gave largely of his vast fortune to the French in the French and Indian War. When the English conquered he was deprived of his estates and those of his wife, the Demoiselle Genevieve de Villeray, who inherited 103 acres in Quebec City from her father.

Sir Wilfrid's Inquiry.

"Where have you been for forty years, Mrs. Cainpbell?" said Sir Wilfrid Laurier when Mrs. Campbell visited him two years ago. "I know every member of your family and their history, and you are the only missing member." Sir Wilfrid through his wife was a collateral claimant to the Lambert estate.

The energetic efforts of Mrs. Campbell, only child of the late Leander Lambert, of Kingston, N. Y., so far have resulted only in finding many documents which Montreal and Quebec lawyers told her did not exist or had been lost. Her success would mean her life interest in the property upon which are the Provincial Parliament buildings, the Dufferin Terrace and many of the best business and residence sites in the city, for which the British Government is collecting ground rents.

Mr. Campbell went to Quebec in 1874, visited the famous old Church of the Basilica and found a priest delivering a sermon. It was known that the Lambert ances or had built the church, and therefore became owner in perpetuity for himself and his heirs of three pews. Mr. Campbell asked the aged sexton to admit him to the Lambert pew. The man gazed at him in astonishment, and said that none but the Lambers might enter.

"I am the husband of Augustine Lambert's granddaughter," said Mr. Campbell. The sexton hurried away, and returning with a great bunch of rusty keys led Mr. Campbell down the centre aisle and near the front opened an ancient pew. The priest paused in his discourse and the old residents half rose in their seats. As the sexton left he whispered to Mr. Campbell: "No one has sat in any of the Lambert pews for fifty years."

Grandfather's Papers Removed.

Among the effects of Mrs. Campbell's grandfather was a memorandum which read, "Treasury Office, Quebec. The papers are in the vault, No. 37, about the sixth tier from the door." Mrs. Campbell tried to see these papers. She learned that the building had been burned, but the vaults were uninjured, though their contents were romved. But where they are now she has not been able to learn from the Provincial Government.

Mrs. Campbell's father, Leander Lambert, was the oldest son of Augus- thought their contents were removed. to Troy about 1850 and died there in 1865. Leander had married and one child, Mrs. Campbell, was born before the young father went to St. Louis on business in 1855 and fell a vic im to the cholera epidemic which swept over that city.

Augustine Lambert was the Lambert of the third generation, with whose life the escheat of his grandfather's estates ended. But he had removed to the United States. His son was dead and the young widow was not in a position to enter the controversy for the estates. So the matter slumbered in the direct line, but collateral heirs eventually learned of Augustine Lambert's death and began proceedings to recover the property, which were unsuccessful.

Died as Peacemaker in Duel.

Far back in the romantic days of Quebec Le Sieur Louis Joseph Lambert was a great man. He married the daughter of Louis Rouer de Villeray and joined the vast fortune of that house to his own. He gave to the French immense sums to aid the defence of Quebec against the English, and died when he sprang between the brother of his wife and another young aristocrat of old Quebec, who were fighting a duel with swords in about 1760. He saved his brother-in-law's life at the cost of his own, according to the family tradition.

The estate is estimated to be worth at least $20,000,000, but Mrs Lambert would not come into actual possession of this. It is entailed under the British law, she says, and she would have only a life interest with the right, however, to mortgage the properties. She has no son, though two daughters are as much interested as their mother in her claims, and on Mrs. Campbell's death the estates would pass to her first cousin, Henry Lambert, president of the Grand Avenue National Bank, of Kansas City, who lives in St. Louis. Another cousin is C. D. Lambert, general passenger agent of the West Shore Railroad, who investigated his right in the matter several years ago, and discovered that he was the furthest removed of the direct descendants of Augustine Lambert.

Since Mrs. Campbell has appeared upon the field, the properties she claims in Quebec have been practically tied up and the Government declines to give any but short leases to the lands at issue. It has refused to permit the rebuilding of the Victoria Hotel, which was burned there a few years ago.

Doctor Brigham Says

MANY PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womankind is not because it is a stimulant, nor because it is a palliative but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the generative organs, positively curing disease and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured trained nurses who have witnessed cures and physicians who have recognized the virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due.

If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience it can be relied upon to effect a cure. The following letter proves it.

Dr. S. C. Brigham, of 4 Brigham Park, Fitchburg, Mass., writes:

"It gives me great pleasure to say that I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very efficacious, and often prescribe it in my practice for female difficulties.

"My oldest daughter found it very beneficial for uterine trouble some time ago, and my youngest daughter is now taking it for a female weakness, and is surely gaining in health and strength.

"I freely advocate it as a most reliable specific in all diseases to which women are subject, and give it honest endorsement."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. No living person has had the benefit of a wider experience in treating female ills. She has guided thousands to health. Every suffering woman should ask for and follow her advice if she wants to be strong and well.

It appears that Ontario is far from being without a Sunday observance law, is still under the bonds of C. S. U. C., chapter 104, which is a consolidation of an Act passed by the Legislature of Canada in 1845. It applies to Upper Canada only, a restriction which is found in many of the old Canadian statutes, and which gave to the union something of a Federal character. The religious basis of observance is plainly set forth in the preamble declaring "that it is expedient to enact a law against the profanation of the Lord's Day, which day ought to be duly observed and kept holy." It forbids buying and selling, and the doing of any worldly labor, business or work, except the conveyance of travellers and mails, the sale of medicines and works of charity. It forbids also the holding of political meetings, tippling or brawling in taverns, hunting and fishing, and bathing in exposed situations within the limits of any place of pubic worship or private residence.
