SUNLIGHT SOAP

is better than other Soaps but is best when used in the Sunlight way. Follow directions.

SUNLIGHT WAY OF WASHING

FIRST.—Dip the article to be washed in a tub of lukewarm water, draw it out on a washboard and rub the soap lightly over it. Be particular not to miss wiping all over. THEN roll it in a tight roll, lay in the tub under the water, and go on the same way until all the pieces have the soap rubbed on, and are rolled up.

Then go away for thirty minutes to one hour and let the "Sunlight" Soap do its work.

NEXT.—After soaking the full time rub the clothes lightly out on a wash board, and the dirt will drop out; turn the garment inside out to get at the seams, but don't use any more soap; don't scrub or rub the pieces, and don't wash through suds. If the water gets too dirty, pour it off, and use fresh. If a streak is hard to wash, rub some more soap on it, and throw the piece back into the suds for a few minutes.

LASTLY COME THE RINSING, which is to be done in lukewarm water, twenty seconds to get all the dirty suds away, then wring out and hang up to dry.

For Woolens and Flannels the process is the same. Shave the soap into the water, dissolve it, boil and skim, then a lather of SUNLIGHT SOAP into working proportion, as in the boiling water, and a lather into the lukewarm water, work gently in the lather without rubbing. Squeeze the dirty water without twisting, rinse in water without twisting and hang in the open air.

☞ The most delicate colors may be safely washed in the "Sunlight" way.

LEVER BROTHERS LIMITED, TORONTO

Fraternal Insurance.

Detroit, Jan. 10.—"A crisis has arrived in the affairs of fraternal organizations and it has been brought about by the societies being converted into quasi old line insurance companies. When the fraternal feeling disappears, and cold business methods take its place, the fraternal benefit societies must go down, for fraternal societies, barring different organizations of administration, cannot issue insurance at less cost than the old-time companies. With the possibility of high rates in the future, it is apt to be more. There is an end to everything, and we cannot expect our societies to be perpetual. Only when a man can perpetuate himself can he expect to perpetuate an organization such as any of ours."

Uttered in characteristic style by Major N. S. Poyner of Port Huron, grand commander of the Knights of the Modern Maccabees and one of the best-known fraternal insurance men in America, the above remarks dropped like a bombshell into the annual meeting of the Michigan Fraternal Congress, in session at the Hotel Cadillac.

He followed Rev. W. Warne Wilson of Detroit, prominently identified with the A. O. U. W. of Michigan, who had protested that there must be rates adequate to meet all contracts at the time specified, requiring a sum of money which at compound interest would meet the policy at the expiration.

"You must get the grades 2 from the members in order to have the 4 to pay back to them, or else you will meet dissatisfaction and disaster," said Mr. Wilson.

"What we have to expect is fraternal cooperation, not fraternal insurance," maintained Major Poynter. "You want blood-letting, strangulation and chloroform. My method is milder. A mild specific would be more to my idea. The only relief for a fraternal benefit society is to mix fraternity with business. If you get too much commercialism, the young men will go to the old-line orders. If you get too much fraternalism, the cool-minded craft drops over. But we don't have the fraternalism we had 25 years ago and the orders are weaker for it.

"Fraternal insurance will carry a man over the time when he most needs insurance. If the organization which I have devoted years in helping to build up should go out of business to-morrow I should be satisfied with it for the good it has done. If you are going to give insurance for Tom, Dick or Harry to speculate upon, you have got to do it on the basis of the old-line life companies."

SICK KIDNEYS

Mean Aching Backs and Sharp Stabbing Pains That Make Life Almost Unendurable.

An aching, breaking back, sharp stabs of pain—that is kidney trouble. The kidneys are really a spongy filter—a human filter to take poison from the blood. But sick, weak kidneys cannot filter the blood properly. The delicate human filters get clogged with impurities, and the poison is left in the system to cause backaches, headaches, rheumatism, dropsy and fatal inflammation. Dr. Williams's Pink Pills are the one sure cure for sick kidneys. They make new, rich blood, which flushes them clean and gives them strength for their work. Dr. Williams's Pink Pills set the kidneys right, and make lame, aching backs strong and well. George Johnson, of the village of Ohio, N.S., says: "My son, now eighteen years old, suffered from kidney trouble and severe pains in the back, which caused him many a sleepless night. We tried several medicines, but they did not help him, and he grew so weak that he could not do the work that falls to the lot of a young boy on a farm. We were advised to try Dr. Williams's Pink Pills, and this was the first medicine that reached the cause of the trouble. He took the pills for a couple of months, when every symptom of the trouble was gone, and he was as healthy as any boy of his age. I am satisfied Dr. Williams's Pink Pills will cure kidney trouble in its most severe forms."

