A REFRESHING CHANGE

The speeches of incent Massey at Port Hope, and Newmarket come as a refreshing change from the dreary flow of words which for weeks past have been pouring from the Meighen and King platforms.

In the Massey speeches, there is an entire absence of the small and the petty. There is no appeal to purely personal or community interest. The whole appeal is on national grounds, and there is evidenced a remarkably clear understanding of the present industrial situation in Canada, and an equally clear conception of the sort of policy that should be followed. Mr. Massey is undoubtedly right in saying that the exisiting comparative slackness of trade in industrial centres is due, not to the lack of tariff protection, but to the reduction in the buying power of the farm as a result of after-war one sided deflation. He is undoubtedly right in saying that farm recovery is already under way and that the increased buying power of farmers will aid in a general industrial revival. Most emphatically true is the further statement that the Meighen policy of higher protection cannot be carried into effect without grave danger to Confederation because of the effect on the Maritime Provinces at one end, and the western provinces at the other.

A real addition has been made to the public service of this country by the enlistment of Vincent Massey.—Farmers' Sun.

At the conclusion of what was gram of the Citizens Band for the season, Monday night, Mr. Sydney Rands, C. P. R. agent, stepped up to Banndmaster Claridge and handed him a donation with the commannd: "Treat the boys." And it speedily was as he commanded.—Shelburne Economist.

What was probably the first carload of honey ever shipped from Arthur, left the local C. P. R. depot one day last week. The honey was shipped to Montreal by Mr. Crouse from his apiaries in West Luther. The load contained twenty tons. To the prominence which the Arthur vicinity is now winning by the production of tall corn, fall wheat, and alfalfa, may also shortly be added distinction as a shipping centre of this nutricious sweet. —Enterprise.