Dr. Williams's Pink Pills actually make new rich blood. In that way they strike at the root of anæmia, indigestion, kidney trouble, liver complaint, erysipelas, skin diseases, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, and the special ailments of growing girls and women, whose health depends upon the richness and regularity of their blood. The genuine pills have the full name, "Dr. Williams's Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box, and may be had from all dealers or by mail at 50cts. a box or six boxes for $2 50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Truth About Oleomargarine.

Oleomargarine is a product which has long been regarded with suspicion, but food experts pronounce it "healthful and nutritious," and confute the statements ignorantly made that it is impure and contains injurious ingredients. A defence of this much-maligned article of diet is well presented by Mary Hinman Abel in the Delineator for February, being the sixth of her papers of "Safe Foods and How To Get them." Mrs. Abel quotes Professor Harrington in his work on Practical Hygiene, significantly.

"Oleomargarine has been misrepresented to the public to a greater extent probably, than any other article of food. From the time of its first appearance in the market as a competitor of butter, there has been a constant attempt to create and foster a prejudice against it as an unwholesome article made from unclean refuse of various kinds, a vehicle for diseased germs, and a disseminator of tapeworms and other unwelcome parasites. It has been said to have been made from soap grease, from the carcasses of animals dead of disease and from a variety of other articles equally unadapted to its manufacture. The publication of a great mass of untruth cannot fail to have at least its desired effect, not solely on the minds of the ignorant but on those of persons of more than average intelligence. So a prejudice was created against this valuable food product, but it is becoming gradually less pronounced."

Treat All Thieves Alike.

Goldwin Smith in Weekly Sun.

Public morality has been suddenly awakened, and there is a spasm of reaction against rascality, both municipal and commercial. We see it here in the proceedings against the combines as well as in the city of Philadelphia and of Equitable Assurance of New York. This is a welcome assurance of moral vitality in the people. But nothing permanently effective will be done till an equal measure of justice is meted to all wrong-doers. At present the respectable knave who steals as the officer of a corporation from his trust or plunders the public by his combine, though he is just as much a thief as the ragged ruffian who committs a burglary or blows open a safe, seldom sees the inside of a prison.

Slaughter of Deer.

Returns from the express companies to Chief Game Warden Tinsley indicate that the slaughter of deer in the forests of the province during the last open season was larger than in former years. The companies carried 3,310 carcases from the various shipping points in the hunting districts. This was 270 more than in the former season, but it does not represent more than a quarter of the game shot. Many hunters residing in the neighborhood kill their two deer to which they are entitled and do not need to send them to their homes by rail, but cart them away.

A large number of moose were also exterminated. The express companies have carried 150 heads of these animals. Others remain yet to be sent.

Information Wanted About Canadians who Died in South African War.

The South African Memorial which is now in course of completion will have recorded upon panels around the base the names of all Canadian Soldiers who were killed in action, or who died of wounds or disease while on service in South Africa during the Boer war, 1899-1902. The South African Memorial Association is desirous of obtaining full particulars of all those who thus gave up their lives in defense of, and to uphold the principal of the British Empire. Illustrated particulars of the Memorial will be sent upon request. Address, Sydney H. Jones, Secretary, 28 Wellington Street West, Toronto.

Causes of Shipwreck.

"As a representative of one of the insurance underwriters I have taken part in the investigations of more than 400 shipwrecks," said a former sea captain. "The causes of wrecks are drink, fogs, neglect to use the sounding lead and unknown currents.

"The most dangerous waters are off the east coast of England, Cape Ushant and Cape Finistere. In the past the shifting of the cargo caused a good many wrecks, but the adoption of feed pipes has changed all that. Cargoes liable to shift consist of wheat, iron ore, coal and so on. Great feed pipes filled with part of such cargoes now run down into the hold, and if the cargo shifts at all the pipes automatically pour more cargo into the space that has been made vacant.

"Off a wild part of the South American coast a four master loaded with high heeled French shoes was once wrecked. The native Indians stole the shoes, but couldn't wear them. They used them instead for boxing gloves, giving each other terrific taps with the French heels."

Beats Horse Show Driving.

A western man was telling some stories of daring driving, some realistic and some hyperbolic. "There is a story," he said, "of One Eyed Pete McCoy. If this story is true, the four-in-hand drivers of the east are only practicing a decayed and degenerate form of coaching. One Eyed Pete drove a Dakota stagecoach that made a circuit of Deadwood, Carbonate, Spearfish and Bear Gulch. He tore into Carbonate one day on his usual dead run. Like an avalanche, the coach clattered up to the hotel door. There suddenly it stopped, and one of the horses fell stone dead.

"'A very sudden death,' said a bystander.

"'Sudden? Not at all,' said One Eyed Pete. 'That there hoss died at the top of the hill, nine mile back, sir, but I wa'n't goin' to let him down till I got to the reg'lar stoppin' place.'"

The Chinchilla.

Chinchilla is a beautiful soft gray fur. It is not the most durable of furs, and, because of the difficulty of getting the perfect skin, it cannot be said to be among the least expensive. A muff and stole of the real chinchilla cost easily $1,000 or so. The tiny chinchilla itself, not more than twelve inches long, with a plump little body on short, stout legs, thrives only in the tropics. The little beasts have to be killed with the utmost precaution not to injure their fur, that grows on a skin nearly as tender and soft as a web of silk. A perfect skin not larger than a small pocket handkerchief is a revelation in fur growth. The texture of every hair is finer than floss silk, the length of it nearly an inch and the coloring about that of the soft, undyed marabou feathers.

Magic Figures.

"The most remarkable arrangement of numbers that I know of," said a local business college man who takes a delight in solving curious problems and digging up mathematical oddities, "is the combination of the six figures 142,857. Multiply this number by 2, and the answer is 285,714; by 3, and the answer is 428,571; by 4, and the answer is 571,428; by 5, and the answer is 714,285; by 6, and the answer is 857,142. Each answer contains exactly the same digits as the original sum, and, to cap the climax, multiply the number by 7, and up comes the answer 999,999. Try it and see if it is not so."

Ox Bones.

Ox bones have a considerable value. The four feet of an ordinary ox will make a pint of neat's foot oil. The thigh bone is the most valuable, being useful for cutting into toothbrush handles. The fore leg bones are made into collar buttons and parasol handles. The water in which the bones are boiled is reduced to glue, while the dust which comes from sawing the bones is turned into food for cattle and poultry.

The Delineator for February.

For the woman of fashion, the February Delineator, with its display of Spring styles, is a most attractive number. Besides the fashions there is much of interest for the general reader, and the departments concerning the practical householder have been abundantly contributed to. There are short stories by Zona Gale and Margaret Beauchamp, with an interesting travel sketch entitled "In Cairo with a Camera," by Horace Wyndham. Miss Winslow's story of club life "The President of Quex" is continued gaining much in interest. The "Collector's Manual" is concluded with an article on "Old Time Lights." For the children there is a delightful girl's serial, "Sunlight and Shadow," one of Alice Brown's "Gradual Fairy Tales," and amusing games by Lina Beard. Mothers will find Dr. Murray's paper on "Exercise and Physical Culture" particularly helpful, and the numerous pages devoted to matters of housewifely interest, such as cookery, gardening, house furnishing, etc., will prove to be of equal interest to the young housewife.

For Over Sixty Years.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for their children while teething. If disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures Diarrhœa, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses of the United States. Price twenty five cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists throughout the world. Be sure and ask for MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.

The Cosmopolitan.

The February number of the Cosmopolitan is a particularly fine one. Chas. Edward Russell's contribution, "Socialistic Government of London," will be read with interest. The noted American artist, Frederic Remington, contributes "The Way of an Indian," illustrated by himself. Other notable articles are: "Are Great Fortunes Great Dangers?" in which distinguished Americans answer this question, and "Dying Words of Autocracy"—"Delusions of Democracy," by Constantine Pobedonostseff, the Procurator of the Russian Church and the Czar's chief adviser, and "The Czar's Man Answered," by Chas. Ferguson.

Tired, Nervous Mothers

Make Unhappy Homes—Their Condition Irritates Both Husband and Children—How Thousands of Mothers Have Been Saved From Nervous Prostration and Made Strong and Well.

Mrs. Albert Mann — Mrs. Chester Curry

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly.

The ills of women act like a firebrand upon the nerves, consequently nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," sleeplessness, and nervous irritability of women arise from some derangement of the female organism.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness, alternating with extreme irritability? Are your spirits easily affected, so that one minute you laugh, and the next minute you feel like crying?

Do you feel something like a ball rising in your throat and threatening to choke you; all the senses perverted, morbidly sensitive to light and sound; pain in the ovaries, and especially between the shoulders; bearing down pains; nervous dyspepsia, and almost continually cross and snappy?

If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition, and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for nervous prostration than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; thousands and thousands of women testify to this fact.

Mrs. Chester Curry, Leader of the Ladies' Symphony Orchestra, 42 Saratoga St., East Boston, Mass., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I was troubled with extreme nervousness and hysteria brought on by irregularities. I could neither enjoy life nor sleep nights. I was very irritable, nervous and despondent.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and proved to be the only remedy that helped me. I have daily improved in health until I am now strong and well, and all nervousness has disappeared."

The following letter is from Mrs. Albert Mann, 154 Gore Vale Ave., Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham;—

"I suffered a long time with ovarian trouble having intense pains in the back and abdomen and very sick headaches every month. I was tired and nervous all the time and life looked very dreary to me and I had no desire to live until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to get some relief. My recovery was slow but it was sure and I have never regretted the money spent for the Compound as it brought back my good health."

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine that holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of female ills, and take no substitute.

Doctors as Empire Builders.

The East India company in their attempts to make headway in India were signally indebted in various stages of their progress to humble practitioners in medicine. It was in consequence of a cure effected on the favorite daughter of one of the Mogul emperors that they had first been allowed a footing in Bengal.

Later still, in the year 1715, a medical man named Hamilton, as a reward for curing the reigning emperor of an illness, obtained for the company a grant of three villages near Madras, a permission to purchase thirty-seven townships in Bengal and the privilege of introducing and conveying their merchandise from Calcutta through Bengal without duty or search.

The footing thus gained and the accompanying patronage and encouragement enabled the East India company to make such progress as to cut out all foreign rivals. So England, through the company, gradually obtained full sway over India.—London Mail.

Modern Greek Fire.

"Marine torches" are the direct descendants of the Greek fire of the ancients, though the modern torch is used for defense rather than offense and prevents the surprise of a fleet through the silent approach of an enemy.

It consists of an aluminium cylinder used as a projectile. On being fired from a gun it produces no result until it falls into the sea. In its interior it contains stores of calcium phosphide and calcium carbide. The former produces phosphureted hydrogen on contact with water, which ignites spontaneously and also ignites the acetylene gas liberated from the carbide through the action of the water. Enough of the chemicals is contained to last for ten hours, and a few of these torches thrown to the points of the compass from which attack might be expected would leave the defenders in obscurity, while not permitting the enemy to approach.

The Liquor Question.

Goldwin Smith in Weekly Sun.

We are told that though liquor was not sold in the saloons on the day of the municipal elections, it was provided by the liquor men in cabs. Supposing this to be true, what is the practical inference? Is it not the danger, in attempting sudden and complete suppression, of setting on foot clandestine trade? Later evil instantly extinguish by legislation a taste which, hardly or not, is immemorial and universal? If this is hopeless, as experiment seems to have shown, may not an open and regulated trade be the less evil of the two? The man who goes to drink secretly is pretty sure to drink deep, and contraband liquor is generally of the most poisonous kind. Most poisonous certainly was some of the contraband liquor furnished to districts under prohibition in the Northwest. There is, besides, the general infection of the people with illegality. An inebriate asylum or prison maintained at the expense of the trade or by fines upon its peccant members seems not to be a bad idea.

Irving's Stagecraft.

It chanced to me once, and only once, in a life of some faring by land and sea to ride up a Kurdish gorge at early dawn, the sky still starry, as the charcoal burners had begun their work, and to see over all as the smoke rose a gray blue light as of the depths, some touch of deep chilled enveloping air on gorge and mountain side, as though a sapphire had aged and grown gray and wan. Once only I saw this and never again. When in "Faust" the curtain rose on the Brocken I saw before me the same miracle of gray blue. "How did you," I asked once at supper, "who ride abroad so little and are so rarely on the mountain side, hit on this, the rarest of lights?" "Once," and he took up a small plate, "I saw in a gallery," and he named it, "but I have forgotten, "a landscape by Durer the size of this plate, a mountain side in early morn in this same gray blue light. It gave me the light I wanted for the Brocken."—Talcott Williams in Atlantic.

The Diplomatic Druggist.

A certain druggist who does not like to answer night calls, especially as he has found by experience that he offends people who call him up at night by his displeased abrupt manner, has devised a scheme by which he does not have to get up and at the same time does not lose customers. In his own words he works it this way:—

"I disconnect my bell so that it cannot ring. After waiting some time the person who wants to get in gives it up as a bad job and goes down the street to the next store. This man opens for him, but is naturally very much displeased, and, as I usually do, he shows that he is disgruntled and offends the customer. Early the next morning the customer calls at my store to inform me that my bell is out of order and tells me what a low opinion he has of the other druggist, whom he considers a very impolite man."

Posthumous Libel.

A correspondent of the London Times raises the point that, while a libel upon a dead man may form the subject of a criminal prosecution, yet there is no redress whatever for a libel by the dead upon the living. Thus a testator may so phrase his will as to libel a legatee and injure him to an extent far in excess of his legacy. The writer cites as an illustration the following bequest from an ardent teetotaler to a moderate drinker: "I give and bequeath to A. B. the sum of £50 upon condition that she signs the pledge." Such a condition inserted in a will, he believes, might do the lady legatee an amount of damage for which £50 would be but poor compensation, and he submits that in cases of posthumous libel the executors should be answerable in damages to the extent of the testator's estate.

Rings of Fungous Growth.

Before people studied nature to learn the truth and when they delighted in all sorts of fancies it was claimed that rings of fungous growths were caused by the dancing of fairies, by a thunderbolt entering the ground or by the work of moles. Various other equally absurd explanations have been given. Now we know that the first fungous plant growing from a spore takes from the soil under and near it all or most of the special food that the plant requires. Only the spores from this plant that fall just outside the exhausted soil will find good fungous food, and so the circle of successive growths widens because only the spores outside of the ring can find food.

How Icelanders Take Snuff.

A peculiarity concerning the use of snuff in Iceland may be of interest. The snuff is made into bars after the manner of plug tobacco and is sold in that shape to the natives, nearly all of whom are addicted to its use and prefer it thus prepared. The Icelander allows the nail on the right hand thumb to grow long for the purpose and when using the snuff scratches it off the bar with his nail on the back of his left hand and applies it to his nose.

Whence Come Microbes.

A writer in Le Figaro of Paris (Dr. Ox) at the close of a long article on the origin of microbes declares that the bacillus of consumption originally came from blades of rye, wheat and corn and that the human lung is its adopted abode, where it would perish were it not replenished. That rare atmospheres are beneficial to consumptives is not because they are thin, but because rye, wheat, corn, etc., are not grown there.

Defining His Criticism.

"I've been to see Bludgerly's latest painting, and it's a perfect daub. And yet you said it bordered on the sublime."

"That's the way it struck me, old man. It is inclosed in one of the most magnificent frames I ever saw!"

Encouraging.

He (just accepted)—You say you were never engaged before? She—Yes. He—How is that? I thought all women always had three or four engagements. She (guilelessly)—Well, I presume I shall too. You see, this is the first chance I have had.

Satisfactory.

A NERVOUS WRECK—A HAPPY LIFE.

T. P. EMERSON has a Nervous Debility, which weakened me physically, sexually and mentally. I had lost all hope, when I read your advertisement and said I was going into "decline" (Consumption). I read "The Golden Monitor," edited by Drs. Kennedy & Kergan, and placed myself in their hands. I learned the truth and cause. Self abuse had expelled all vitality. I took the New Method Treatment and was cured. My friends think I was cured of Consumption. I have sent them many patients, all of whom have been cured. Their New Method Treatment supplies vigor, Vitality and manhood.

Another Reformer.

Stella—So you are really going to marry old Millyuns. I had no idea you were mercenary. Maude—I'm not. I am going to marry him to reform him. Stella—Reform him! I didn't know he had any bad habits. Maude—Yes, he has one. His friends say he is miserly.

Encouraging.

He (just accepted)—You say you were never engaged before? She—Yes. He—How is that? I thought all women always had three or four engagements. She (guilelessly)—Well, I presume I shall too. You see, this is the first chance I have had.

Satisfactory.

"Do you know that your attentions weary me?"

"Do they, indeed? I was beginning to feel that I had failed to make any impression whatever."
